Egg Producers Seek Market Changes

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — National egg producers are unsatisfied with their industry and want to do something about it. This was the overwhelming response to a national survey conducted by the Lancaster County Poultry Association last year and reported to attendees at the Lancaster County Poultry Progress Day this week.

"We started this process last summer," said Paul Wolgemuth Jr., president of the association and an egg producer. "We wanted to look at the problems and considerations facing the industry. We wanted to encourage thinking industry-wide to see if we could do anything together (about the situation)."

The survey was sent to the 2,100 producers on the American Egg Board mailing list. A total of 1,208 returned from 45 out of the 48 states it was sent to; of these 1,118 were usable.

An overwhelming 97 percent said egg prices haven't provided them an adequate return on their investment during the last 18 months. They felt that the biggest two reasons for this were excess production and a decline in consumer demand for eggs.

"Salmonella wasn't seen as a major factor at that time," reported Dr. Milton Madison, Penn State poultry economist, who compilated the survey results.

More than half of the respondents, 58 percent, are in favor of a joint producer effort that would lead to higher egg prices. Sixty percent thought the joint effort should include some control on the

Progress In Genetically-Altered Plants And A Look At Locking In Good Prices

BY PAT PURCELL

CAMP HILL (Cumberland) — Genetically altered plants which can actually kill their number one pest when it begins to feast on its leaves? Herbicide application on a crop with no damage to the crop, but total success in wiping out weed competition?

Does this all sound too far-fetched? Is this farming in the 21st century? No. These are just some of the ways biotechnology can influence farming if not today, then at least tomorrow.

Dr. R. R. Muench of Monsanto updated members of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association, Inc. on the progress of plant breeding during the association's annual conference held Wednesday in Camp Hill.

Although researchers have been successful with a wide variety of crops, corn, however, is not yet one of them. Equipment is being developed to help develop genetically engineered corn and Muench told members they can look for results soon. According to Muench, Monsanto and some other companies are making progress.

It takes from five to ten years to develop a product. Basically there are three steps. First, the gene with the desired traits must be identified and isolated; second, the gene is inserted into a recipient plant and third, a whole plant must be regenerated from the transformed

Enhancer Daughter Breaks Sale Record In Maryland

By Sue Crow
Maryland Correspondent

QUEEN ANNE CO., MD — Schraders Enhancer Betty was the first cow to walk into the ring at the Maryland Holstein Convention Sale, and what an impression she made. A strong 3-year-old, classified at VG-87 with a beautiful udder, caught the eye of every buyer at the Queen Anne 4-H Fair Grounds. More than 200 people watched as the gavel went down on the final bid of $16,600, thereby making her the highest-priced

RCMA Needs 1,200 Order II Members To Continue Premiums

BY PAT PURCELL

HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — The future of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, Inc. will be decided in the next few weeks by farmers.

If RCMA is to continue paying over order premiums to Order II producers, farmer members need to sign up 1,200 prospective members in the Dauphin, Cumberland, Lebanon, Lancaster, Berks, Chester, Montgomery, Bucks, Northampton counties.

"The most important part of this membership drive will be dairy farmers talking one to one over the kitchen table. That's where the future of RCMA will be decided," Ed Anna, executive director of

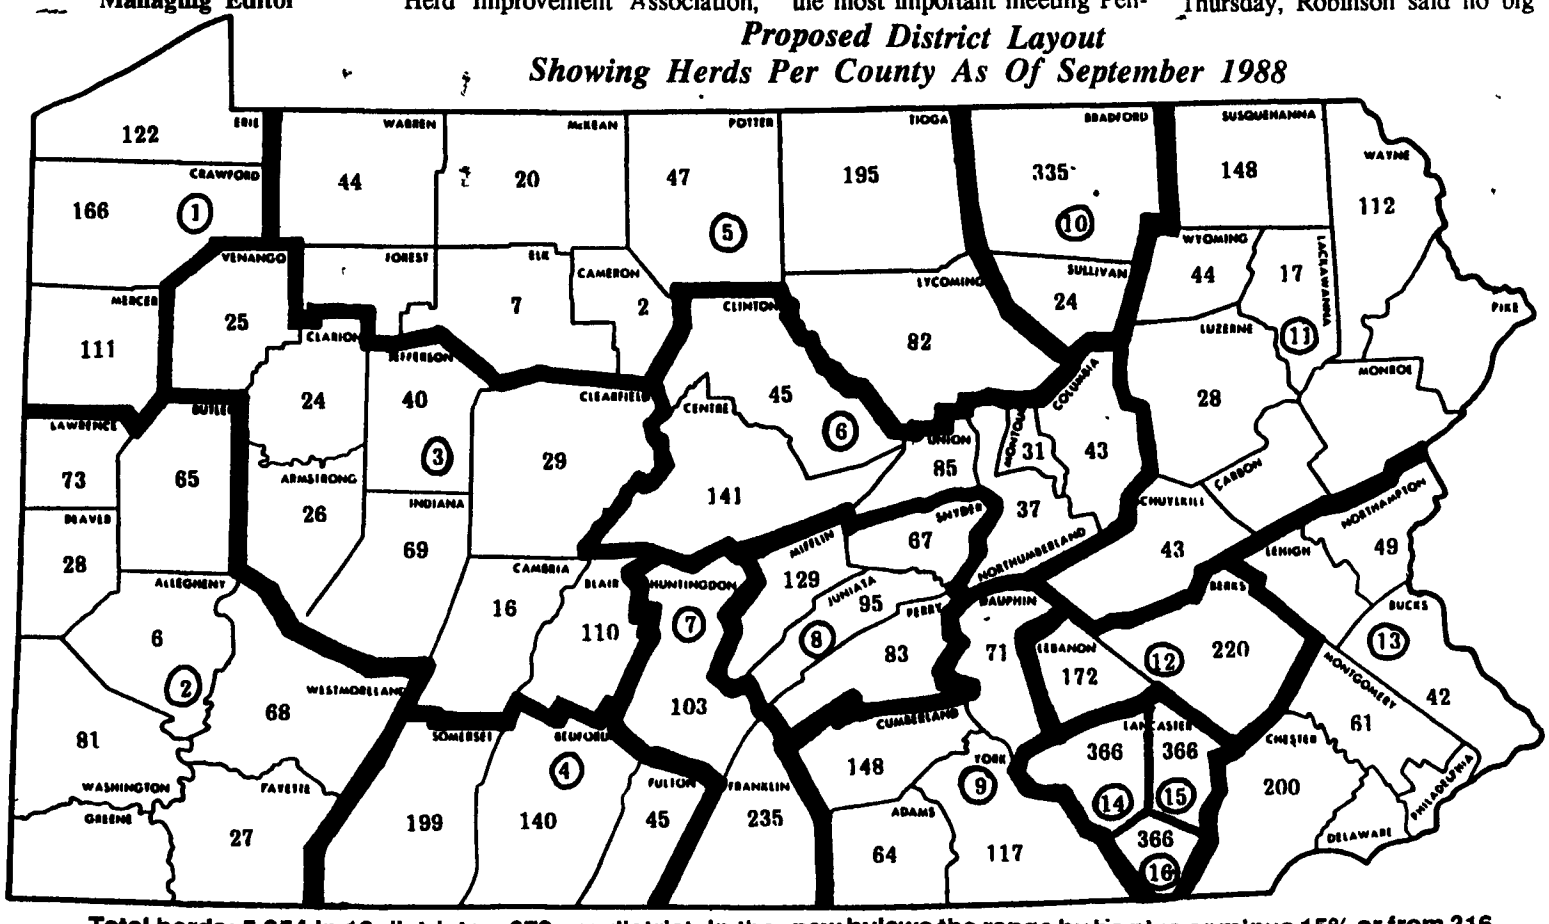
Pennsylvania DHIA Proposes Reorganization At Annual Meeting

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE—The president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association, Clyde Robinson, called the first annual meeting of the corporation the most important meeting Pennsylvania DHIA has ever had. Meeting here Wednesday and Thursday, Robinson said no big decisions would be made. The delegates from the regions were asked to take home to local DHIA members what they learned.

Proposed District Layout
Showing Herds Per County As Of September 1988



Total herds: 5,954 in 16 districts = 372 per district. In the new bylaws the range by be plus or minus 15% or from 316 to 428 herds.

And what these delegates learned is that the state DHIA proposes to reorganize to change the membership structure. They want to replace the federated system with a direct membership system. This means that the 56 separate local associations, the five district associations and the one state association would be replaced by a single statewide association with 6,000 members.

In addition, DHIA supervisors would change from local association employees to state association employees as local associations would give up the responsibility for field service operations.

But don't think local directors would be out of a job. With the new proposal they would become a local committee with the responsibility to communicate local members' concerns to the state directors, help develop local leadership, conduct local annual banquet, promote DHIA services to non-members and help educate members about using their records.

General Manager Dick Barth emphasised the special need for ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures prices closed mixed today with settlements from 3/4 cent higher to 3/4 cent lower. Pressure in the front three options was attributed to the posting of heavy delivery notices today, totalling 6.6 million bushels coupled with a slack near term export outlook. Further pressure was linked to an increase in overnight sales with the market opening under pressure from scattered midwest protection of 1 to 2 cents. New crop months closed stronger on bear spreading. The ability of corn to hold in a 2 cent range while beans were plunging impressed many traders. March closed today at $2.71-3/4 after trading from a low of $2.70-1/2 to a high of $2.72-1/4.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures prices erased yesterday's gains and dropped from 10-1/2 to 12-1/2 cents on the old crop months while the deferreds lost from 6 to 7 cents. Session long pressure was linked to the posting of heavy delivery notices this morning along with a weaker CIF basis. Long liquidation was triggered after beans failed to respond to stronger wheat prices. March closed 12 cents lower at $7.50-1/2 while November lost only 6-3/4 cents at $7.31-1/4.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures added 2-3/4 to 4 cents to yesterday's gains on buying linked to news this morning that the USSR was bidding on 500,000 Metric tonnes of export bonus. Further strength was tied to news late yesterday of export bonus targeting of 1 million metric tonnes to Iraq. Ideas that China may soon submit a bid for part of its 2.0 MMT offered support along with dry weather concerns in parts of the hard red regions. Some selling was featured on spillover from sharply lower soybeans and heavier than expected delivery notices.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live and feeder cattle ended today's session lower as widespread long liquidation coupled with the establishment of new short positions plunged prices. Ideas that cash fundamentals

Inquiry for the limited offerings of nest run and graded loose eggs was fair to fairly good and trading was at premium terms. Supplies were generally balanced. Breakers continued to cautiously purchase shell eggs as needed only at steady to higher prices. Live supplies of spent hens were adequate and most processors planned reduced schedules due in part to reduced buyer interest.

Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged to higher at 58-66 cents. Slaughter schedules were moderately heavy. Live supplies were moderate with weights mostly desirable. OPINION

Do Likewise

The American Heritage Trust Act would establish a $25-$30 billion trust fund for acquisition of private lands by federal, state and local government agencies. Within five years, $1 billion per year in interest accruing from the fund would be spent for land acquisition. Appropriation would be automatic, requiring no additional congressional action.

Jim Hess, Vice President of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association thinks the following should be of concern to all members. And we think it should be of concern to everyone in the agricultural community.

The American Heritage Trust Act would create a huge, new, off-budget spending program outside the regular appropriations process. Last year, the office of Management and Budget estimated that this legislation would increase annual federal outlays $1.2 billion by fiscal year 1990.

Large-scale land acquisitions resulting from this legislation could impact local communities by transferring large amounts of land from private to public ownership. Government land acquisition on this large scale would also increase property tax burdens on remaining landowners, especially in areas which already have a high percentage of public lands.

Another concern is that there is no provision in the legislation which requires that lands be purchased from willing sellers. For this reason, landowners fear that this legislation could result in widespread taking of agricultural land by federal, state and local government agencies.

Hess urges members of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association to contact their Congressman as soon as possible and express opposition to the American Heritage Trust Act and ask that he not cosponsor the legislation. And we urge everyone in the Ag Community to do likewise.

To Check Pastures

With March arriving and moderating temperature, our thoughts quicken to early spring pastures. We need to be concerned with pastures and exercise lots along rural roads for discarded junk. Unfortunately, people still throw bags of waste from their cars into nearby fields. Some of the materials may be poisonous to livestock. Every producer should remove these materials before starting to graze. Also, in hay field the materials should be removed before growth begins. Bottles and tin cans will damage equipment and be a threat to the livestock eating the hay. Be sure your animals are not poisoned through someone's carelessness.

To Be Aware Of Safe Drinking Water

A private water supply is just that -- private. The quality of your water supply is the responsibility of the homeowner or farmer, according to Mitchell Woodward, Nutrient Management Agent. State laws do not require testing and regulatory agencies do not monitor the quality of private supplies. Therefore, the only way you, as a water supply owner, can be certain that the water is safe to drink is to have the water tested periodically.

*WHAT SHOULD WATER BE TESTED FOR?

A comprehensive water analysis can be very costly. The following tests can determine the most common water quality concerns.

BACTERIA: A test for total coliform bacteria can determine contamination from septic tanks or manure.

NITRATES: Excessive levels of nitrates can be harmful to human infants and some animals, although the occurrence of this is rare. A level of 10 ppm nitrate nitrogen has been set for humans, 100 ppm for livestock.

pH: Water with a pH less than 6.5 or greater than 8.0 can cause problems in plumbing. Corrosion shortens the life of the pipe and can introduce dissolved metals into the water that can stain fixtures and pose a poisonous health hazard.

To assure that a well supply is safe, it should be tested for bacteria and nitrate at least once a year, preferably during wet spells. Only after accurate testing can a decision be made on treatment equipment.

To Plan Location For Tobacco Planting

We have been saying for years that animal and poultry manure is an excellent fertilizer. It still is... but not for tobacco. Research shows us that animal manure, particularly dairy, increases the chlorine content of the tobacco; this chlorine content reduced the "burn" quality of the tobacco, and buyers frown on that.

Locate the area that you plan to transplant your tobacco, and be sure NOT to apply any manure to that area this year.

We suggest that a soil test be taken as an indicator of your present nutrient level. Then apply fertilizer at the recommended rates. The fertility program, recommended by Research Agronomists, for a 2,000-pound tobacco crop, should consist of 80 pounds of nitrogen, 35 pounds of phosphorus (P_2O_5) and 165 pounds of potash from either sulfate of potash or potassium nitrate. This fertility program will increase quality and reduce buyer resistance.

To Prune Fruit Trees

Whether you have a few or several hundred fruit trees, orchard pruning need not be delayed until spring. It may be started in colder weather. But it is a good practice to work on the hardiest trees first.

Early pruning can involve some problems from winter injury, but in many cases an early start will be necessary to complete pruning of large orchards before spring. By confining early work to the older, hardier trees, fruit growers keep injury to a minimum.

Apple and pear trees are the hardiest of the fruits, with plums and sour cherries next in order. Because peach and sweet cherries are most tender, delay their pruning, particularly the younger trees, until late March.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor:

The recent article by Everett Newswanger - Animal Rights Vol. 34 No 14, Sat., Feb. 18 was excellent and thoroughly reported. It ended with a positive and work-together note.

I am a N.J. Mini-Horse Farm owner with relatives in the dairy business in Upstate N.Y. Fortunately my husband and I enjoy reading about the farm industry in LF. It helps us to appreciate all farmers, their hard work vs. little rate of return. Thank you for putting the food on our table.

The point I would like to make regarding this article is an objective one from a non-farmer. The issue is definitely animal welfare and this should be kept clear to the animal welfare activists out there.

As farmers you don't have the time to get involved with all these seemingly petty issues. Who has enough time in one day. So if you don't have time to beat them, join them.

My advice is DON'T BE NEGATIVE working with an attitude against the animal groups. Okay, yes some are overly fanati-

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE REAL PRISONER

March 5, 1989

Background Scripture:
Philemon
Devotional Reading:
I Corinthians 13

"A weak letter" is the way in which I have heard some people describe Paul's letter to Philemon. "Weak," because although, as he says in this letter, he "could command" Philemon to accept the runaway slave, Onesimus, he makes only an "appeal" to his conscience.

At least one commentator has spectulated that it was Paul's position as a prisoner when he wrote this letter that weakened his resolve to secure Onesimus's freedom. But, if you read this letter carefully, I think you will find that it is not "weak" at all. In fact, it is a very powerful response to a very sticky issue, but the power is more spiritual rather than temporal.

FORMERLY "USELESS"

Just note all the ways in which Paul uses this spiritual power. He reminds Philemon what a fine Christian he has been up until now: "I thank my God...because I hear of your love and of the faith which you have toward the Lord Jesus..." (Philemon 4,5). Next, he appeals to Philemon "for love's sake," although reminding him "I am bold enough in Christ to command you" (v. 8). Then, he tells Philemon that his former runaway slave has, under Paul's spiritual guidance, lived up to his name. (Onesimus means "useful," but until Onesimus found Christ, he had been "useless" to Philemon). As he sends the slave back to Philemon, he is sending "my very heart" (v. 12). He points out that he could very well have kept Onesimus with him, but that his purpose was to pursuade Philemon to do the right thing, not by "compulsion, but of your own free will" (v. 14).

NO LONGER A SLAVE

Paul goes on to present the runaway slave "as a beloved brother" now that Onesimus has become a Christian. Philemon is reminded of his partnership with Paul and he now asks him to receive the runaway slave "as you would receive me" (v. 17). The Apostle also promises to make good on anything Onesimus might owe his master. Although he reminds Philemon that actually he owes something to Paul. Writing in his own hand, Paul says: "Yes, brother, I want some benefit from you in the Lord. Refresh my heart in Christ." Confident that Philemon will do even more than he asks, Paul closes by saying that he will be visiting Philemon soon!

Paul may have written this from behind bars, but his position was not one of weakness. Paul, the "prisoner for Christ," writes to free his friend Philemon from his own spiritual imprisonment.

Now entering our seventh season, here are some remarks we have most commonly heard over the years

1) Hydroseeding is a time saving procedure
2) Forry's method of hydroseeding is far ahead of the field
3) Their 3-10-30 fluid fertilizer gives me my total plant food need for the first year
4) I have quicker starts hydroseeding than my old conventional way
5) I like the one-call operation

Make mine W-L Alfalfa year after year.

"Excellent germination, top yields, and the stems are fine, which makes a big difference in the cows' eating. Seems like we've always been with W-L, and we've always been well satisfied. Why, if it ain't broke, don't fix it."

would begin to soften near term pressured along with expectations of waning Japanese interest. Additional selling was generated by thoughts that the market had reached near term tops with expectations for the spot contract to retrace to $ 76.95. Support early in the day was generated by active fed cattle sales at higher prices yesterday. Feeders closed lower from 10 to 30 points mainly on spillover from 20 to 78 point losses in live cattle.

CME FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT PRICE: 02/27/89 -$83.46 02/24/89 -$83.60.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash -steady to weak futures-steady to lower.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed higher from 20 to 65 points today in heavy volume with buying throughout the day attributed to strong technicals. Further support was in response to the unwinding of cattle/hog spreads along with the establishment of new hog/cattle spreads. Ideas that prices had once again reached a near term bottom in addition to higher noon wholesale pork values underpinned. Spillover and short covering closed bellies higher from 20 to 50 points.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady to firm futures - steady to higher.

PAFC Announces Resignation Of Executive Director

HARRISBURG — The Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives (PAFC) has accepted the resignation of Kathy Gill as executive director, according to President Robert M. Dever.

Dever noted that Gill had served as PAFC executive director for four years. She was the first full-time director for the cooperative trade association since the '60s.

Gill resigned to move to the Seattle area, where she joined her husband, Dan Plinski. In late 1988, Plinski accepted a new position with Mazza Cheese Co., Orting, WA. Gill plans to continue working with agricultural cooperatives, communications and leadership development as a consultant.

Prior to joining PAFC, Gill worked for four years as communications manager for Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative, Southampton, PA (now Atlantic Dairy Cooperative) and eight months in the press office of the Pennsylvania Agriculture Department.

"I have truly enjoyed my time in Pennsylvania for the past nine years," Gill said. "Saying goodby to the cooperative movement in the Middle Atlantic, to the Northeast dairy industry and to Pennsylvania is not easy. But new challenges await in the Pacific Northwest."

PAFC is currently undergoing reorganization, partially in the wake of Gill's resignation. The Board expects to announce a new director in late March or early April.

The Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives is a trade association representing about 40 agricultural and rural cooperatives operating in the Commonwealth. Its primary purpose is promoting cooperatives and sponsoring educational programs for youth, young farmers, directors and employees.

RCMA Needs 1,200 Order II Members

RCMA, told farmers and officers of farm organizations at a meeting in Harrisburg on Monday.

"If I had my way I would ask Secretary Boyd Wolff to be on the road for four weeks straight telling farmers how important RCMA is. Just how important is $45 million to dairy farmers? That's what we are looking at because if we don't get membership up in those counties, Order II may just have to kiss RCMA goodbye," said Anna.

RCMA has been more organized in the Order I area than in Order II and has been very successful collecting money for dairy farmers in Order I because handlers accept RCMA. Fifty million dollars has been collected since 1987 and $45 million has been distributed to RCMA members in the northeast area.

"Farmers are becoming complacent," said Bill Zuber, president of the Upstate Milk Cooperative. "But they shouldn't be. The Minnesota-Wisconsin price dropped 37 cents last month. The cheese price dropped 14 cents. But farmers don't get excited until the milk check comes and then they get mad. But then it may be too late," said Zuber.

"Come September 1, when the drought relief program expires, milk prices will take a $2 nose dive," added Zuber.

RCMA represents 16 cooperatives in Pennsylvania with a total of 3,460 members. Individual contracts total 926 for a total state membership of 4,386. RCMA has been very successful in its membership drive in the Northwest corner. Erie, Crawford, and Warren counties are nearly 100 percent signed up.

But in the Order II areas membership is nearer 80 percent and that is unacceptable for RCMA to be effective in its bargaining efforts.

A Balancing Act

The percentage of the premium paid to all RCMA members is unbalanced because New York and Pennsylvania as a whole contribute less compared to the New England States, according to Zuber.

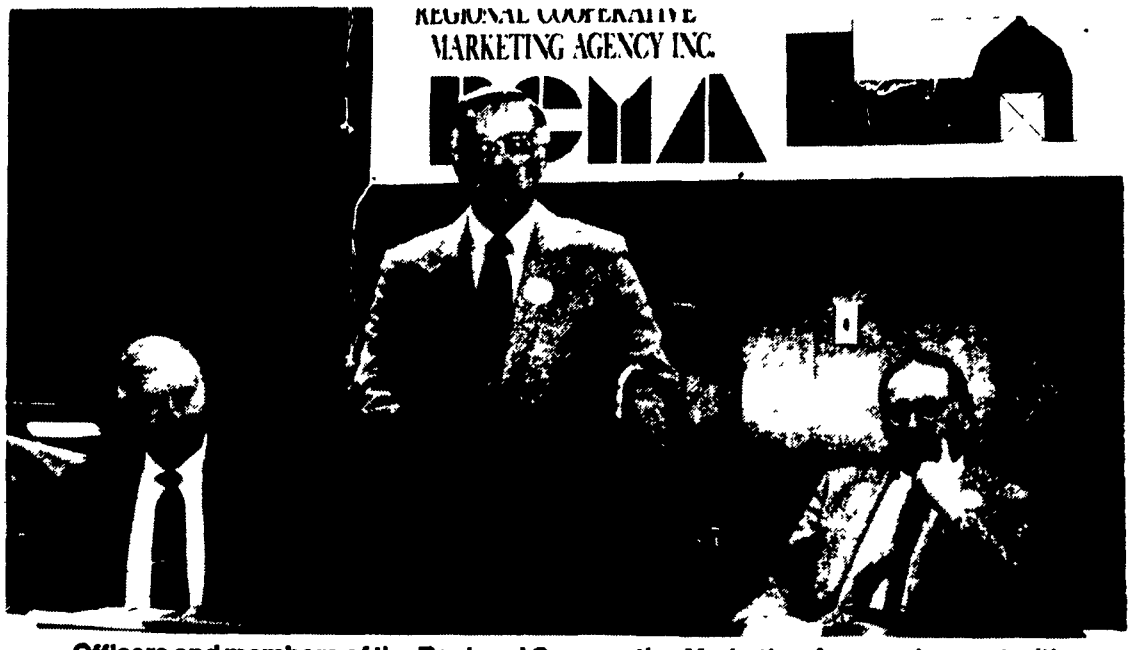
The imbalance in the membership in the Order I and II areas is causing an imbalance in the dispensing of funds. Money collected from handlers in the New England area is also paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers and that money is paid by consumers in Boston.

"The cash flow needs to be brought closer to balance through increased membership," said Anna.

"Increased membership means increased income from $1.2 million to $1.5 million. That would be an additional $.10/CWT for dairy farmers from Maine to Somerset County (Pennsylvania)," said Anna. "It's to every producers' benefit to see that membership is increased. And Ray, Dave and I cannot do that job. We need the help of all members to get out there and tell their neighbors what RCMA has done for them."

RCMA Benefits All Farmers

Anna and Zuber agreed that farmers have become complacent. The milk check looks pretty good to most farmers, but they warned that come August 31, the drought relief stops and only RCMA or MACMA members will get an over-order premium.



Officers and members of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, Inc. met with leaders of farm organizations and members of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture on Monday in Harrisburg to discuss their membership drive in the Order II area. Pictured are Bill Zuber, Bob Storch and Don Duncan.

"I detect some apathy among farmers," said Anna. "It is the dairy farmers who run this organization. The staff can only do so much. We need you out there signing up others if we are going to continue to pay premiums."

"In Order II the day of reckoning is going to come," Anna added.

The $45 million paid to members in 16 months happened as a result of RCMA's efforts. Other handlers paid premiums to match RCMA's and that was due in a very large part to RCMA's efforts, also.

"They (handlers) made an attempt to destroy RCMA, but supply got tight and the handlers continued to pay," added Zuber.

RCMA has overcome several obstacles. RCMA has finally worked out an agreement with Hershey chocolate manufacturer. Anna reports Hershey has been invoiced for January milk and payment should be made by March 10.

RCMA is signing-up producers in Order 36, according to Anna, either as individual members or cooperatives. After several meetings in the Johnstown area, RCMA is beginning to receive membership applications from the western portion of the state, according to Anna.

"But we need your help to improve," said Zuber."And I am not convinced that RCMA and Farmland cannot work out their problems. I am encouraged by the continuing dialogue. RCMA needs more participation in Pennsylvania and in New York. RCMA has been beneficial to dairy farmers, but they can't continue to be if dairy farmers don't stick together."

Two years ago it took organizations between three and four months to sign up 500 farmers. With the added staff at RCMA and the better service to members resulting from this growth, members should be able to sign-up the same number of members in three to four weeks according to Anna.

Speaker Says Farmers Have Done Their Part To Guard Environment

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER—The (fertilizer) industry along with farmers have done their part to safeguard the environment. That's the message William Angstadt, Reading Bone Fertilizer, had for the Agri-Business and the Environment Strategies seminar held here on Tuesday. "In Pennsylvania we have done our part in decreasing the use of fertilizer through more efficient and timely application," Angstadt said. "We're doing it without decreasing yields."

Agreeing with Richard Fox, agronomist, Penn State University, an earlier speaker on the program, Angstadt said that the applied fertilizer reduction amounted to an average of 40 percent over the last five to ten years. He said that the idea that fertilizers are being over applied in Pennsylvania is "totally unfounded," though it's not a national trend. Angstadt quoted from a 1988 department of agriculture report from Ohio that stated nitrogon fertilizer applications there were at "record highs." He said we have done this reduction while states around us, such as Ohio, have not learned these lessons.

In addition, both Angstadt and Fox quoted research that shows that livestock feed brought more nitregon onto farms than fertilizer. Only 39 percent of the nitrogon available for crop production comes from commercial fertilizer. The feed coming onto the farm represents 14 times the nutrients brought onto the farm by commercial fertilizer. The bedding from animals supply more nutrients than fertilizers do.

Angstadt also contended that many other sources of nitrates were the cause of pollution in ground water, rivers and the Bay. He listed: animal waste, land applied sewage sludge, nitrogon fixation from legumes, organic matter decomposition, on lot septic systems, acid rain, storm water run-off, and residential lawn and golf course run-off.

"The idea that nutrients from fertilizer are synthetic and therefore bad and nutrients from manure or soybeans are natural and therefore good, is wrong," Angstadt said. "There is no such thing as a good or bad nutrient. The soil, water or the plant can't tell the difference. A nutrient, is a nutrient, is a nutrient," Angstadt said.

Art Benjamin, Hi-Score Plant Food Company, used his childhood experiences to relate to the pollution of the Bay. Both Benjamin and his wife grew up along the Susquehanna River and remember when the river was first closed to swimming. Twelve years ago the Benjamins started marketing a clear, neutral PH, non-corrosive, liquid fertilizer that contains few heavy metals. His product has the approval of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation and is so mild it can be applied to seeds or sprayed on the plant foliage.

As a dramatic demonstration, Benjamin says he sometimes takes a drink of his fertilizer product but it's not high on his list of favorite beverages. He thinks the problem of pollution will get worse and laws will be enacted if the industry doesn't police itself. But he thinks farmers still need to use fertilizer.

The keynote speaker was Dr. Terry Nipp, Director, Water Quality Initiative, National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges. His topic was, Agriculture and the Environment: The undeniable Link.

Nipp said that we have gone through years where the farming community and the environmental community have been at odds and have had high level distrust for each other. The enviornmental community have not always had an understanding of the farm economics or what was needed. Conversely, agriculture did not have a clear grasp of the issues being raised by the environmental community.

"Now, we have come through the years together and have come to a time where we recognize that we share a great part of the same agenda," Nipp said. And he predicted that Congress will enact legislation that will affect this industry, and the best we can hope for is that it will be well directed. He said that the next two years is the time for input from the farming and environmental community.

"People who are drafting this legislation are very open to input right now," Nipp said. "They are intelligent, well- intentioned people but have no background in environment or farming. They are interested to hear from people who are doing 'real world' work. It's the right time to tell them the problems and what we need."

Nipp said that if an enviornmentalist, a farmer and an agribusiness person would go together and tell key appropriations persons the problem and what resources are needed, they could have a dramatic impact on the outcome of the legislation that will be written. "You can have a direct input into the kind of legislation and resources that will be available," Nipp said.

Other speakers included: Thomas Beauduy, Chesapeake Bay Commission; Nancy Bushwick, National Center for Food and Agriculture Policy; Walt Peechatka, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; Paul Swartz, Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation--DER; Dan Desmond, Pennsylvania Energy Office and George Wolff, Lebanon Co. Conservation District.

The event was sponsored by: PennAg Industries, The Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources.

Lancaster County Dairy Day Helps Farmers Get An Edge

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — "The dairy industry belongs to those who survive." With that statement, Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County extension dairy agent began the first of a two-day dairy seminar.

Farmers from around the county listened attentively as speakers discussed how to get an edge in dairy farming. Lawrence D. Muller, Penn State professor of dairy science, shared his knowledge on feeding high-producing herds and Bovine somatotropin; Dr. Lawrence J. Hutchinson, Penn State professor of veterinary science, updated farmers on Johnes and biosecurity; Lawrence W. Specht outlined changes in the sire summaries; and Bruce G. Kreider, multi-county farm-management specialist, showed farmers how to plan for their farms' future profitability.

The future of the dairy industry lies with high-producing cows and how these valuable animals are managed. "About 75 percent of milk production is a result of environment," stated Muller, who was the seminar's lead speaker.

Farmers' actions affect the environment. Of particular concern are rations and what the cow actually eats, especially for high producers who expend a lot of energy in milk production. Farmers would benefit by finetuning rations for high-producing cows.

A dairy cow could lose up to 200 pounds during the first part of her lactation. She is in what experts call a negative energy balance; in other words, she is using more energy than she is taking in. "A cow may lose three to five pounds per day in early lactation," Muller said. "One third of her milk is a result of mobilized tissue."

This weight loss is more pronounced in high producers, who seem to use more of their own energy. The solution is to put more fat in the cow's diet at this time. Fat will improve body condition, could increase milk production four to six pounds per day, lower ketosis, and help enable the cow to breed back more quickly.

Adding fat to the diet helps mostly in cows producing 70 pounds of milk and up, Muller noted. He also stressed that for each Mcal of net energy added from fat 0.1 pound of bypass protein should be included in the diet. For instance, 1.3 pounds of fat, or 3 Mcal, requires 0.3 pounds of added bypass protein.

Types of fat are free fats which include animal (saturated), vegetable (unsaturated), or a blend; whole seeds such as cottonseed or soybeans; and bypass fats.

Another source of energy, according to Muller, is carbohydrates. "About 70 or 80 percent of the ration you feed is probably carbohydrates in one form or another," he commented.

Carbohydrates are categorized as structural or non-structural. non-structural carbohydrates include starches, sugars, and some pectins and are measured as total non-structural carbohydrates (TNC). Structural carbohydrates are measured as NDF and can be measured chemically, ranging from 27 to 30 percent of the ration during early lactation. Approximately three-fourths of the NDF should come from forages, preferably forages with a longer cut to promote cud chewing.

The fermentation rate in the rumen varies depending on the level of TNC. High-moisture shelled corn, with a high level of TNC, ferments very rapidly and should be fed with a readily available protein source to keep the rumen microbes happy.

For high-producing cows, soluble protein is important to the diet because this protein helps promote microbial action. Muller suggests that 20 to 35 percent of total protein intake should be soluble proteins. Obtaining soluble protein is a major concern if the farmer is using dry feeds such as hay, soybean meal, or corn chop. Farmers following this type of ration could include a bit of urea to add soluble protein. "Wet forages are fairly high in soluble protein due to the fermentation process," Muller added.

In addition, as cows produce more, they need more undegradable protein (UPI or by-pass protein); approximately 35 to 40 percent of their total protein should be UPI. Undegradable protein is necessary because it is available to the cow more directly in the lower digestive tract.

Good sources of by-pass protein are brewers and corn distillers grains. Rations based on wet legume or grass silage, corn silage, and high-moisture corn would need extra by-pass protein.

Part of fine-tuning rations involves balancing carbohydrates and proteins, an action often called protein-carbohydrate coupling. Soluble proteins should be fed with starchy carbohydrates such as ground shelled corn to provide for microbial needs. By-pass proteins should be fed with structural carbohydrates such as wet legume or grass or corn silage.

By carefully managing the finer nutrition points in a ration, farmers can keep cows healthy and high producers.

Bovine Somatotropin

Bovine somatotropin has generated much interest by dairy farmers, especially now that the Federal Drug Administration may approve its usage within the next six months to a year.

Among some of the questions farmers are asking include: will its use add to the surplus situation? How will it effect a farm's profitability? Will it benefit large or small producers? What will its effects be on the family farm? and What will its effects be on the quality of milk products?

Dairy Manure Management Symposium Report

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Three Penn State faculty and staff members presented papers at the Dairy Manure Management International Symposium in Syracuse, N.Y., on Feb. 23.

Dr. Les E. Lanyon, associate professor of agronomy, presented a paper titled "Combining 'Art' and Science in Nutrient Management." Phillip T. Durst, Snyder County extension agent, talked about, "Use of a Computer Worksheet in Farm Nutrient Management Planning." Mitchell D. Woodward, Penn State regional agent for the Chesapeake Bay Project, discussed "Controlling Crop Fertilization Costs: Calibrating Manure Application Equipment." The morning session titled "Manure Utilization" was presided over by Dr. Robert E. Graves, Penn State professor of agricultural engineering.

The three-day international symposium focused on dairy manure management practices and their effects on the environment. Those that attended the three-day meeting included dairy farmers, extension agents and faculty, farm managers, state and federal environmental specialists, equipment suppliers, farm credit organizations, and soil and water conservation specialists.

During the general session 26 speakers from the United States, Canada and the Netherlands presented papers. Digester owners and operators and symposium speakers participated in a panel discussion on digesters.

The two featured speakers during the general session, Joop H.A.M. Steenvoorden, hydrologist, at the Institute for Land and Water Resource Management, the Netherlands, spoke on "Manure Management and Regulations in the Netherlands" and "Nitrogen Cycling in Manure and Soils."

Dr. James S. Moore, professor of agricultural engineering Oregon State University spoke on "Dairy Manure Solid Separation" and the "Practice of Flushing Freestall Alleys."

The symposium was sponsored in part by the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service, an activity of the Cooperative Extension Land Grant Universities and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Helps Farmers Get An Edge

to these questions," Muller admitted. "I do predict it will cause management changes."

In an effort to answer some of the questions, Muller started with a description of BST.

A naturally occurring hormone, BST is found in all dairy cows. It is not used to stimulate growth, so it should not be called "bovine growth hormone." It does, however, divert energy from feed to milk production. "Most of the high-producing cows have more BST in their system (than lower producers)," said Muller.

BST can't be fed because it will be digested as a protein. It doesn't get into a cow's milk, so there's little chance that a person would drink it, but even if they should, their body would treat it like a protein.

A cow's milk production goes up when BST is introduced. According to recent studies, when administered to a cow between 80 and 90 days after calving, there is a 10 to 12 pound increase in milk and a six to eight week maximum feed intake delay. The BST also will increase weight loss because it causes the cow to remain longer in a negative energy balance.

Administering BST at 30 to 40 days post calving is not a good idea, according to Muller. When cows receive BST that early in their lactation, they experience delayed conception, longer delayed intake, less of an increase in milk produced, and more body weight loss.

"If you use BST, you must restore the cow's body reserves during late lactation," Muller stressed. How much condition is restored influences how she will do during her next lactation.

A cow that has received BST should be treated similarly to any other high producer. Among the changes made to her diet would be more fat, especially inert fat, more grain, and perhaps a longer time in the high group.

Muller believes BST will benefit both small and large dairy farms. Small farms can benefit because it requires no excessive capital outlays to increase production. Family farms could benefit because fewer cows would be needed to produce the same amount of milk. With fewer cows, the farmer could manage without additional labor.

"It may help the survival of the small farm if it is well managed and if the farmer adopts good management practices," concluded Muller.

Johne's Disease

At one time farmers didn't worry too much about Johne's. Not any more. Estimates are that five to 20 percent of U.S. cattle have Johne's.

"One of the most common signs is excessive weight loss and diarrhea," said Dr. Lawrence Hutchinson. Another sigh is a predisposition to other illnesses.

Herds that have Johne's have a higher incidence of close contact between heifers and cows, according to a survey Hutchinson cited. The study, conducted a few years ago on 63 Johne's positive herds, also reported a higher incidence of shared feed sweepings and lower incidences of quick separation of calves from dams, culling of suspicious animals, and raising most replacement heifers.

Penn State currently is conducting a field study using a test more sensitive than that presently used by the state. The test picks up low shedders and is giving farmers the option of choosing which cows to cull first. Hutchinson expects the study to be completed by fall.

There will be a meeting at the Lancaster Farm & Home Center on March 28 to update dairy farmers more fully on Johne's Disease. Contact the extension office for more details.

Biosecurity

One way to combat diseases such as Johne's is to keep it off the farm.

In his second presentation, Hutchinson described a biosecurity program being developed for dairy farmers. The program, Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Biosecurity, involves seven steps:

1. Control new arrivals—When purchasing cows, stay away from lactating cows that have to be milked immediately, Hutchinson advised. "Buy bred heifers, dry cows, or springing heifers, but not too springing," he said. These animals can be separated from the herd.

New animals should be isolated for 21 days by which time any disease she might have could be discovered. During isolation she should be tested for all diseases the farmer is controlling on his farm such as Johne's, strep ag mastitis, leukosis, or BVD. In addition she could be vaccinated at this time.

Should it be necessary to purchase a lactating cow, Hutchinson advises putting her in a stall at the end of the barn or in a separate pen. She should be the last cow milked to keep her from infecting other members of the herd.

2. Control farm traffic—Prevent wild birds access to the barn. Starlings, crows, and pigeons can carry disease from farm to farm by stepping in manure then feed bunks or by carrying the viruses internally.

Rodent, dogs, and cats carry disease as well. Roaming animals should be kept away from cows as much as possible.

Lancaster County 200-Year-Old Farms Honored

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — Nearly 6,000 years of farming in Lancaster County were celebrated by honoring those families responsible for that achievement at special ceremonies Wednesday evening at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The Lancaster County Conservation District and the U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service sponsored the evening to honor those farms in the same family for 200 years or more. Twenty-seven Lancaster County farms received the honorable distinction of being a bicentennial farm.

Two farms in the county have the unique distinction of being the two of the oldest in the entire Commonwealth and have been in the same family for 271 years. The John and Ruth Miller farm on Farmingdale Road in Lancaster and the Zimmerman farm in East Earl owned by Harry and Elizabeth Zimmerman have been farmed by the same family since 1717.

"I want you to realize that this distinction is hard to duplicate anywhere else in the United States," said Aaron Stauffer, chairman of the Lancaster County Conservation District.

A total of 95 farms were recognized as part of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Century Farm Program. Each farm owner received a certificate signed by the former U.S.D.A. Secretary of Agriculture, Richard E. Lyng, and large signs to be displayed outdoors identifying each farm.

"Keeping a farm in the same family says three things to me. You are dedicated. You are successful and you love the soil and appreciate the God-given land you have," said Jay Irwin, county cooperative extension head.

"I am tired of hearing all these doom-dayers say we will not have any farms in this county by the year 2020. They are wrong and you people are going to help me prove they are wrong," said Irwin.

Lancaster is the number one county in the United States for non-irrigated production, county commissioner James Huber told the audience. That disticintion he hopes will help bicentennial farms celebrate their second bicentennial birthday in the future.

According to Irwin, the American farmer feeds 116 people. That includes 86 in the states and 30 abroad. In 1960 each American farmer produced enough food for 40 people. The Lancaster County farmer contributes a great deal to that heritage. In Lancaster county alone enough milk is produced to feed four million people every year. Lancaster County produces enough eggs to feed nine million and enough broilers to feed four million. And the county farmers and related industries accomplish this with only 400,000 in population.

Harry and Elizabeth Zimmerman (center) of East Earl recieve congratulations from Lancaster County Conservation District Chairman Aaron Stauffer (left) and Administrator Robert Gregory (right). The Zimmermans' farm is one of the oldest in the county and in the state to hold the disticintion of being farmed for 271 years by the same family.

"Lancaster County's farmers feed the East Coast," praised Irwin. "I know we don't do it without some concerns. Water quality is a concern. I believe if we all work together as we do now, we will be here in the year 2020 and beyond."

the local committee to communicate both to the state directors and back to the local members."These functions need serious attention and cannot be addressed well by hired staff," Barth said.

Another point presented during a panel discussion was that under the new system each individual member would have voting privileges in the state organization. Under the present system, local members have no control over state board decesions. The 18 state directors, two steps removed from local voting, have control over all state business.

Since the program was designed for large periods of discussion about the reorganization proposal, the panel members served as a focal point for imput. These panel members were: Robinson; Barth; Bill Jackson, chair, reorganization task force; Frank Orner, chair, policy committee; Bill Itle, treasurer and Bob Kendig, chair, planning committee.

If the proposal is accepted by the membership, the five present district associations would be replaced by 16 membership districts. They are proposed as follows: District 1, Erie, Crawford and Mercer counties; District 2, Lawrence, Butler, Beaver, Allegheny, Westmoreland, Washington, Green and Fayette counties; District 3, Venango, Clarion, Jefferson, Clearfield, Armstrong, Indiana, Cambria and Blair counties; District 4, Somerset, Bedford and Fulton counties; District 5, Warren, Forest, McKean, Elk, Cameron, Potter, Tioga, and Lycoming counties; District 6, Clinton, Centre, Union, Northumberland, Montour and Columbia counties.

District 7, Huntingdon, and Franklin counties; District 8, Mifflin, Snyder, Juniata and Perry counties; District 9, Dauphin, Cumberland, Adams and York counties; District 10, Bradford and Sullivan counties; District 11, Susquehanna, Wayne, Wyoming, Lackawanna, Luzerne,Pike, Monroe, Carbon, and Schuylkill counties.

District 12, Berks and Lebanon counties; District 13, Northampton, Lehigh, Bucks, Montgomery, Chester, Delaware and Philadelphia counties; District 14, Approximatgely the one-third of Lancaster County membership north of route 30 and west of route 501; District 15, Approximately the one-third of Lancaster County membership north of route 30 and east of route 501 and District 16, Approximately the one-third of Lancaster County membership south of route 30.

Initially, under the new plan, nothing would change for the present field supervisors except that the State association would start to pay their salaries instead of the local associations. Later the benefits could be increased because of the larger number of persons on the one payroll. Management and state officers and directors emphasized that no present supervisor would take a cut in pay over the reorganization.

Questions from the floor expressed the fear that new plan would cost more and that supervisors would not be compensated properly.

The organization plans to take the proposal to the local members during the coming years. After these local meetings, a referendum ballot will go to each member in October. "We don't want to move ahead with this if the membership doesn't want it," Robinson said. "But on the other hand, we want to understand why we think this is the way to go."

In his manager's report Barth said that new services introduced last year include a young sire analysis report for studs and members, the somatic cell management report, ARIS on-line computer service and sample truck operations. "We have received many favorable comments about these innovations," Barth said. "But the primary benefit is in their value to you."

Treasurer Idle, along with James Garrity, director of finance, presented the financial report that included only nine months' activity since the association's fiscal year was changed in 1988. In general, revenues have increased approximately two percent while expenses decreased by about three percent. "We went from a deficit in 1987 to a margin of $38,000 in the nine months of 1988," Garrity said. "This is in the face of decreasing cow numbers being processed. Our revenues were approximately $31,000 less than anticipated but our expenses were also less than budgeted by almost $70,000,"

At the Wednesday evening banquet, William Heald was honored for his work as an interim general manager; Wayne Harpster and Wilber Burkholder were honored for their years as directors, and Rod Smith was honored as an employee that contributed greatly to member profit because of his computer programs for the somatic cell program.

Dr. Lamartine Hood, dean, PSU College of Agriculture, said at the opening scession on Thursday morning that a memorandum of understanding between the State DHIA and the College of Agriculture was nearly finished. He said the university's roll now has less to do with management procedures and concentrates more on educational efforts. "This memorandum is basically a formal document that reiterates what has been the relationship in the past," Hood said. "We reaffirm the close relationship between DHIA and the University."

Egg Producers Seek Market Changes

number of eggs entering the fresh market and 65 percent though the joint effort should include producer funding for consumer education, promotion, and advertising.

Most producers, 62 percent, were in favor of a national joint effort, but 24 percent said they weren't sure if they wanted that—many wanted more details before answering.

Eighty percent of the respondents felt the current situation is very urgent.

"This survey has gotten national attention," stated Al Wenger, a national egg industry leader. "The results have startled the industry. They found out that producers did want something done (about the situation)."

The survey results were presented before assorted industry leaders, including the AEB, in Chicago, and the AEB has voted to make the 2½ -cent per case checkoff mandatory instead of voluntary. The Board also is attempting to get that sum raised to 5 cents per case. The monies would be used toward promotion and education.

The results also were presented before the United Egg Producers, which is composed of five regional cooperatives. This group decided to take the results to the regional level and develop some concrete proposals for promotion and marketing.

"The Northeast Regional Egg Producers just met, and they support our efforts as well as the second survey we are preparing," reported Wenger.

The second survey, which is being developed now, will ask producers more specifically what measures they are willing to support and who they would like handling these measures.

"The bottom line is that producers here, including myself, can make a difference," said Wenger. "We made a big difference nationally; we got people moving."

Wenger urged producers to continue their individual efforts in changing the egg market.

Record Numbers Come Out For Convention Despite Snow

Maryland Correspondent

QUEENE ANNE CO., MD — The 1989 Maryland State Holstein Convention will be long remembered by Holstein breeders as a predicted blizzard storm almost altered their plans. Not since 1978 did a host county have to deal with such a problem. Despite the snowfall, more than 120 Holstein breeders came from across the state to attend the business meeting held at the Yacht Club on Kent Island. As hosts for this years' 25th annual convention, Queen Anne County, planned to "Make the Shore Shine in 1989." Snow was not part of their plans. But as one Western Shore farmer remarked, he certainly was delighted that snow was provided to make him feel right at home!

President Bill Allen conducted the business meeting and the various committees gave their reports.

Maryland's Junior program continues to grow in many directions with membership up to 331 on paper and 85 active members. They have represented Maryland with Jr. All-American nominations from Matt Hoff; Chip, Kelli, and Jami Savage; Crystal, Gaylene and Clay Smith. Officers for this year are Shane Schwartzbeck, president; Matt Iager, vice president; Susan Kelly, secretary; Jack Kahler, treasurer; and Donna Johnson, representative. Christopher and Kelli Savage each received a $100 award from the Patrick Hoff Memorial Scholarship for their first-place Junior Record Books. In the senior division, the prize went to Charles Ehrhardt and Vivian Stottlemyer. They each placed first and received $500 from the Maryland Scholarship Fund. The overall trophy winner was Jack Kahler. They were recognized at the banquet later that night where they received their awards. Other scholarship winners were Robert Cooksey, Michael Boone, Kris Eckard, Dean Tyson, Kathy Johnson, James Lenhart and Shawn Nordhoff. These students received $500 from the Maryland Holstein Association Scholarship Fund for their college education.

Maryland Breeders continue to breed outstanding herds as was evident in their show results this past year. They placed second in the State Herd class at the Eastern National All-American. Many of their All-Maryland animals were placed in nomination for All-American.

The 1991 Futurity continues to draw support from the state as well as outside as there were four more out-of-state entries. The purse has been increased to $4,500 with the first-place winner to now receive $800.

There were 14 new Maryland Gold Medal Dams assigned this year. Coldsprings Farm had the most with four, Donald Wilcom and Jason and Donna Myers each had two.

Maryland has placed Marlin Hoff's name in nomination for director to the National Holstein Association. Many of the states on the east coast have sent their support.

The cows with the highest milk production went as follows: 2-year old: Juniors, Brian Ehrhardt; Seniors, Robert Meredith. 3-year old: Juniors, Shane Schwartzbeck; Seniors, My Ladys Manor. 4-year old: Juniors, Shane Schwartzbeck; Seniors, My Ladys Manor. 5-year old: Juniors, Jenell Rinehart; Seniors, Marlin Hoff. Aged: Juniors, Matthew Hoff; Seniors, Harmony Farm. Lifetime: Juniors, Matthew Hoff.

The cow with the highest protein record was in Paul Yoder's herd; she had 1057p. Oren Bender had the top cow with the highest lifetime milk record with 252,460m. The highest lifetime fat production record went to Md-Sunset View Farm with 9,780f. The highest herd in the state for milk production on 90 cows or less went to Philip Beachy on 45 cows 23,615m 3.52% 830f. The milk production award for the herd with more than 90 cows, went to Mark Clark on 114 cows 21,969m 3.78% 830f.

C. Ren Eemsberg was the top winner for the progressive breeder registry. They have met the requirements for 26 years. They were followed by Maple Lawn Farm, Inc., 22 years; Clovertop Farm Inc., 12 years; Marlin Hoff, 8 years; Carl Bender, 6 years; Donald Wilcom, 6 years; Roger and Jeff Myers, 5 years; Joe Schwartzbeck, 5 years; University of Maryland, 4 years; My Ladys Manor Farm Inc., 3 years; Jason and Donna Myers, 2 years; and Curtis Day, with his first year.

Jenks Britt from Russellville, KY was the guest speaker for the afternoon session. He is a veterinarian whose primary interest is herd mastitis control. About 75 percent of his practice deals with dairy herds of which he works in embryo transfer, reproductive health management, nutrition and calf and heifer health as well. Having been raised on a dairy farm and exposed through 4-H and judging teams, Britt has seen various herd management practices. His topic, "The Future of Your Herd's Health - It'll All be Different - It'll All be the Same" reflected some of those management practices. Every item is important when looking at the whole picture, from balancing rations to calf raising to reading the DHIA report he commented. Some things you can change and control, others must be tested and reevaluated. It is a constant changing process with each farm having different problems yet it all comes down to the same result of good health management he said. His southern drawl and sharp wit added humor to his dicussion.

The evening's banquet was held at the spacious lobby at the Queen Anne's County High School with a record number in attendance. More than 510 Holstein breeders and friends attended a traditional Eastern Shore feast. It included fried oysters, crabcakes, open pit barbequed beef and two whole pigs complete with two plates. Representatives from Maryland Farm Bureau, the Maryland Beef Council, Secretary of Agriculture's Office and various other agricultural guests were on hand. Production Awards and the 4-H State Judging Teams were recognized.

The Maryland Junior Holstein Association honored Jack Kahler for being the overall winner in the record book keeping contest.

The Maryland Holstein Association presented awards to whose cows or herds that had outstanding production in terms of pounds of milk, fat, or protein. Some of those recognized were, from left, Gus Schwartzbeck, Karl Bender, Shane Schwartzbeck, Matt Hoff, Doug King, and Marlin Hoff.

Several members of the Junior Holstein Association received scholarships. Among them were, from left, Fred Schrader, Karen Knutsen, Norma Boon, and Susan Kelly.

She has four generations of more than 23,000 pounds of milk, with her top record standing at 365 days 25,150m 4.1% 1039f. Bessie has an index of CI +37P +52F +1656M CI$ +151 +178 CTPI +819. Marlin Hoff from New Windsor bought this Pintail Point consignment.

The last $4,000 animal was the Browndale Sir Christopher daughter that just classified EX-90 consigned by the Chestnut Lane Farm in Earlville. She brought $4,200. Her index stands at CI +7P +21F +489M CI$ +49 +61 CTPI +559. She produced as a 2-year-old 24,840m 3.8% 936f in 365 days. Her dam, Chestnuts Boots Ex,91-EEVE, was Junior All-Maryland at 3 and 4 years of age and reserve junior All-American as a senior calf and as a senior 2-year-old.

There were 12 animals that sold in the $3,000 bracket with the average of the 67 head standing at $2,590 and the total of the sale at $176,090. This was up from last year which averaged $2,238 on 62 head. Denny Remsburg was the auctioneer with Norman Hill reading the pedigrees. The Sale was hosted by the Queen Anne Holstein Association with Billy Kimlbes, Chairman. Sale Manager was the Remsburg Sale Service. Six red Holstein Calves sold which also was a record.

Preservation Meeting Set

LANCASTER — The new State farmland preservation program and the $100 million bond issue that accompanies it will be discussed by Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff and Senator Noah Wenger at the monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board on Friday, March 10, at 10:00 a.m. The discussion will take place in Room 602 of the Lancaster County Courthouse, 50 North Duke Street, Lancaster.

Mr. Wolff and Mr. Wenger will discuss how the $100 million in bonds will be distributed, which was approved by a Statewide referendum in November 1987. Lancaster County landowners whose farms are located in an Agricultural Preserve Area or Agricultural Security Area will be eligible to receive a portion of those funds in exchange for preserving their farm with a deed restriction (also called a conservation easement). Landowners are not required to place a deed restriction on their farm if they do not wish to. However, landowners who are located in an Agricultural Preserve Area and would like to have their farm withdrawn should contact the Agricultural Preserve Board before mid-August 1989.

Landowners who are not interested in receiving funds or placing a deed restriction on the farm may instead wish to participate in an Agricultural Security Area.

For more information, please contact Karen M. Weiss, Acting Director of the Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Baord, at (717) 299-8355, 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

cell.

Although, this may be more than most farmers want to know about plant breeding and genetic altering, it can help the crop farmer to appreciate the years behind the successes as the crop farmer enjoys the financial benefits from these disease, pest and herbicide resistant plants.

In tomatoes researchers have introduced a gene which will kill the horn worm on tomatoes. Field trials have been very successful showing a dramatic improvement in yield in the genetically altered plants and the non-altered plants. Biotechnologist have had similar success in controlling the corn borer and tobacco mosaic in tomatoes.

Monsanto researchers are presently working on Roundup ® tolerant plants. Developing a Roundup® tolerant plant will allow the farmer to spray the herbicide on plants without damage to the crop. Canola trials in Canada last year in a highly weed infested area showed great progress and also in tomatoe field trials. However, there is some yield reduction and delayed maturity. Needs more work but technolgists are encouraged by the results.

Field trials will begin soon on genetically engineered soybeans tolerant to Roundup®. According to Muench, the herbicide did not seem to have any effect on the soybean yield or maturity date in the greenhouse trials. But he noted the real test is in the field.

Soybean, cotton, potatoes, tomatoes, tobacco, alfalfa, flax, cabbage and lettuce are just a few of the crop successfully altered. Muench emphasized that Monsanto is not in the seed business and it does not want to be. The genes will be licensed to seed companies and it will be up to the seed companies to do what they do best.

Muench said there will not be a lack of regulation on these biotechnological products. He added that he feels there should be regulation, but it should be on the basis of good science and not on the basis of emotion.

Benefits of these biotech advancements are far reaching. For the farmer it will mean more efficient harvesting. On a global scale it will mean new solutions to some old problems and greater productivity.

Waving The Red Flag

Dr. William Uhrig from Purdue University literally waved the red flag at crop producers to signify some danger in the market place. Uhrig encouraged producers to examine very carefully the forward contract prices in the next four to six weeks. Locking them in now could assure them of good prices in some cases.

June of 1988 was the driest in 100 years. Many areas of the country are still suffering a deficit in rainfall. There are predictions of normal rainfall and there has not been two years of back to back drought. Reserves are greatly diminished.

"The biggest danger to farmers is getting caught in the 'greed-hope-fear' cycle," said Uhrig. Holding on to crops in hopes of getting an unprecendeted high price may lead to that the other side of the cycle of selling at a much lower price just to get rid of the crop.

According to Uhrig, previous record prices on the peak futures market were: corn-$4.00; soybeans-$12.90 and wheat-$6.45. On the US Cash Price market: corn-$3.21; soybeans-$7.83 and wheat-$4.09. Uhrig adds to keep these prices in mind when you are holding out for whatever your price might be.

But, also consider that in the western plains states rainfall is way behind what it should be. In the heavy wheat producing areas like Oklahoma and Texas the rain deficit is extremely high and if rain does not come soon, within the next few months, Uhrig predicts there is the potential for wheat to hit $4.40 and $4.50.

Uhrig emphasized the importance of developing a marketing strategy. Uhrig suggests farmers examine the government ASCS program because of the price protection features it offers. The set-aside acreage is lowered to 10 percent and that most farms could afford to set aside some not-so-good land and not be hurt by it.

In looking at the future of corn prices, Uhring point out that the corn crop in 1988 was much greater than originally predicted. The reason it was much better than expected was because of the late rains received in July. And that helped the price to drop also during the harvest period.

Where are prices going? Uhrig predicted some 7.5 million acres will be in corn production for 1989 and will produce some $8 billion bushels of corn for this year. He does not look for the market to hit $2.85 in 1989 unless we have another drought, which predictions have tagged unlikely.

"Think what will happen to prices if we do have a good crop ths year?," said Uhrig as he waved his red flag to his audience. "If you can lock in $2.60 do so. Decent weather will push prices lower by fall. There's a great danger of lower prices this fall."

He added that Russia is in the market now for corn, but that demand will be over by early summer. Uhrig encouraged producers to learn more about forward contracting.

In soybean price predicting, Brazil and Argentina hold the cards. According to several eye witnesses Brazil has an unprecedented huge crop coming on. But on the other hand, Argentina has a disaster on its hands.

"We will have one last rally on the soybean market in spring," said Uhrig. "And you've got to ask yourself is it worth holding on to my beans beyond that."

The big question to be addressed will be what will the United States' acreage be for soybeans in 1989? Uhrig predicts 62 million acres. Average price will be $6.25/bushel and $6 at harvest time.

"I encourage you to think a lot of forward pricing in the next 6-8 weeks," added Uhrig.

The Drought Of 1992-'93

Droughts are cyclical. They occur every 18 to 20 years and result partly from the lunar cycle, according to Uhrig. The changes affect the tides, weather and rainfall. The next one is predicted for 1992 or 1993.

With this fairly high probability of a drought Uhrig suggests:

1. Farmers should not borrow long term money.

2. In the next 3-4 years the carryover will be depleted with higher trends in prices.

Johanna Gives Scholarship To Stoltzfus

MORGANTOWN (Berks) — Duane Stoltzfus, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stoltzfus, was awarded one of the first annual Johanna/Tuscan/Queens Scholarships, established to benefit the children and grandchildren of those dairy farmers who sell their milk directly to Johanna Farms, Tuscan Dairy or Queens Farms.

Ten thousand dollars in scholarships were made available for 1988, in the form of ten one thousand dollar awards. Across the country we have seen a drop in the number of young people majoring in agriculture and related areas, which is a shame, because the job opportunities are good throughout the industry. We hope that this type of program will help encourage high school students to go onto college and explore the dairy industry when deciding on a career.

The applicants were asked to submit an essay addressing the topic "What do you see as the future of the dairy industry in the United States?"

Duane feels that "the dairy farm of the future will have to be more efficient, and with today's research and developments a more economical dairy farm should be possible.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — The top alfalfa growers who participated in the Pennsylvania Alfalfa Growers Program will be recognized and awarded at the National Alflafa Symposium which will be held at the Hershey Convention Center on Tuesday, March 14.

Awards are based on not only hay yield but also crude protein and TDN yield as well. For 1988, the State Champion alfalfa grower goes to Milton Hershey School Farm, Hershey, Dauphin County, for a hay equivalent yield of 9.4 tons per acre and crude protein and TDN yields of 3408 and 10,147 lbs. per acre, respectively. The Reserve State Champion is Kenneth F. Zook, Oley, Berks County, who had a yield of 8.9 tons and CP and TDN yields of 3309 and 10089 pounds.

Regional winners will also be recognized. Milton Hershey School farm was the top grower in the southeastern region. In the central region, Jacob S. Component Pricing Study Debates Protein, SNF Plans

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

FREDERICK, MD — Local dairy farmers' incomes would vary much more under a protein-based multiple component pricing plan than they would under one using "solids-not-fat."

That's one of the main conclusions to be drawn from a study of producer pricing in Federal Order 4 conducted by the order's market administrator's office.

This study, using data collected in March 1988, is a key factor in ongoing efforts to bring some form of multiple component pricing to the order, which governs milk marketing in the Middle Atlantic region. The directors of the Pennmarva Dairymen's Federation are considering whether to pursue a change in the order's traditional component pricing system, which relies only on butterfat content.

Bringing protein or solids-not-fat into the equation would change many of the individual prices dairymen receive for their milk. Under the models used in the federal order study, producers receive higher prices if the protein or solids-not-fat content of their milk exceeds the average for the market as a whole and lower prices if it falls below. However, the amounts are relatively small.

In the case of protein, for example, roughly half the 6,300 or so dairymen whose milk marketings were analyzed in the study would have received prices no more than 10 cents a hundredweight better or worse than the ones they actually got. Roughly 1,200 producers would have experienced price shifts of more than 23 cents.

When solids-not-fat was used, the changes were even less. Roughly two-thirds of the producers would have gotten prices within 10 cents of the ones they actually received. Only a couple hundred would have had price shifts of more than 23 cents.

"The disposition of winners and losers is much tighter because the percentage variation in the solids-not-fat component is less than the percentage variation in the protein component and also the value of the solids-not-fat component is less on a per-pound basis," said James Fraher, an economist for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

Atlantic has been at the forefront of efforts to implement multiple component pricing in Order 4. Pennmarva is studying the issue at Atlantic's request. Although the cooperative markets roughly half the milk in the order, it is seeking the support of its fellow cooperatives in requesting a hearing before the U.S. Department of Agriculture officials who oversee the federal order program.

"We want to go to a hearing on a unified basis," Fraher said.

A spokesman for Pennmarva, which represents the interests of the order's three major cooperatives — Atlantic, Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association and the Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen Inc. — said a committee formed last year has met several times to discuss the issue without reaching a decision.

The pricing schemes used in the March study were modeled after a protein and butterfat pricing plan in effect in the Lake Mead-Great Basin Order in the West, the first multiple component pricing plan in the nationwide federal order system.

That plan is designed to be "revenue neutral," Fraher said; total payments by handlers to producers does not vary from the total under the old butterfat-based system. Moreover, handlers using the milk for Class I, or fluid, sales are not affected. Only buyers of Class II milk for processed dairy products pay more or less based on protein contents.

Both the neutral-revenue and no-Class-I effects are likely to be crucial for the support of local handlers. More than half the milk pooled under Order 4 is used as fluid milk. Much of the remainder goes into Class II products such as yoghurt and ice cream whose yields are less related to protein content than are the yields of products such as cheese.

The relative absence of cheese plants in the order has made it difficult for local advocates of multiple component pricing to find accommodating markets. Currently, a handful of producers supply a cheese plant in Hagerstown, Md., that pays protein premiums. Nationwide, the USDA estimates that 51 percent of all dairymen regulated by federal orders have the opportunity to take advantage of multiple component pricing, according to a recent report by National All-Jersey Inc.

Heifers Needed For Uganda

NEW WINDSOR, MD — Heifer Project International (HPI) is in need of bred dairy heifers to assist needy farmers in the East African nation of Uganda. In 1983 HPI shipped a plane load of heifers to Uganda to start programs there with the Church of Uganda and the YWCA. After farmers, many of them women, had received training they were given one heifer each. The intention was to provide a family cow so that the children of the family would have fresh milk to drink. The general health of the children, particularly in poor families was quite poor, and the goal was to improve health through the improved nutrition made possible with the fresh milk. In addition to providing milk for the recipient family, as offspring matured each farmer was required to pass the offspring on to another needy family that had also received training and had prepared to care for an animal.

To provide care for their family milk cow, each participant had to construct what was called a zero grazing unit. This is simply a small shed and pen for the cow, and a nearby plot of quality forage that could be harvested and brought to the cows. This was a new system of management in this area, since most cattle are simply left to graze on unimproved pasture. This system was found to be far superior, since cattle were not exposed to the ticks and insects of the pasture and nearby brush, they were provided with better quality feeds, and manure and wastes could be collected to fertilize crop fields.

The program was quite successful, with many farmers passing on their first offspring. Unfortunately, civil war began to affect the project area, and the expansion of the program had to be cut. Now that peace has come again, we have found many of the families still passing on offspring as they are available, but there are many, many families that want a family cow. Because of high inflation and extreme poverty caused by the war, very few families can afford to purchase a cow. For this reason, Heifer Project will be sending a plane load of bred Jersey and Holstein heifers in May.

Heifers for this shipment should be from average or better dams (16,000 lbs. for Holsteins, 12,000 lbs. for Jerseys). They should be short-bred, not due to calve before August. They need to be calfhood vaccinated, and from farms that have not been under quarantine for contagious diseases during the last few years. We will gather the animals at the Pa. Holstein Association barn in Middletown, Pa. on May 1. If you have any heifers you could donate for this shipment, or if you could make a partial donation of a heifer, please contact Heifer Project International, P.O. Box 188, New Windsor, MD 21776, or call John Dieterly, 301-635-6161.

State Grange Advances Dairy Policy Proposals

HARRISBURG — In the next several months, proposals will be formulated for the new Farm Bill. The Pennsylvania State Grange Dairy Committee is seeking the opinions of Pennsylvania dairy farmers regarding a proposal that the Grange can support for the dairy section of the new farm bill.

Please indicate your first and second choices by number and send to: Pennsylvania State Grange, 1604 North 2nd Street, Harrisburg, PA 17102.

1. The present program that is designed to reduce government participation in the dairy industry and to allow milk to seek its own value level.

2. An over-order pricing program that allows farmers collectively to set their own price for milk.

3. A mandatory quote program that would call for a limit on production to match market needs; would require a penalty for production over quota; would require a strong support price to keep farm income up. The program would be administered by ASCS.

4. A voluntary program that would pay an incentive to any producer who reduces his production from an established base. The incentive would vary according to the points of reduction up to 7%. The money for the incentive would come from the market or a combination of the market and the government.

5. Another proposal would divide the nation into regions. Supply management programs would be set up within the regions. Each region would have a base production and bases would be established for each farmer within the region. The support price would be 75% of parity that would increase over the next five years. Excess production over base would receive a price of 25% of the support price. The program would be managed by a farmer board through the ASCS committees in each county.

6. Other proposals.

Please forward your first and second choices to the Pennsylvania State Grange office, as well as the county in which you live.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is a 125-year-old family form organization representing 42,000 farm and rural Pennsylvanians.

Farmers Get An Edge

strangers, particularly those who travel from farm to farm. Have visitors such as inseminators, feed salesmen, and veterinarians wear disinfectible rubber boots.

In addition, "keep in mind that if you go to another farm or to an auction, you could be carrying disease," cautioned Hutchinson.

3. Separate groups—Separating cows from heifers and calves cuts down the spread of disease. "Most diseases are spread from the older to younger animals," Hutchinson related.

Pre- and post-weaned calves are particularly susceptible to disease. Pre-weaned calves should be in individual pens away from the other animals such as in hutches. Post-weaned calves should be kept in small groups away from other animals or at the end of the barn.

Other calves should be penned separately from older heifers and the mature cows.

4. Sanitation—The critical areas for sanitation are maternity and pre-weaned calf pens. "The rule for maternity pens is one cow, one use, and clean," said Hutchinson. The same is true for pre-weaned calf pens. If using hutches, the farmer should move them to a different spot after each use, scrape off any manure, and turn it upside down for a time to the sun can disinfect the hutch.

5. Vaccination—All herds should be vaccinated for Ban's lepto, BRSV, IBR, P13, and BVD, according to Hutchinson. All but Bang's are diseases found in Pennsylvania. Cows should be vaccinated for other diseases according to each situation. Some other disease to vaccinate for include E. coli, pasteurella, and pink eye.

Respiratory vaccinations should be administered in October on an annual basis. Lepto should be given to adults and calves six months and older in April on an annual basis.

Worming on pasturing heifers should be done in May, June, and October. "Heifers that are wormed are 50 to 65 days sooner to milking," said Hutchinson.

6. Maintain high disease resistance—Keep disease resistance high by feeding a balanced ration, limiting stress, vaccinating, and providing a well-ventilated environment.

Ventilation cuts down humidity, which provides an atmosphere suitable to repiratory and intestinal organisms.

7. Quality assurance—Be sure to keep the milk free of drugs, Hutchinson cautioned. Treated cows should be identified, label directions should be followed, and if in doubt about a cow's health, the farmer should test her.

Sire evaluation program

Breeding gentically improved cows is important to dairy farmers, and Lawrence Specht discussed genetics and how far the dairy industry has come.

A highlight of his presentation was the description of the new sire evaluation program, Animal Model, which will begin in July.

The new program will list sire PD as sire predicted transmitting ability (PTA) and the cow index as cow PTA. All relatives will be factored into computing PTA. This would include maternal sisters, progeny, dam, and sires.

In addition, adjustments will be made for the merit of mates and repeatability will be changed to reliability. The pedigree contribution will be included in the calculation of reliability, and that number will be five to 20 percent higher than present values for bulls with a small number of daughters.

The base is currently calculated from cows that had their first lactation in 1982. This will change to be calculated from animals born in 1985. The change will cause a drop in sire summaries by about 200 pounds, but will allow 50 percent of the cows to remain positive on cow PTA.

The results of these changes are that sires with many daughters won't change much while sires with fewer daughters may change markedly depending on their relatives' merit and on merit of mates. Some cows may change depending on the merit of their relatives.

Specht offered the following suggestions to improve genetics: 1.test and identify cows, 2. use better AI sires and consider young sires, 3. stay away from "hot shot" bulls that may disappear in a year or two, and 4. be aware of the differing bases for Canadian versus U.S. cattle.

Planning profitability

Bruce Kreider showed attendees a method of planning profitability for their farms. His main message was that farmers should plan before expanding, because often their farm can't afford the expansion, or the profit produced by the expansion won't merit the expansion. He advised anyone thinking of expanding to consult with their extension farm-management agent. These specialists have a Penn State computer program, FINPAK, that can help compute future profitability.

SILO CHUTE
made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out

The chute is constructed in full 7 1/2' sections to minimize the number of joints Connecting joints have a 2 1/2" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

TESTIMONIAL OF AN OWNER

I've had Fiberdome chute for 20 years and it looks as nice as the day it was put up. Silage doesn't freeze on, plenty of light inside and there is no rust! When I put up a new silo it is going to have Fiberdome chute.

cal, but you know how you care for your animals in a humane way. Show them. Join in positively and say "Yes there are some 'SOBS' out their abusing their animals (probably their families too). We'll report it when we see it. Let's have guidelines." There don't have to be changes to affect your farm business, but your positive and correct commonly agreed upon ways of handling farm animals should be put on record to compare against abusive ways.

I think what happens is that we are all really for the same thing but farmers become understandably insulted and defensive to admit a problem as "what do they know, those non-farmers; let them mind their own business."

I think the farmers should be proud that we do have groups that care about alleviating animal abuse agriculturally and domestically. It is to all our best interest that these groups exist. We are not only talking about Bertha the Cow, but your farm Lassie and your children's pets. People who really abuse animals, abuse other people too. Let's define abusive and then get on with our work and be aware.

The issue is to go after the abusers not each other.

Food Supply Safe For All Consumers

"Our nation's food supply is safe for all consumers and an executive summary about the exposure of children to trace levels of pesticide residues on produce is misleading and could cause needless concern among parents," said Dr. John McCarthy, National Agricultural Chemicals Association's (NACA) Vice President for Scientific and Regulatory Affairs.

"The Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC) report, which questions the safety of the food our children consume, was based on theoretical calculations that does not represent real-world experience," McCarthy said.

"Most members of the scientific community familiar with this issue believe that strict regulations and improved usage of agricultural pesticides have made the health risks negligible -- which is the scientific way of saying there is virtually no risk," he added.

"We are concerned that a report of his nature could cause parents to reduce the quantities of fresh fruits and vegetables they feed their children. As parents ourselves, we know the importance of a balanced diet to infants and children and we want parents to continue to provide their children with a variety of foods," said McCarthy. He further notes the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) is conducting a study which will be completed in 1990 on the exposure of children to pesticide residues.

"We are NACA do not expect the NAS study to reveal any health hazards in our food supply because the government already takes children into consideration when it sets pesticide standards," McCarthy said. "NACA supports the study as a part of its program of continued vigilance to ensure the safety of the food supply."

"The chemicals in question have been widely used for more than 25 years, yet the available data show that the incidence of cancers that could be attributed to over-exposure to chemicals in the food supply is not increasing," McCarthy said. "Americans are living longer and healthier lives than ever before. The facts are irrefutable: Our nation's food supply is safe -- for both adults and children."

The National Agricultural Chemicals Association is a non-profit trade organization of manufacturers, formulators and distributors of pest control products employed in agricultural production. NACA's membership is composed of the companies which produce, sell and distribute virtually all of the technical crop protection materials (active ingredients) and a large percentage of the formulated products registered for use in the United States.

ABS To Hold Sale At World Dairy Expo

DEFOREST, WI — American Breeders Service announced today that it will hold its Americana Classic Sale in Madison, Wisconsin, on Thursday, October 5, 1989, in conjunction with the World Dairy Expo.

The sale will be held in the Dane County Memorial Coliseum, beginning in late afternoon. Dr. John J. Sullivan, ABS president, has appointed as sale chairperson Todd C. Charnetzki, ABS manager of dairy product development. Sullivan has also appointed Barbara M. Lee, ABS manager of dairy progeny testing, to head the sale selections committee.

Since the first sale held in 1977, Americana has offered Holstein breeders outstanding milking daughters of the breeds most popular sires. "This year, the Americana will once again offer Holstein daughters that represent a complete view of ABS breeding program results--past, present, and future," Charnetzki says.

"In addition, we are expanding the sale in 1989. This will be an ABS classic and will include exceptional daughters of our most popular Jersey and Guernsey sires. The intent of the Americana is to highlight ABS breeding programs. We've had numerous requests since the 1977 Americana to add these breeds to the sale, and are pleased to announce their inclusion in 1989."

Lee says that this year's sale will likely offer Holstein breeders daughters from 29 H4355 Ryan, 29 H5730 Melwood, 29 H5562 Hilton, 29 H4486 Benefit, 29 H4548 Fancy Paul, 29 H4784 Apollo, 29 H4423 Day Dream, 29 H4570 Centra-Red, and 29 H5925 Rok. She adds that several other ABS sires may be represented in the sale. "It's also safe to say that we will be on the lookout for super daughters of 29 H2851 Valiant, 29 H2960 Sexation, 29 H3064 Jason, and 29 H5100 Gold," says Lee.

The Jersey breed will most likely be represented by daughters from 29 J2793 Top Brass, 29 J2840 Brigadier, 29 J2833 Bernard, 29 J2819 Silver Saint, and others. In the Guernsey breed Lee says she'll be searching for super daughters of 29 G0811 Admiral, 29 G0838 Victory, 29 G0863 Buttermost, 29 G0854 Ideal, and others.

With the addition of the Jersey and Guernsey breeds to the sale lineup, Chartnetzki says that the 1989 Americana will actually be three separate sales within a sale. "We're looking at offering significant numbers of daughters from each of the breeds so that the sale will be well worth the time and travel of breeders from across the country and around the world. The Jersey, Guernsey, and Holstein offspring will be sold in separate segments of the Americana."

Free information about Americana activities, ABS tours, and consignments to the sale will be available beginning April 1, 1989, by calling 1-800-ABS-STUD.

INCOME UP -
EXPENSES WAY DOWN

That is our customers' tax reports.

Live soil receives much N and K and other minerals from the air. They increase tremendously without applying purchased N and K - A God-send. Obeying natural law pays well. And those are better plant food than the conventional purchased ones. Then the livestock become healthy and resist disease because they eat healthy unsprayed crops, which our happy customers received from using only cheap materials to make their soil healthy.

When your son is sick, do you improve his health or hire other help? Unhealthy crops from unhealthy soil cannot resist bugs, disease, fungus like our customer's crops do. Neither can they produce their maximum like our customers' crops - 250 to 300 bu. corn per acre, or 90 bu. soybeans per acre, and 70 bu. on 36 in. rows. Do the Olympians eat junk food and chemicals? Organic customers have excellent crops of potatoes, cantaloupes, peaches, apples, etc. without chemicals. Doesn't it make dollars and sense to spend a little in the spring for prevention rather than a lot later for cure, and then have sick livestock in the bargain? Bugs cannot stand to eat very sweet crops. Our customer's crops have record sugar content (triple the chemical average), and 27% protein hay. The heifers and the rats are larger than formerly. The earthworms have taken over the farm. Butterfat is very high. One said the mastitis went away and the cows are milking like crazy.

LATE FLASH NEWS: Chemical grown apples and cider received a terrible punch on the air news. Huge apple orders were canceled by the wholesalers for super markets. Besides cholesterol, eggs now have samonella poison or disease, which will decrease consumption again. The poisons from the soil also go into the milk and it will be on the black list. Pure food is where the future is, it is high time to change. There is no excuse. Our customers are getting much better crops than their neighbors anyway.

ATTENTION TYPE 609 TOBACCO GROWERS

We have plenty of 609 seed for sale. If you need seed please call and we will mail it to you.

With the terrific progress that we made in the 609 market this year, our feeling is that we need to produce more poundage to meet the incredible demand that we expect to continue for years to come.

We have received good response and enough concern from farmers that we have decided to continue tobacco sales. We need more volume to maintain a good market and attract more tobacco companies that are now aware and have become very interested in our product. It is necessary for large volumes to gain a long term committment from many companies that we would like to have follow our 609 market. Several of these companies are interested in our market ONLY if auction survives!

If you still have tobacco on the farm - old or new we are still here. All the other buyers went home. Give us a call to see what we can do for you.

Ag Committee Chairman Concerned

WASHINGTON, D.C.— Rep. E. (Kika) de la Garza (D-Tex.), Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said Thursday that farmers should take a harder look at purchasing crop insurance this year since the federal government may not be able to afford another drought assistance bill like the one passed in 1988.

De la Garza said that his recent trips to farming areas around the country lead him to fear that drought conditions in some parts of the country are continuing into 1989, portending of another difficult year for agriculture. De la Garza spoke Thursday morning after a special weather briefing for the House Agriculture Committee by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's chief meteorologist.

De la Garza had also raised the specter of continued drought conditions during his opening remarks at the House Agriculture Committee's organizational meeting earlier this month. He warned that it may be an issue "forced upon us again."

But de la Garza, who guided the 1988 drought assistance bill through the House, is concerned that current budgetary pressures will make it extremely difficult to pass special drought assistance legislative in 1989. De la Garza said:

"As farmers prepare for planting this year, their planning decisions should include every possible moisture-saving measure, the utilization of drought-resistant plant varieties, and a serious look at crop insurance.

"Farmers need to keep in mind that their croplands and pastures aren't the only thing that is dry. Federal funds to aid farmers in these situations are drying up as well.

"We realized this last year, and that's why the House-passed version of the drought bill would have required all recipients of drought aid to sign up for crop insurance this year, with some exceptions. (Note: The House-Senate conference agreement sent to the president modified that to require crop insurance for only those who sustained losses greater than 65 percent.)

"My advice to farmers is this: sign up for crop insurance. Given the budget situation, the only thing riskier than betting on the weather is betting the federal government will be able to come to the rescue again."

Only Farm Credit Has Loan Officers Who Were Trained In The Field.

While you were growing up on the farm going to 4-H, FFA, maybe even AG school, do you know what your Farm Credit loan officer was doing?

Same thing.

Not many bankers can say that.

True, they can make loans nine ways to Sunday. But, now your Farm Credit loan officer can, too. Over the last few years our people have gone through extensive training at making every kind of farm loan imaginable. Now a Farm Credit loan officer can give you the lowdown on rates, options and creative financing as well as any city banker can.

And around here, our Farm Credit loan officers have the power of approval that's equal to most bank presidents.

So the next time you need to get a farm loan, think about this for just a moment.

Then let one of our Farm Credit loan officers prove to you what we've been saying all along.

That bankers can't be farmers.

But farmers can be bankers.

Meat Goats: A Profitable Venture

BY LOU ANN GOOD

NARVON (Lancaster) — People have been eating goats for thousands of years, but it's only recently that countians have begun looking at meat goats as a viable industry.

Dr. Robert Herr, well-known as a pure-bred sheep breeder, promises that a goat enterprise is certain to make money.

He has plenty of facts, figures and experience to back up his promise.

His interest in goat raising was kindled last year when he took a sabbatical leave from his teaching position in vocational agriculture at Garden Spot High School. He travelled 60,000 miles researching livestock marketing.

Goats, he discovered, are bringing the highest prices in the history of markets. There is heavy demand and never enough goats to satisfy the market, Herr said. The reason: 8,000 people that consider goat their primary meat are entering the U.S. each month.

These ethnic groups are willing to pay high prices for goats in all sizes and shapes. He said, "Jamaicans like large, lean goats; Greeks want small, young goats with more condition."

Herr said the demand for goats is so great that pregnant nannies are often being slaughtered for goat meat. The average age for a slaughtered nanny used to be seven years, now it is three to four years. He questions what will happen to the future supply of goats if more people do not begin raising them.

It's true that Easter and Christmas holidays provide a huge demand for goat meat, but the ethnic groups have so many different holidays that it is hard to know exactly when the demand is greatest. Herr said, "The Muslim holidays are set by the stages of the moón so they themselves often do not know more than a few days ahead of time when they will be celebrating."

Herr discovered that the Greek Easter, which falls about three weeks after the traditional Easter, and the New Year celebrations demand more goats than the Christian Easter and Christmas.

Spanish goats, more commonly known as brush goats, are the type most often used for meat raising although any type of goat can be used.

Brush goats are not heavy milk producers. Almost any breed of goat can be used for meat although Angora goats, famous for their wool, are not desirable for meat because they have a tough hide.

Traditionally Texas is well-known for both Angora breeders and meat goat producers. But markets have grown in the East. Currently the Lancaster Stockyard sells 500 to 1,000 goats weekly. Goats are being shipped in by the tractor and trailer loads from southern and western states, and it still can't meet the demand.

Lancaster is located in the center of demand. "We couldn't geographically be better for major eastern markets," Herr said. "We're so close to markets that we can move goats in a hurry when supply is needed."

Last week a snow storm prevented the southern markets from trucking in goats. Prices for goats at local auctions were really high because the supply was not there. Herr promises if that happens again, he'll be prepared to move goats to the auction.

Treatment

"When you bring a lot of goats together from all over the place they need to be treated for sore mouth, sore nose, pneumonia, shipping fever, pink eye, and external parasites within 10 days," said Herr.

Goats need to be treated with C & D overeating vaccination, tetnus, vitamin B complex if showing signs of stress or shipping fever, LA 200, and wormed with Ivomer to take care of both internal and external parasites.

Herr said it is better if the herdsperson can treat the goats without a veterinarian since the expense would be much greater.

Those who plan to raise goats should buy their herd at one time since goats tend to pass diseases with; otherwise, if you continue to add a few goats every few weeks, you'll need to keep treating them."

Herr's goat project

Herr carried on a goat project as an experiment. He purchased 60 head in July and August. They weighed 35 to 40 pounds. He paid $21 a head. One goat died; two ate rat poison and died. (Herr said, "Goats eat everything and gain within ten days. With an all-in system, "You treat them and it's over access to areas you never thought possible.")

He had put them on pasture so his cost of feeding and shots averaged less than $10 per head.

He sold 57: one as a stud, 8 private treaty to ethnic retail; 40 to consumers for $48 to $60 a head. Eight nannies produced 12 kids that sold for $25 to $50. The nannies sold for $70 a head.

For every $30 investment, Herr received $125.

Herr said, "It's an excellent part-time enterprise for farmers.

Shelter

Although goats can be put on pasture, they need some shelter where they can go in and out because they do not like rain and cold weather.

Vacant buildings and tobacco sheds can easily be adapted for raising goats. Pasture keeps feed costs down and goats prefer brush type pasture more than grass. The quality of forage doesn't seem to make a big difference in the taste of goat meat. Herr suggests putting about eight to 10 goats to every acre of pasture.

Use a standard height woven wire fence with 6-inch stay. Put either a hot wire or barb wire on top and bottom because goats do jump, especially in the beginning.

Goats can be housed, but they need a sun deck or small area to get fresh air.

Feeding

Herr suggests using livestock wire panels and troughs with hay racks. Make sure it is designed so that dirt does not get in. Despite their reputation, goats are picky eaters and won't eat things that are spoiled. Hay racks with slats one inch apart reduce waste spillage.

Less waste if hog feeders, the type where animals can stick their heads in, are used. Plastic barrels can be used for watering. They need a mineral and a salt box.

Goats should be fed pellets or whole grain of some sort. Presently feed companies have not formulated goat feed. Herr feeds his one-fourth pound of poultry pellets and 16 percent shelled corn with varied hay.

Like sheep, goats can get too much copper in their diet and should be watched for that.

Purchasing

Generally two times of the year are more profitable to put in goats. Herdsmen can buy 35- to 40-pound thin goats between June and August and sell them between Christmas and New Year. Or herdsmen can buy thin yearlings or 2-year-old nannies in September or October or in January and February. Any young they produce can be sold for $70 a head at Easter and Christmas. Gestation period is 150 days. Nannies can be sold at

(Turn to Page B4)

Dr. Robert Herr holds two Nubian goats that he plans to sell to the Greek Easter market. He expects them to bring $50 to $70 a head. An Angora goat stands in the background. Herr said, "I haven't found a local market for the angora wool and the Angora goat does not make suitable chevon or cooked goat meat as it is called

"There is heavy demand and never enough goats to satisfy the market," Herr said. The reason: 8,000 people that consider goat their primary meat are entering the U.S. each month. For every $30 investment, Herr received $125.

Lancaster is located in the center of demand. "We couldn't geographically be better for major eastern markets," Herr said. "We're so close to markets that we can move goats in a hurry when supply is needed."

Typical Spanish or brush goats are comparable to the mongrel cow and are most often raised as meat goats. Herr shelters them in a shed with a sun deck that allows them to go in and out of the weather.

Meat Goats

the same time,increasing profits in two ways.

A third possibility is to buy thin, bigger goats of all types. Buy low and sell high. Some ethnic groups prefer billies; others nannies, others castrated, but billies generally bring top dollar.

Herr finds raising goats fascinating. But he cautions, "People should get some guidance when first beginning. It's best to start with a few. You'll learn a lot before trying to raise a large herd."

When purchasing goats, the tail held high in the air is a barometer of good health. Even so, Herr believes, there is no reason for any animal to lack attention with the excellent pharmaceutical drugs available.

Breeding

"They raise Cain if you put nannies and billies together," Herr said. He did raise them together, but he does not recommend it. He explained, "Eventually they get used to each other, but they still run and may run their weight off." Billies, he discovered, grow faster on less feed than do nannies.

Goats are easy to breed. Herr and his wife, who always help with the birthing of their sheep and babying the lambs, admit being embarrassed that they give little attention to goats. "They drop their kids and raise them right up with no attention from us," Herr said. "And we haven't lost any."

Kids stay with their mothers until they weight 15 to 30 pounds. They should be sold within four days of being weaned before they lose their bloom and deteriorate.

Herr said, "Although you can raise milk goats for meat, you wouldn't want to do both at the same time since exposing milk goats to other goats would bring more diseases to the flock."

Also, keep sheep and goats separated to prevent spreading diseases.

Marketing and profiting

Herr said, goats are easy to sell. He put one ad in Lancaster Farming "and the phone rang off the hook." He suggests putting ads in city papers, selling them to auctions or developing an ethnic trade.

Always interested in helping 4-H and FFA students, Herr is pleased that some local fairs are planning to add meat goat classes to livestock competition. He said, "Goats make a good 4-H or FFA project that doesn't require a big investment but allows a profit."

Herr is glad also to see the popularity and respectability that goats are making in the area. Goat races, goats pulling carts and goats as pets are attracting large crowds.

Combining profit with entertainment, he believes, will generate interest among farmers along the eastern coast.

"The livestock industry has made tremendous strides in raising and producing with efficiency," Herr said. "Marketing is the only thing left in which farmers can get more efficent."

In response to his extensive marketing research, Herr has taken up a new role. He is now a middle person who helps producers market their products to urban trades in large metropolitan areas. For more information contact Dr. Herr at Route 2, Narvon, PA 17555.

Helpful Hints on No-Salt Cooking

Trying to shake the salt habit as many Americans are? Experts agree that a diet high in sodium can increase the chance of developing high blood pressure which can contribute to heart and kidney problems.

Salt and sodium are often confused. Sodium is a mineral found naturally in many foods. Salt contains a large amount of sodium, 2,000 mg per teaspoon to be exact. Since salt contains so much sodium, cutting the salt out of recipes or at the table is a good start in reducing sodium.

Here lies the problem. Salt is a satisfying flavor; so without it, foods have the blahs. Other flavors should be added to give enjoyment to food. Spices and herbs bring up the flavor. When adding these, increase the amount to punch up the satisfaction level.

Parsley Patch® Salt-Free Blends of spices and herbs from McCormick®/Schilling® take the guess work out of what to add. These are six, high-flavor, balanced blends that may be used in cooking or at the table. Choose from All-Purpose, Sesame All-Purpose, Popcorn Blend, Lemon Pepper, It's-a-Dilly™ or Garclicsaltless™.

Select one of the following palate pleasing, healthy tips for your dinner:

DILLY FISH FILLETS

Sprinkle each flounder fillet with 1/2 tsp. Parsley Patch® It's-a-Dilly™ and dot with 1 tsp. unsalted margarine. Broil until fish flakes easily.

Per 3 1/2 oz. fillet — 108 Calories, 15g Protein, 1g Carbohydrate, 4g Fat, 60mg Sodium.

SESAME SALAD DRESSING

Mix 1/3 cup red wine vinegar, 2/3 cup vegetable oil, 1 tbsp. Dijon mustard and 1 tbsp. Parsley Patch® Sesame All-Purpose Blend in a shaker bottle. Serve over salad greens or fruit. Per 1 tbsp.—85 Calories, 0.2g Protein, 0.5g Carbohydrate, 9g Fat, 13mg Sodium.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

An interesting clipping taken some time ago from a newspaper turned up the other day as I waded through the usual accumulation of paper stacks at my desk.

Subject of the article was how much time little things consume in our daily routines. A study by Priority Management, a Pittsburgh firm, looked at such mundane time-consumers as standing in line and waiting at traffic lights.

According to the study, the average American devotes five years of his life standing in lines. Waiting at lights takes an average of six months of our lives. Opening junk mail consumes another eight months, one year goes to hunting objects we've misplaced, six years to eating, two years to return phone calls to folks we can't reach, and four years for housework.

Seems like an awful waste (except for the eating). Especially since the study also reinforced what most of us already knew -- that we have too little time to do the things we really enjoy.

Since farmers generally don't commute through urban traffic to jobs, our traffic-light time is surely less. And, we personally avoid, whenever possible, activities or places entailing lengthy lines.

Junk mail goes, unopened, into the trash, while phone message machines -- yes, we all hate to talk to 'em -- are still superior to repeated return calls.

Misplacing objects, though, is another issue. Over the years of raising children, the phrase "If you put it where it belonged, you could find it" has slipped from my tongue so often that I avoid even admitting to having misplaced anything.

Children have a way of returning such advice at the most inopportune times, like when I'm wandering around the house in search of my lost sneakers.

It was the housework issue that really got to me. Five years standing in lines, six years eating, and only four years housework? No way.

Or, maybe it just seems like housework takes a lot more time than eating.

At a mere two hours per week of sweeping and vacuuming floors, for maybe sixty years of adult life, there goes about two-thirds of a year of 24-hour days. Add another half hour weekly of dusting and wiping off counter tops and a half-hour picking stuff up off the floors, and you're well on your way past two more years -- just to find the color of the floor under the chaff, hay dirt and bits of dried manure.

Making beds -- another quarter hour a week. Gathering, sorting, hanging out and taking in, or switching to the dryer, plus folding, and putting away -- let's see, probably an hour and a half each week on laundry. Which doesn't include the five minutes spent weekly looking for lost socks.

Carrying in, stacking up, unstacking, and carrying back out the week's worth of newspapers -- another quarter hour weekly. Setting and cleaning off the table for meals, plus loading and unloading the dishwasher, let's see, probably at least an hour and a half per week. Plus cooking time, minimum one hour per day, equals 15, 24-hour-days per year, or well over a year in an adult lifetime just cooking.

What about lawn mowing? Two hours weekly, May through September, comes to ten days, round the clock, from your life, of mowing the grass. Not to mention the time you put in applying lime, fertilizer, and maybe water to make it grow lush, tall, and in need of mowing.

Think how much time our Stone Age ancestors saved by not setting tables, mowing lawns, standing in lines, or returning phone calls.

On the other hand, 30 hours per week, minimum, chasing saber-toothed tigers and dinosaurs, 12 hours skinning the catch, plus cooking time, of course. Fashioning the skins into clothes, chipping stones into weapon heads, shaping clubs, etc., additionally cut into early man's leisure.

Next time I'm tempted to complain about getting behind in housework, I'll try to remember that.

Cooking Without Meat

Most of us would find it difficult to give up eating meat, but occasionally we like to prepare a meatless meal.

To get the needed protein without meat, use a combination of dried legumes, cheese or eggs.

Whether it is soup, stew, casseroles or salads, meatless dishes can be satisfying. Don't forget to experiment with pasta and pizza prepared without meats. Add plenty of cheese to provide protein and flavor.

EGGS WITH MAUHALO SAUCE

3 garlic cloves, minced
2 onions, sliced
3 tablespoons butter or oil
5 large ripe tomatoes, peeled and diced
1 green bell pepper, cut into ¼-inch strips
4 small red peppers, chopped
1 jalapeno pepper, finely chopped
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
⅛ teaspoon ground allspice
⅛ teaspoon ground clove
Salt, pepper to taste
8 eggs

In a saucepan, lightly saute the garlic and onions in butter. Add all of the other ingredients, except the salt, pepper, and eggs; simmer over medium-low heat for about 20 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

In a bowl, beat the eggs. Add eggs to mauhalo sauce, stir and cook over a medium-high heat until the eggs are cooked through. Serve immediately.

Who said meatless dishes aren't satisfying? Substitute cheese, eggs or dried legumes for needed protein and find out how satisfying meatless dishes can be.

Incredible Microwaved Eggs

Incredible edible eggs and the microwave oven are a great team. They're a user-friendly combination for folks of all kinds including breakfast skippers, working mothers, house husbands and latch-key kids.

You can scramble your morning eggs right in the serving dish almost as quickly as you can make the toast to go along. For a delicious dinner entree to serve minutes after you get home from a busy day at work, scramble chopped sauteed veggies with your eggs. Or, roll a tender microwave omelet around leftovers for a lazy weekend brunch. One dish after another, eggs and the microwave add up to quick and easy meals with a minimum of clean up!

For successful eggs ala microwave keep these few points in mind:

• Egg yolk, because it contains fat, tends to cook more quickly than egg white. When you're microcooking unbeaten eggs, use 50% or 30% power.

• Omelets, scrambled eggs and poached eggs microcook well on full power (high).

• Even out of the shell, eggs may explode in the microwave because rapid heating causes a buildup of steam. Always use a wooden pick or tip of a knife to break the yolk membrane of an unbeaten egg before microcooking to allow the steam to escape.

• Covering eggs with a lid, plastic wrap or waxed paper while they microcook encourages more even cooking and — if you forgot to prick the yolks — helps to confine the explosion!

• Eggs microcooked in their shells will explode.

However, if you need chopped hardcooked eggs for salads, sandwich fillings, casseroles or garnishes, the microwave is a great time-saver. Simply separate yolks and whites into 2 lightly greased liquid measures or small bowls. Stir the yolks with a fork. Cover each container with plastic wrap. Cook separately on 50% or 30% power, stirring once or twice, allowing about 20 to 30 seconds per yolk and about 30 seconds to 1 minute per white. Remove them when they're slightly underdone and let them stand, covered, 2 minutes. Cool long enough to handle comfortably, then chop or chill until ready to chop.

For a quick and easy dinner, try this strata which requires only about 7 minutes "micro" time and very little pre-oven time.

Celery leaves, optional

In 1½-quart baking dish, stir together butter, onions, garlic and seasonings. Cook on High until butter is melted, about 1 minute. Add milk and eggs. Stir until thoroughly blended. Stir in stuffing cubes and cheese. Cook on High 3 minutes. Stir. Continue cooking on High just until set, about 1 minute. Let stand 2 to 3 minutes to complete cooking. Garnish with celery leaves, if desired.

SWEET POTATO WALNUT BREAD

1 cup vegetable oil
¾ cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1½ cups grated, peeled, raw sweet potato (about 1 large)
1 cup chopped walnuts
½ cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 tablespoon orange juice

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Butter and flour a 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. In a large bowl, mix the oil, sugar, eggs, and vanilla. Sift together the flour, soda, salt, and cinnamon, and combine with the sugar mixture. Stir in the orange peel and then the sweet potato and salnuts. Pour into the loaf pan and bake for 55 to 60 minutes, or until the center springs back when gently pressed. Cool for 10 minutes before turning on a wire rack, then cool completely.

Mix together remaining ingredients for a glaze and drizzle over cooled loaf.

Berried Delight

1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup sugar
⅓ cup butter, melted
1 (8 ounces) package cream cheese
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons milk
3½ cups whipped topping
2 pints blueberries
2 packages instant pudding
3½ cups cold milk

Combine crumbs, ¼ cup sugar and melted butter. Press firmly into bottom of 13x9x2-inch pan. Chill.

Beat cream cheese with ¼ cup sugar and 2 tablespoons milk. Fold in one half of whipped topping. Spread over crust. Arrange blueberries.

Peach Blueberry Cobbler

Filling:
2 cups fresh, canned or frozen peaches, sliced
½ cup sugar
4 teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca or clear jell
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries
Nutmeg

Cobbler:
1 cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1½ teaspoons baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon fresh-grated lemon rind
¼ cup butter
½ cup cream or evaporated milk

Combine peaches, sugar, tapioca and lemon juice in 1½-quart baking dish. (Double this recipe, fills 13x9x2-inch pan). Sprinkle blueberries over top. Cook in microwave on high for 4 to 5 minutes, stirring after 3 minutes or until mixture bubbles and is hot throughout. Sprinkle with nutmeg.

Meanwhile, prepare cobbler by mixing flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and lemon rind. Add butter, cutting in with salt and lemon rind. Add butter cut in with pastry blender until mixture resembles cornmeal. Add cream, stir until dough is moistened and mixed. Drop by tablespoons over hot filling. Dust cobbler with nutmeg. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until top is golden brown. Serve warm with ice cream.

Note: If using clear jell instead of tapioca, mix clear jell (not instant) with a small amount of water and drizzle over peaches and stir in.

ARTICHOKES & PASTA

10 small artichokes, or 1 10-ounce package of frozen artichoke hearts
1 lemon, cut in half (not necessary if using frozen artichokes)
3½ tablespoons olive oil
1 medium onion, chopped
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 ounces dried mushrooms, soaked in 1 cup boiling water for 15 minutes, drained (reserve water), and chopped
1½ cups chopped parsley
½ cup dry white wine or apple juice
1½ pounds ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped
1 pound fresh linquine

The smaller the fresh artcichokes, the better. The ones that weigh an ounce or so are the best. Rinse thoroughly by holding the artichokes by their stems and swishing the leaves in water. Pull off the tough outer leaves, and cut off the pointy leaf tips and the stems. (If using larger artichokes, scoop out and discard the fuzzy chokes.)

Cut the artichokes into quarters and soak them in water with lemon halves to prevent discoloring. The frozen artichokes need not be thawed.

In a large skillet, heat the olive oil and saute the onion and garlic. Add the mushrooms and their soaking water, and stir briefly. Drain the artichokes, discarding the lemon, and add to the pan. (If using frozen artichokes, add at this point.) Cook the artichokes about 15 minutes, adding water if needed for moisture. Add the parsley, wine, and tomatoes. Simmer for about 20 minutes.

While the sauce finishes cooking, cook the linguine in boiling salted water until firm to the bite. Drain and place on a serving platter. Adjust sauce seasoning with salt and pour over pasta. Serve at once.

SPINACH BALLS WITH TOMATO SAUCE

2 pounds spinach, boiled, drained, squeezed of excess liquid, finely chopped
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 cup ricotta cheese
1 cup dry, fine bread crumbs
4 eggs, well beaten
3 garlic cloves, minced
2½ teaspoons rosemary
Salt, pepper to taste
Flour
1 onion, chopped
2 garlic cloves, minced
1½ pounds ripe tomatoes, peeled and pureed or 1-pound can whole tomatoes, chopped and 6-ounce can tomato sauce
½ pound mushrooms, chopped
1 teaspoon dried, mixed Italian herbs
Water

Mix together spinach, cheeses, bread crumbs, eggs, 3 garlic cloves, rosemary, salt, and pepper. If the mixture is too wet, add more cheese or bread crumbs. Flour hands and form mixture into 1½-inch balls. Bring a large pot of water to boil and add a few balls at a time. Do not add too many at once because the will clump together. When the balls float to the surface like dumplings, scoop them out and set aside.

To make sauce, saute onion and garlic in small amount butter or oil; add tomatoes, mushrooms and seasonings. Simmer at least 40 minutes. Add water if mixture becomes too thick.

When sauce is ready, add the boiled balls and let simmer for another 10 minutes. Serve hot with pasta or rice.

BROCCOLI-STUFFED BEEF ROAST

Correction: Sorry broccoli amount was inadvertedly missed in last week's edition. Here is the complete recipe:

3 to 4-pound boneless beef top loin roast
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup finely chopped mushrooms
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 cup broccoli
¼ cup apple cider
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoons dry bread crumbs
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon lemon pepper

Trim fat from beef. Make a cut one-third of the way down horizontally through the length and width of the roast (parallel to the surface of the meat). Do not cut through the opposite side. Unfold the top, thinner flap. Make a second, horizonal shallow cut 4 of the way through the thicker meat protion. Rotate the beef one-half turn and continue cutting with knife horizontally through the length and width of the roast (parallel to the surface of the meat). Do not cut through the opposite side. Unfold the flap. The meat should lay flat. Sprinkle top of open beef surface with salt and pepper. Melt butter in nonstick frying pan over medium heat until hot (about 2 minutes). Add broccoli, mushrooms and onions; cook and stir 3 to 4 minutes. Add cider; cook until liquid evaporates about 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in cheese and bread crumbs. Spread ½ the stuffing onto the middle beef section and fold the flap over. Spread remaining filling over it. Close last flap to enclose the stuffing. Combine garlic, thyme, and lemon pepper; sprinkle over top and sides of roast. Place beef roast on rack in open roasting pan. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in 325 degree oven to desired doneness. Allow about 21 to 23 minutes per pound. Allow roast to stand 15 minutes in warm place before carving. Carve into ½ -inch thick slices.

A Visit With The Heisey Children

Colette Heisey is 9 years old. She lives in Lebanon with her parents, Marlin and Brenda Heisey and three brothers. Her brothers are Parke, 8; Chad, 3; and David, 1.

While her parents milk their cows on their dairy farm, Colette babysits her brothers Chad and David.

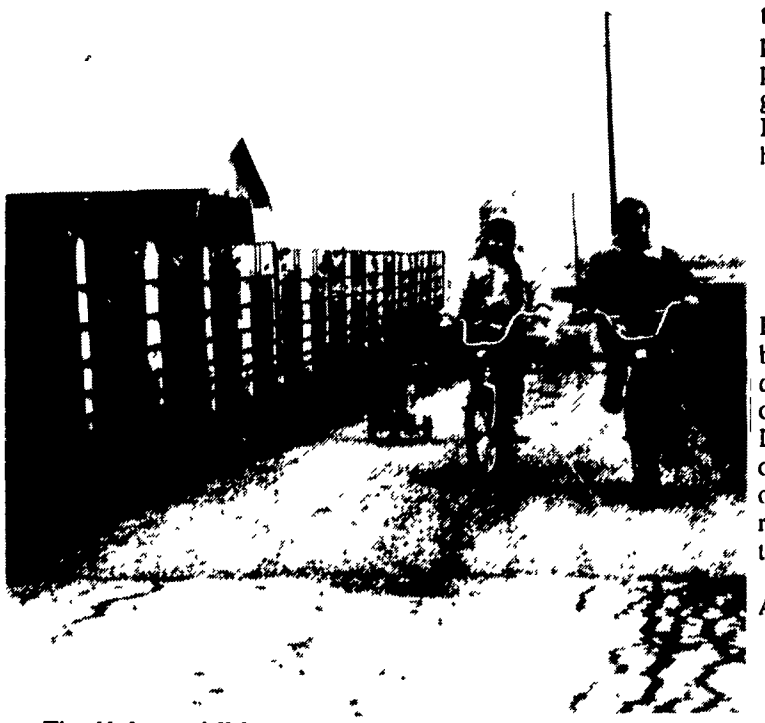
Parke is big enough to help in the barn. He loves to give hay to the cows.

When she has time, Colette likes to play with Barbie dolls.

Her brothers enjoy playing with the big, wooden barn their dad made them.

All the children enjoy riding bike up and down their driveway, which is almost one mile long.

Eight-year-old Parke said his favorite chore is giving hay to the cows.



The Heisey children never tire of riding their bikes back and forth on their one-mile lane.

When the children aren't playing in the "real" barn, they spend many hours playing with the one their dad made for them. The hinged roof opens and allows the top of the barn to be uses as a toy chest. Since he made this one, Heisey said, he has made many more to sell.

Hello! I'm Annie Zook. I am going to write about our pet goose. We got him from J.J. Jarrom. He is fun to have around. But some people are afraid of him. He makes so-o-o loud. He is a mixture of color, dark brown, light brown and white with a big lump on his beak. My brother, Mahlon, age 15, likes to tease him, but he gets mad. He will peck him, hard too. One time he pecked my sister Becky so hard it gave her a blister. He likes my dad. I can steady him (the goose) on my hand.

My name is Jeremy. I am eight years old. On May 18, I will turn nine years old. I have two sisters, Becky is 11 and Katie is 6. I have a dog named Chang. He is a black Lab.

My grampop, Cletus, made a squirrel feeder for me. It has a table with a screw in the middle for a cob of corn. It has a seat for the squirrel to sit and eat the corn.

He also made me a wheel that holds four ears of corn. The first one he made he used wood to hold the corn but the squirrels broke two rods off. He made me a new wheel using long metal screws as rods to hold the corn on. They did not break them. It's fun watching the squirrels eat. My grampop makes a lot of neat things for me. He also made a birdfeeder. I see woodpeckers, chickadees, tufted titmouse, sparrows, wrens, doves and cardinals eating at it.

Water Saving Tips For Automatic Dishwashers

Water and ways to conserve it are ongoing topics of interest due to water shortages, the threat of shortage due to drought and higher water bills. The most common ways to save that immediately come to mind include using less water for showers and baths and eliminating washing the car and watering the lawn. Thought should also be given to water-using appliances. Although newer models are extremely efficient, measures can be taken to use the least water possible.

In a recent study of dishwashing practices, Ohio State University found that dishwashers use less water — an average of 5.8 fewer gallons per load — than washing the same dishload by hand. However, the figures also pointed out that hand-rinsing the dishes first resulted in an additional 7.3 gallons of water per dishload. In the study, 68 percent of the participants hand-rinsed dishes destined for the dishwasher! This is an unnecessary waste of water. Dishwashers that feature multiple water distribution points, a self-cleaning filter to remove food soil from the water and high velocity wash action will provide excellent cleaaening results without hand-rinsing. Only in cases of burned-on food is soaking or rinsing recommended.

To conserve even more water use these water saving tips when using your automatic dishwasher:

1. Load the dishwasher correctly. Follow the manufacturer's recommendations in order to load the dishwasher to its full capacity and to take advantage of the washing system. Improper loading can result in poorly cleaned dishes that will have to be rewashed.

2. Make sure the water temperature is 140 degrees F. at the kitchen faucet. This insures that the detergent will be activated and greasy/oily food soils will dissolve.

3. Use the proper type and amount of detergent. Only detergents designed for automatic dishwashing should be used in a dishwasher. The proper amount to use depends on the degree of water hardness. Too little detergent may result in poor washability which would require running the dishwasher through another cycle. A general usage recommendation is one teaspoon of detergent per grain of water hardness with 3 teaspoons as a minimum in soft water.

4. Wash only full loads. If it takes a while before accumulating a full load, use the Rinse and Hold cycle (it uses approximately 2¼ gallons of water).

5. Use only the cycle and options needed. Many dishwasher models have a cycle for medium to lighty soiled dishes (Low Energy or Light Wash), one for normally soiled dishes (Regular or Normal) and another for heavily soiled dishes (Pots and Pans or Heavy).

6. Do not hand-rinse the dishes unless food soil is burned on.

Prolong The Life Of Household Textiles

According to the International Fabricare Institute, how long household textiles will last depends both on their selection and on the care you give them in your home.

When shopping for household textiles ask whether the fabric is preshrunk and resistant to fading. Keep in mind that closely woven fabrics of the same fiber content are more durable. Consider the amount of sun exposure the fabrics will receive. All fabrics are somewhat vulnerable to light degradation, but silk is the most vulnerable. Acrylic, polyester and glass fibers are the most resistant.

Plastic Facts

Plastics have improved virtually every aspect of our lives. Yet we often are not aware of their many contributions. For example, you might be surprised to learn that:

• One 4 3/4-inch plastic optical memory disk can store the equivalent of 250,000 typewritten pages of information.

• Plastics make possible artificial bones and organs — even the artificial heart.

• "Aseptic" plastic packages can hold milk or other perishable products for 18 months or more without refrigeration.

• Some plastics are strong enough to stop bullets. That's why police officers often wear vests woven from plastics, plastic helmets, face-protecting visors and shields.

• More than 90 percent of small home appliances produced in the U.S. are made of plastics.

• Plastic film used as mulch can mean earlier harvests for farmers and save water in the process.

• Fighter planes made of plastic can evade radar detection.

Spring Shopping Tips

I love to shop! And as spring fashions beckon, I enthusiastically begin to plan our growing toddler's wardrobe. Patterns have been selected and some even made for the coming spring and summer months, but there still remains those items to shop for.

In my usual shopping enthusiasm, Elise and I don our winter coats and hats, strap into the car seat, add the stroller to the trunk and head to the mall. But by the time I re-strap her into the stroller and fight through doorways and narrow aisles, and begin my search, Elise is ready to run the mall!

Since toddlers grow in leaps and bounds, shopping is an inevitable part of life. However, there are some tips to shopping for toddlers. So before you load up for that spring shopping trip, take note of these ideas.

First, assess what you have in the way of borrowed items and hand-me downs. Try to get a realistic feel of what you may need.

My toddler experience has taught me that "trying-on" clothes is not a pleasurable experience, so I attempt to get a basis of what is the right size and use that outfit as a standard. Also, take some time to jot down what brands seem to run large or small on your child and what sizes they wear in that brand now.

If a trip together is essential, begin the day on a positive note. Create a pleasant atmosphere by putting aside other worries and treating the trip as a time to get to know your child better and a time for him or her to learn about making choices.

Share with your child what kinds of things you are shopping for and make it an adventure hunt. Dress for the trip in loose-fitting clothes that are easy to take off and put on. Uncomfortable clothes or too many buttons or snaps can be a disaster. In the dressing room, speed up the process by helping younger children dress and undress.

If something looks good on your child, say so. These words will build your child's self confidence and make you both feel good about the purchase.

If you can, try to take siblings on separate shopping trips. This will eliminate confusion, save time and each child will feel his or her special needs are being fulfilled.

Shopping trips are good time to teach your children what to look for in comfort and fit. Listen to what they say about the clothes they try on. You will save both time and money when you buy clothes tht your children need and want. As much as possible, allow your child to help make the choices. Do they want the sweat pants or the short set? Would they rather have the pink jacket or the purple one?

It may also help to put a time limit on the trip. This is also helpful to a child so that they realize that there is an end in sight.

For me, it's hard to imagine not enjoying hours of shopping, but as yet, my toddler has not developed this same attitude.

If your child does become irritable but you haven't finished, try to take a break. A refreshment break may be the best cure for shopping blues. If this doesn't work, both of you may be better off leaving the job undone but still a good experience.

Finally, don't forget to praise your child for a job well done. This type of positive reinforcement may help to dispel cries of disagreement when you announce the next shopping trip.

I must admit that I find shopping with my toddler "work"! While there has been more than one struggle about sitting in the stroller, I have really enjoyed our discoveries that we have made together. And, I detect that Elise has picked up that glint in her eye that has been passed down through the generations. Someday she too will gleefully announce that she is going to the mall to shop 'til she drops!

Stop Runaways

Many of us, when we were children, thought of running away. Often it was a product of a lazy summer's dream spiced with adventure. Quite a few children yearned to be a Tom Sawyer or Toby Tyler. There were risks and imminent dangers. However, the escapades of the "Tom" and "Toby" or the hero of the child's mind would always have a happy ending.

Unfortunately, running away from home today doesn't have that romantic notion.

It means that today's runaway children are becoming easy victims of gangs, drug pushers and criminals.

It means that runaways are without shelter and are prone to a whole variety of medical problems from respiratory infection to veneral disease.

A study by the National Center for Health Statistics indicated that 1 out of every 10 children in the United States, between 12 and 17 have run away from home at least once. That amounts to over two million youths!

The problem was once thought to be centered in the lower socioeconomic families. Not so today. One study found that repeated runaways are most frequently from middle-income families who live in the suburbs.

The same study found that runaways were more often from broken homes (death, divorce, or separation). Whether the homes were broken or not, the runaways most often were from homes characterized by a high level of parent-child conflict. The conflicts were over very personal issues, like clothing, hair length, dress, dating, and friends.

We must find out what the young people of the society are experiencing and feeling. We must explore and try to comprehend the pressures that are exerted on our youth. We must come to know the danger signals that warn of serious trouble. We must learn how to treat this behavior before the trouble occurs.

Many communities, agencies, schools, churches, or adult education classes offer parents the opportunity to learn more about their growing child. Parents can learn and can prevent trouble if they will begin early enough and make the effort. Parents who participate in parent education programs find many of the answers they are looking for.

No longer does attendance at a parent education program carry an admission that all is not well. Today, thousands of parents, fathers as well as mothers, are learning about their children, their world, and the skills the parents need to help the child grow. These parents are learning before such a problem as running away occurs.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

You can't use a regular skillet to brown foods in your microwave oven, but a special microwave-safe browning utensil will brown and crisp some foods.

A browning grill (flat surface) browns and crisps sandwiches, pizza, and frozen foods such as fish sticks, chicken patties and hash browns. A browning fish or browning skillet (with edges or a well around the cooking surface to collect fat) will also brown steaks, hamburgers and juicy meats; fry eggs; and add sizzle to small amounts of stir-fry combinations.

A browning utensil is specially made and is used differently from other microwave cookware. The empty utensil is preheated in the microwave oven. During preheating, the utensil absorbs microwaves and gets very hot. (Note: When you preheat a browning utensil, the oven is not running empty. Microwaves are not bouncing around with no place to go -- as they would if the microwave was operating with an ordinary dish in it.)

Food is added to the hot utensil and microwaved a few minutes, then turned over and microwaved a short time to brown the second side. Food browns both from contact with the hot surface and from microwaving.

Preheating and cooking times depend on the size of browning utensil, the microwave oven's wattage output and the kind of food. Usually large browning utensils need longer preheating time than smaller ones. Preheating and cooking take about 25 percent longer in a lower wattage microwave oven compared to a 600- to 700-watt microwave oven. Breads, eggs, fish and thin slices of meat or poultry usually need shorter preheating and cooking times than steaks or thick burgers and poultry.

Read and carefully follow the directions that come with your browning utensil. Experiment with the preheating times given in directions. Start with the minimum time, and if you like the food browner; next time increase time accordingly. But, never preheat longer than recommended for your particular browning utensil.

For second batches, wipe out fat and moisture and preheat about half the original time. For most brands, do no more than two batches without first cooling the utensil. If the utensil is heated too long, it can become damaged, or it can crack the glass tray in your microwave oven.

Since the utensil gets very hot, handle it carefully. Don't set it on a plastic multi-level cooking shelf, because the hot dish could melt the plastic. Be careful about using a plastic turntable. (If the browning utensil has legs that keep the hot surface up, it can be used on most turntables. But check turntable directions for any precautions.) Use potholders and don't touch the preheated dish bottom. When removing the hot utensil from the oven, set it on a heatproof surface such as a wooden board.

Directions vary for cleaning browning utensils. Many can be washed in a dishwasher or soaked in a sink of sudsy water, but some cannot. In general, cool the dish completely before washing. Never scrub the top or bottom with abrasive cleansers or scouring pads.

Do not use a browning utensil on the range-top or in a conventional oven. Most skillet-shaped utensils can be used as microwave casserole dishes -- then do not preheat, and be sure to keep the dish bottom completely covered with food.

Using fat is optional for many foods. But when fat or spray-on coating is used, it's added after preheating.

Boneless poultry or meat (or pieces of even thickness with flat bones) brown uniformly. Thawed meat browns better than slightly frozen meat. With a paper towel, pat off excess moisture on uncooked thick meat, poultry or fish. When placing in the hot browning utensil or turning food over, press it against the utensil's surface with a spatula.

There will be some spattering with meats or when fat is used, but it's best not to cover foods or they become more braised than fried. (Also, with a browning grill, a paper cover could touch the hot surface and catch on fire.)

A browning utensil is most efficient for 1 to 4 servings, and food may brown less than in a skillet on the range. The utensil cools down somewhat during microwaving, so work quickly. Add food immediately when preheating time is done. Then, as soon as first cooking time is completed, turn over food. (For the most brownness, if possible turn second side of food onto an exposed part of utensil.) Second sides and second batches may not brown as much as first ones.

When you buy a browning utensil, be sure to save the directions. Keep the directions in a handy place -- you'll need them each time you cook for a while. Every browning utensil is different. Each kind and size has required preheating and cooking times, specific hints for efficient use, and recommendations for cleaning. Using a browning utensil according to the manufacturer's directions is the only way to insure good results and safety.

Greek Lemon Chicken

2 skinned and boneless chicken breasts (about ½ pound)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon dried oregano leaves
Freshly ground black pepper or red pepper flakes
1 teaspoon olive or vegetable oil
Grated lemon peel (optional)
Garnish: Thinly sliced green onions, including green tops (optional)

Stir together lemon juice, oregano and pepper in shallow glass or plastic dish; set aside. Pound both sides of chicken breasts with edge of saucer until about ¼ inch thick. Add to lemon juice mixture, turning to coat both sides. Marinate 10 minutes at room temperature or cover and refrigerate up to 10 hours. Right before serving, preheat empty medium to large (8- to 10-inch diameter) browning grill, browning dish or browning skillet on High for about half of maximum time given in manufacturer's directions (or for 4 to 5 minutes). Quickly pour oil on grill and then top with chicken, pressing lightly with spatula. Microwave (High) 1 to 2 minutes or until first side is golden brown. Quickly turn over and continue microwaving (High) 1 to 1½ minutes or until chicken is done. Let stand on grill for 2 to 3 minutes to insure doneness. If desired, sprinkle lightly with grated lemon peel and chopped green onions.

Each serving: 140 calories, 24g protein, 4g fat, 1g carbohydrate, 63mg sodium, 72mg cholesterol.

Cheesy Garlic Toast

¼ cup olive or vegetable oil
1 clove garlic, minced
8-10 slices (about 2x3x½ -inch) French bread
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons minced parsley

In microwave-safe custard cup or 1-cup measure, combine oil and garlic; microwave (High) 1 minute. Lightly brush 1 side of bread slices with garlic oil. Stir Parmesan cheese and parsley into remaining garlic oil; spread on top of each bread slice. Preheat empty medium to large (8- to 10-inch diameter) browning grill, browning dish or browning skillet on High for about half of maximum time given in manufacturer's directions (or for 3½ to 4 minutes). Quickly place as many bread slices as will fit -- cheese-side up -- on hot browning grill. Microwave (High) 45 to 90 seconds or until cheese melts. Rotate dish, if necessary, after 30 seconds. Remove toasted slices. If necessary to cook more, wipe off browning grill with paper towel; reheat for 2½ minutes. Repeat cooking steps until all slices are cooked. Serve hot.

Each slice - 1/10 of recipe: 93 calories, 2g protein, 6g fat, 8g carbohydrate, 88mg sodium, 2mg cholesterol.

This 86 Year-Old Not Bored With Life

BY LOU ANN GOOD

ANNVILLE (Lebanon) — Although she is eighty-six-years old, Mary Bomberger, Annville, has not found time to join the Senior Citizenship club because "There's too much to be done in the world to be entertained."

During more than three-fourths of a century, the Annville widow has accomplished more than 10 people do in a lifetime, and she hasn't slowed down yet.

Her walls are lined with hundreds of photos. Interspersed with pictures of her three children, two stepchildren, 12 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren, are pictures of her foster children, boarders, and others she has mothered in her lifetime. In all, 85 people have called the Bomberger's place "home" during some part of their lifetime.

Mary was the one probation officers often called when they needed a home for juvenile delinquents.

"I hate the words 'juvenile delinquent,'" Mary protests. "There is no such thing as bad boys only michievous ones. It's delinquent adults who have made such things as alcohol, drugs and cigarettes available to them."

Her favorite hobby is to take unfortunate boys, convince them that she cares and set them straight.

At her age, Mary could sit back, relax and know she has done more than her share in "helping set many boys straight," but she hasn't done that yet.

"What?" she protests, "Do you think my interest in young people stopped when my children grew up?"

She shakes her head in disbelief. "Never."

True, since she moved to an apartment she no longer has the room to shelter them, but she has found other ways to help them. For some, it's phoning them each morning to wake them up and start them on their way to school. She is an active member of Chemical People, a group that establishes alternate ways for young people to celebrate proms and other special ocassions by offering activities such as an all night lock-in at the local YMCA. "That way they aren't carousing the streets and drinking."

Mary Bomberger

The eldest of seven children, Mary recalls her childhood home at a tollgate stop where those traveling the highway—even bicylists—stopped to pay toll.

When her family moved to a farm, Mary arose at 3 a.m. daily to milk cows. To this day, she claims, "I'd rather milk than cook a meal."

School was young Mary's number one interest. "Professor Snook took me from school to school and asked me questions in front of the other students to show them how much it was possible to learn." But in eighth grade, Mary's formal education stopped. She was required to quit school to help earn money for her family as her nearly invalied father couldn't.

"Not finishing school always grieved me," Mary said, "but I feel I got more education in that one-room school house than students do today in their big high schools."

For six years, Mary worked in a local hosiery mill. She married, had three children, was divorced and remarried.

Mary reminisces over her years with her now deceased husband, David Bomberger. "David and I had a good marriage because we always liked to help others."

Together they farmed. Although Mary still preferred milking more than cooking, it did not keep her from cooking. She also took in washing, housecleaning and baking for others.

During World War II, many men joined the service and their wives needed to work in factories. For six years, Mary cared for children whose mothers needed to work. They stayed all week and their mothers picked them up on weekends. "They were like my own children," Mary said softly. "I missed them when they left."

When Indiantown Gap was being built, Mary heard the workers were sleeping in their machines overnight because they had no place to stay.

Taking pity on them, Mary opened up her home. In two days time, she had 14 regular boarders. That was two generations ago, but many of the families of the boarders still visit her.

The Bombergers also operated two restaurants and a gift shop. She recalls the gift shop was near a school and over lunchtime, sometimes the store had as many as 60 children in it. One time a policeman came and asked, "Don't you need my help?"

He was amazed to hear that the Bombergers never had any trouble with so many children in their store.

After their children were grown, the Bombergers retired from the farm and became house parents for 20 boys from 17 to 18 years of age at Bethany Homes, Wolmersdorf.

"I loved it," Mary recalls, "but after two years, my husband couldn't take it anymore because he didn't like the discipline

(Turn to Page B18)

Among the hundreds of photos hanging on Mary's walls, is this poem. "We had so many (85 people) living in our home and they left so many happy memories. This poem is exactly how I feel."

THE EMPTY NEST

"The walls are washed.
The windows clean.
The stain on carpet now unseen
The chairs and couches
Good as new—
You'd never guess all they've been thorough.
But echoes fill the empty rooms
With laughter, voices, noisy tunes;
And, oh, I'd gladly trade it all
For youngsters packed from wall to wall,
Our house stands lonely,
And so are we!
It's more fun as it used to be."

Lancaster County Dairy Clubs Reorganize

Youth between the ages of 8 and 18, as of January 1 of this year, who are interested in dairy and in doing things with other youth who have similar interests are invited to participate in one of five Lancaster County 4-H dairy clubs. The dairy program is but a small facet of a much larger and much broader 4-H program aimed at offering a variety of experiences and opportunities to youth in the county.

For more information about 4-H contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster; call 394-6851.

Times and places of the dairy club meetings are listed below. Interested youth are invited to attend a club of their choice. For more information about a particular club call the designated contact person.

The Kids and Kows 4-H Dairy Club will meet at the Solanco Fair Grounds in Quarryville, 7:45 p.m. on Thursday, March 9. The club consists of about 40 members, most of which are from southern Lancaster County. All breeds are welcome. They generally meet the third Thursday from March thru late summer. 86 Year-Old

Community service has filled much of Mary's time. Throughout the years, she was instrumental in organizing the Annville Parents Teachers Association and the Playground Association.

An active member of Zion Evangelical Congregational church, Mary has held numerous offices in Sunday school, missionary and literature societies, and as publicity director for her church. She has held offices in numerous community organizations such as the Lebanon County Auxillary and the Annville WCTU.

"I get disturbed when I hear people say they don't have time to attend these organizations because in all my lifetime, I only missed one meeting of the many organizations of which I am a member. And I never missed Sunday School or church."

Mary's involvement in others' lives was not limited to her community. Typical of her reaching out to others is an incident that happened while she and her husband were traveling to South Carolina.

"I saw all these shacks that people lived in," she explained. "I convinced my husband to stop at one. It was so neat and clean inside. The floors were dirt, but they were swept clean. I asked the lady if she'd like some clothing for her children." The woman answered, "I'd be most proud."

So for 35 years, Mary and her husband travelled annually to South Carolina with a carload of clothing. She said, "We became good friends with the family and have many pleasant memories."

When Mary's husband died in 1979, she moved into an apartment with her youngest daughter.

Mary continues to drive her own car and is still active in numerous organizations. She said, "I spend a lot of time writing to legislators about drinking, driving and gambling. They (legislators) tell me, "Mary, we get lots of letters supporting these things, but few opposing them.'"

She shakes her head and remarks, "There should be more preaching opposing the vices of the world. Young people aren't warned enough about the dangers."

In more than eight decades, Mary said, "I never had time to be bored." She paused then admitted, "Except one time when I visited Atlantic City with some friends."

She recalled, "I walked up and down the boardwalk. I thought, 'this is not the life for me' so I bought a newspaper and sat in the car and read it until the others returned."

Mary says, "If I had to live my life all over again, I'd do it the same. I have no disappointments. Hardships and adversities have made me stronger. The lessons—I learned, the memories—I relish. I look back with no disappointments."

4-H HAPPENINGS

Conodogquinet Sheep

The 4-H sheep club met on February 15 at the West Pennsboro Fire Hall. There was a discussion on sending letters to the 1988 buyers and inviting them to the Beef and Lamb Club banquet, which is being sponsored by the Mechanicsburg Area Chamber of Commerce on March 16. Envelopes were addressed and 4-H stationery given to all the members interested. It also was decided that the club would pay half of the buyers' cost for the meal.

The club then formed a committee for the Youth of America contest, which is sponsored by Colgate. The committe members are Amy Jones, Stacy Suffel, Mike and Michelle Cornman, and Diane Myers.

Members were told about the cookie sale, the money from which will be used to support the sale at the roundup.

There is no March meeting. The next one will be held on April 19 at the Dickenson Township Building at 7:30 p.m. The meeting's topic will be "How to Choose a Market Lamb."

Four Paws To Freedom

The February 15 meeting of the 4 Paws to Freedom 4-H Club focused on practicing for the County Public Presentation contest on Friday, March 3. Allyson Schwab (Califon) spoke about Karate and demonstrated the many movements. Tricia Bihon (Califon) did a presentation talk on Alternative Music from 1970s to the present. The club plans to visit the P.A.W.S. Dog Obedience Club to do their obstacle course on Wednesday, March 8. Also at the next meeting 5 other club members will practice their speeches for March 3rd. The next meeting of the Four Paws to Freedom 4-H Club will be held on March 1st, 7 p.m. at the Fairmount Community Center on Route 517, Tewksbury Township. Members will be practicing for the Presentation Contest on March 3. Melinda Bihon, club reporter.

Lebanon County Sheep

On January 26, the Lebanon County 4-H sheep club met at the Lebanon Municipal Building. There were 15 members present. The meeting was opened by Vice President Krista Hetrick. Martha Gregory, the 4-H Extension Agent, gave an interesting speech on "Other Opportunities in 4-H". One item she talked about was blue forms. She explained how to fill them out and the benefits of filling them out. She also talked about the Vet Science project and how to get involved. The last thing she talked about was the photography project. The club next discussed future events.

Plain Sects Benefit From Adult Farmer Program

BY LOU ANN GOOD,
NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster) — Donald Robinson, who heads the adult farmer program at Garden Spot High School, flinches when he hears of school districts dropping the adult farmer program to concentrate on in-school vocational agricultural programs.

"I hope our district will never consider that," he said.

His area of jurisdiction is unique. Much of the farm population consists of Amish and old order Mennonite who frown upon higher education and using public facilities.

LF Joint Staff Ag-Ed Curriculum Exclusive Series

Although most do not use mechanical equipment, these plain sects do want to keep updated on farming techniques and government requirements.

Traditionally cautious of gathering in public places, the conservative sects have overcome their inhibitions when it comes to meeting with Robinson in the adult farmer program.

"They are very receptive and open," Robinson said.

Approximately 400 participate in the evening classes offered on subjects ranging from vegetable growing to pesticide certification.

Robinson has made adjustments in the program to accomodate the Amish and Mennonite beliefs. While other adult farming programs in the county hold a membership, Garden Spot offers non-mandatory membership at the local and state levels since the plain sect churches do not encourage membership.

The Garden Spot vocational agricultural program started in 1959 with one part-time and one full-time teacher. The adult farmer program, began when vocational agricultural graduates returned to the program for information on changing technology.

"The adult farming program began as a welding class formed by a nucleus of interested farmers," Robinson explained. "Then they held a corn growing contest and things progressed from there."

In 1967 Robinson joined the teaching staff. At that point the adult program had a low-key adult farming program with 45 young farmers receiving on-farm instruction and attending evening classes. In '71, Robinson began full time with the young farmer program and other staff took on his in-school vo-ag responsibilities. Enrollment expanded and in '75, Garden Spot added a second full-time instructor for the adult program.

In the beginning, the school district actually offered two adult farming programs, one for conservative farmers who didn't pay dues or join the PYA, the other for the Garden Spot Young Farmers.

In 1981 Robinson realized they were duplicating some efforts and blended the programs. PYF membership maintains a low-key emphasis but is available for farmers who are interested. They are eligible for state leadership, compete for awards and attend conventions.

Cliff Day, Dr. Ogilne and Robinson consult computer data to enhance their vocational agriculture classes.

Both factions attend the instructional meetings that include basic farm management techniques, farm soil testing, balancing rations, record analysis, cropping programs, building, conservation, irrigation, and weed identification. The program also has a test plot and does demonstration plotwork with on farm experimenting. They conduct a demonstration vegetable plot located at a local produce auction.

They learn about chemicals, equipment and keep up-to-date on the latest technology. In recent years, trickle irrigation was a big topic among them and an outgrowth of the instruction resulted in three trickle irrigation businesses. Robinson was also instrumental in providing leadership in the vegetable auction, and offered support and encouragement.

Adult Farmer Program

Before participating in the adult farmer program, many farmers were dependent upon feed and fertilizer representatives to identify weeds and diseases for them. Participation in the adult farming program enables them to discuss the issues intelligently with salespersons.

Robinson said the the evening meetings include both a question and answer period and a teaching program. But the strong part of the program is the one to one basic farm management he gives. Robinson explained, "I use many gimmicks to get on the farm so I can give as much individual help as needed." If a farmer asks him to check something in the barn and Robinson visits the farm, he may notice a weed or an insect that, unknown to the farmer, can be controlled easily.

The meetings often focus on updates in technology and restricted use pesticides update. Some meetings are a coop with extension services and many meetings are scattered among elementary schools and fire halls because some plain sects are more open to attending there than in the high school. Approximately 50-175 people normally attend the individual meetings with 400 participating annually. Robinson estimates that 75 to 80 percent of the clientel only attended school through the eight grade.

For those who question whether or not school programs should be geared toward the community, Robinson responds, "They (Amish and old order Mennonites) contribute a large tax base, of which they do not benefit since they do not use public schools. The adult farmer program is one of the few services they use.

"The information we provide helps improve their profitability to pay taxes and improve the community."

Robinson's enthusiasm for the program is unquenchable. "The program fills a viable need in educating the community farmer. If I felt what we are doing was not contributing to local economy," Robinson surmises, "I wouldn't support the program."

Some question whether or not there is a need for both extension services and an adult farming program in the county. Robinson answers, "Educational needs for adult farmers in this county shows plenty of need for both programs. Our services seldom overlap."

He explained that the extension service basically reacts to problems. The adult farmer program is designed more to teach basics so farmers can better deal with problems himself. The biggest plus for the adult farming program comes from their local level availability. "Farmers in our area can hop on a bicycle and attend. If meetings are offered outside the community, they aren't as likely to attend."

While Robinson is adament in his belief that the adult farming program must survive, he is modest about the role he and his team play in the successes of the adult farming program. He stresses, "We learn with farmers. We don't pretend to be experts. We read, talk, learn and visit. We are more facilitators than teachers."

And that, he believes, is exactly what the adult farmers in his area need to make farming a profitable venture.

"In the end, our program benefits the whole community. That's why I believe in it."

Hunterdon County Sheep

The February meeting of the Hunterdon County 4-H Sheep Club was held at the home of Gerhardt and Heidi Rodenberger of Pittstown. Geneva Miller (Flemington) reported as chairman of the bulletin board committee. Mike and Jeff Everitt of Upper Black Eddy did the bulletin board in the 4-H office for the month of January. Amy Ercolino (Asbury) reported on the Dinner Committee. This year she is planning on having a skit and will need a committee for set-up and clean-up. BJ Fugazzi (Flemington) and Jaeme Griffin (Whitehouse Station) did a demonstration on "Why Didn't It Live?" The club had a Dress Your Sheep picture contest. Rosettes were awarded to Mike Everett (Upper Black Eddie), brother Jeff Everett, and Jaeme Griffin. Other participants included Danielle Riccioni (Flemington), Geneva Miller (Flemington), and Shawn Reynolds (Ringoes). The club members participated in locating the parts of a sheep. The 1989 sheep club flock and market lamb record books were distributed and discussed. The sheep bowl and livestock judging teams practice every Sunday night at the home of Geneva Miller. Any 4-H Sheep club member is welcomed and encouraged to attend. Geneva Miller, Club Reporter.

Dairy Of Distinction Program Called Beneficial; Seeks 1989 Applications Now

(Deadline For Applications is April 15, 1989)

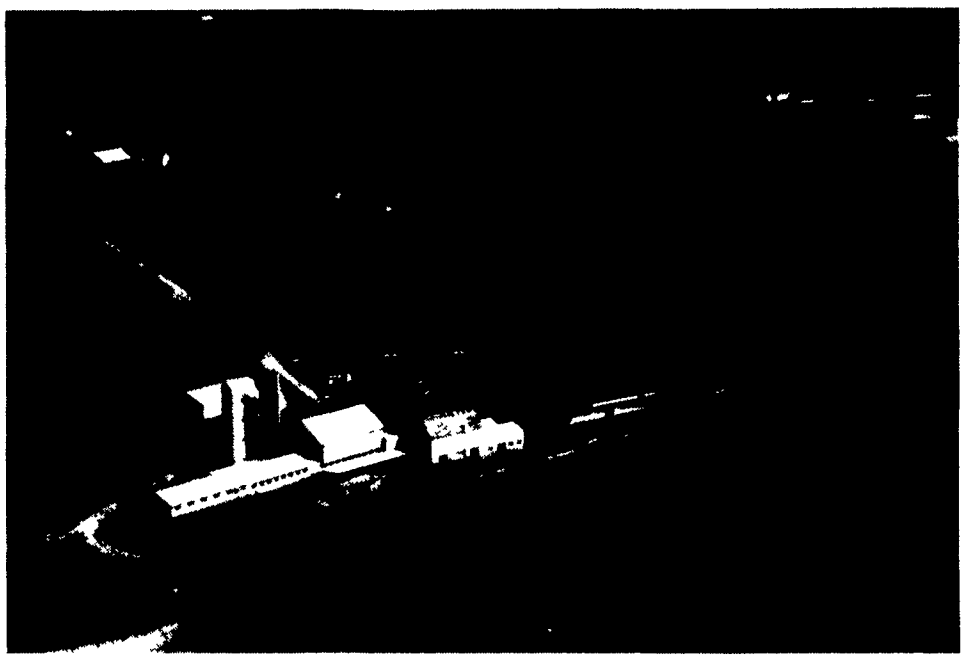
HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — The Northeast Dairy of Distinction farm beautification program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

At the recent annual meeting of the Pennsylvania division here, State Secretary Paul Nichols reported an increase in publicity for dairymen created by the Dairy of Distinction program in 1988.

For example, James Brubaker of Mt. Joy, a Lancaster County winner, and State President Everett Newswanger appeared on a state-wide syndicated public TV program. Also a "Philadelphia Inquirer" reporter interviewed Newswanger and several Dairy of Distinction winners for a story. And the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture sent a list of winners to all their news contacts across the state.

In 1987, Pennsylvania received 329 applications and chose 99 winners. In 1988, there were 229 applications with 94 winners. Letters of quality went out to all milk handlers. Two negative responses were returned.

Again in 1988, Governor Robert Casey declared a Dairy of Distinction week by signing a proclamation that was presented by State Ag Secretary Boyd Wolff at the reception for all winners at Ag Progress Days in August. At that time, LANCASTER FARMING presented color photographs to each Dairy of Distinction winner, too.



Edgefield Farms, owned by the Kenneth Rutt family, Quarryville, Lancaster County was one of the 94 state-wide winners in 1988. New applications for the 1989 program are now being accepted.

"Since we now have worked on the program for three years, the benefits have started to multiply," Newswanger said. "Not only does the extra favorable publicity in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, it helps the farmer, too. Many winners use the distinction to promote their own operation or to seek and hire farm labor."

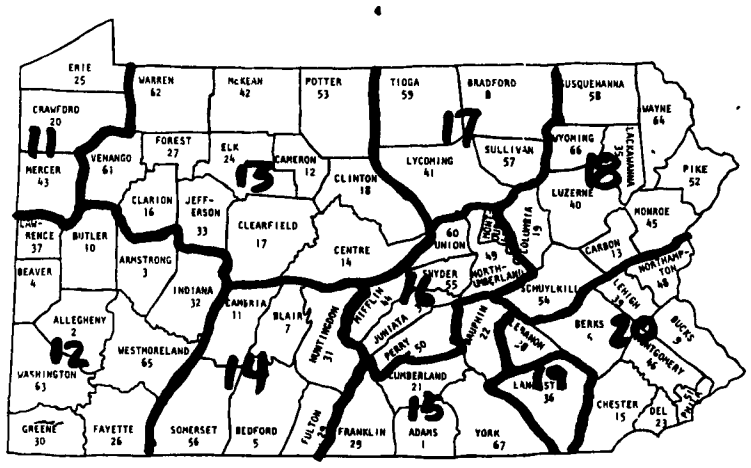
And now is the time when additional dairy farmers may apply for the Dairy of Distinction award. Also farms that had applied in previous years but did not win are eligible to reapply this year. The Dairy of Distinction farms are automatically entered for rejudging along with the new applications to insure each designated farm maintains the standard of excellence required by the program.

Pennsylvania has been divided into 10 districts. Each district has been designated according to its number of dairy cows. Up to 10 farm awards per district may be given each year. Deadline for entry is April 15.

Judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. A local district team of judges visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In the Pennsylvania program, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler will be asked to be part of the judging process.

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program by LANCASTER FARMING.

The Dairy of Distinction program is a cooperative, widespread industry effort. Sponsors include: milk promotion groups, cooperative extension, State Departments of Agriculture, the Grange, Farm Bureau, producer groups and agribusinesses. The program is run by volunteers at all levels of the organization.



Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are:

District ll: George Wilcox; District 12: Wally Jackson; District 13: Jack Erway; District 14: David Myers; District 15: Sam Maclay; District 16: Bernice Gable; District 17: Kevin Barrett; District 18: Allen Roszel; District 19: Naomi Spahr and District 20: Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to put at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present this year's winners in Pennsylvania with a color portrait print of their farm. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

My parents had six grown daughters most of whom lived within easy traveling distance of their home. And I and my sisters dropped by to visit most every week. We simply stopped by on Sunday to see how everyone was doing.

Things seem to have changed a lot for us in the last thirty years. Our children are now grown and all live far away except for one son who farms with his father here on our dairy farm. Now our visits are mostly by telephone.

One will call to tell us he will be in England for three weeks or another will tell of vacation plans that include a week's stay in southern California. Most of the time our children are too busy to even write a letter and so we must be satisfied with an occasional telephone call. At least we are not completely forgotten.

I expect to have my name on the ballot for the primary election in May. To do so, I had to get several signatures on my petition for "Inspector of Election." This gave me an opportunity to visit several homes in my area.

The most interesting was the birthplace of my grandfather, Benjamin Landis. He was born on a farm that is known as the "Long Barn" as that is where the United Brethren Church was started. I believe the house on this property is the only house in the county with an original red tile roof like I saw in Europe the other year.

When I knocked on the door, I was met by a young lady with a baby in her arms, she ushered me in but didn't reply to my inquiries. Eventually, I was to learn that she was from Russia and had only been in this country for six days. The house had two families and I had picked the wrong door. For a day or so afterwards, I couldn't get this lady off my mind as I pondered how I would feel if I were in her place in a strange country and unable to speak the language.

Hunterdon County Swine

The Hunterdon Rooters, Squeek, Squawk, and Squeelers 4-H Swine Club met at the leaders' home in Flemington. Members discussed the sale of the Christmas Ornaments at the Holiday Workshop, and decided since they sold so well that they will be used again next year. Vanessa Bowlby (Frenchtown) and Jessica Waverka (Stockton) are preparing a presentation for the next meeting. Members also talked about 4-H Day at the Mall. Some members will bring piglets to display. The club discussed plans for visiting a hog farm in Asbury. The group also talked about a community project. At the next meeting a vote will be taken to see what the members want to do. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Harrington's home in Flemington on March 6 at 7:30 p.m. Members will discuss the community project and the club trip. Laura Galick, Club Reporter.

Customers — How To Get Them and Keep Them In Your Produce Market

BY PAT PURCELL

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster) — Paul Friday, the man who took his roadside stand from $40,000 gross income to $6 million, opened the 1989 Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference and Trade Show at the Willow Valley Conference Center held Feb. 21 through 23.

The owner of Farmer Friday's in Coloma, Michigan, amazed and certainly inspired hundreds of direct marketers from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Virginia who gathered at the conference.

Although not everyone can boast of such phenomenal growth and not all produce market owners want such a large operation, Friday shared some merchandising practices which can help all sizes of operations.

"Do whatever you have to do to make the door swing," said Friday and that philosophy has taken Farmer Friday's from a side business at a gas station 21 years ago to 28,000 square feet which also includes a meat market, greenhouse, video store, pharmacy and bakery.

What works for Friday may sound like giveaways. Giving away product may not sound like good business, but when used properly it be quite profitable.

"My advertising is pretty drastic to get that new customer in. I shake them up to get their attention. Then they come in and say, 'My, I didn't know all this was here,'" added Friday.

Milk, eggs, bread, lettuce, bananas, potatoes, butter, and soda are the sale items Friday uses to get the customer in his store. These are lead items.

"It doesn't do you any good to advertise terrific sale prices on items if no one knows what they usually sell for," said Friday. "I sell cheap to bring the people into my market."

Friday's gives away Sunday papers, too.

"We noticed Sunday mornings were slow so we decided to give away a paper to anyone buying a dozen donuts and nobdy comes in and just buys donuts," said Friday.

Also, make giveaways at the opposite ends of the store that way they have to walk all the way through the store and pick up other items.

"When I get a new product in I'll just about give it away first," said Friday. "If nobody wants it and I'm giving it away, then I know it won't sell."

Elements Of Success

Marketing Consultant, Ransome Blakely gave advice to make your market more successful.

1- Give the customer the product he wants and not the product you prefer to grow. This is marketing.

Provide a variety in prices and grades. Determine what is best for you to grow and what's best for you to buy to give the customer what he wants.

"If you grow apples and that's all you sell you are wasting a valuable resource, the customer," said Blakely. "

What else can you sell the customer might buy? Owners need to look at trends. Today's consumer is looking for lean meat. Blakely suggested some hot selling items such as fresh water fish, buffalo, venison, and spent hens. The consumer wants lean meat today. Give it to him. Blakely added, that the person who can cash in on this trend is the person who introduces the new product the right way the first time.

2. KNOW your costs of production and marketing. Thisis the only way to know if your farming is bringing more money than the market or if the market is carrying the farm. Blakely suggests putting a clip board at the door and write an invoice for everything that comes into your market. This is a good way to keep track of all produce coming into the market.

3. Display. Make the product look as good as it is. No flourescent lights which give the produce an unnatural color. Best lighting comes from incadescent deluxe cool white bulbs and they are cheaper, too. Store products at proper temperatures, too. Use ice to keep green leafy vegetables fresh and crisp.

The best way to keep tables fresh and attractive is to keep the produce moving.

4. Take a second look at your market layout. Are related items together, is it convenient for the customer, and does it lead the customer through the store? Keep a note pad and pencil handy to jot down ideas and obeservations. And watch how the customers react to changes.

5. Personnel sets the tone for the market. While all else in your market can be done properly, sloppy or unfriendly personnel can bring it all tumbling down. Do your employees know what you expect of them? Are you setting a good example?

Willow Valley Conference Center hosted the 1989 Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference and Trade Show on February 21-23. Those in attendance participated in workshops on market layout, merchandising techniques, hiring and training employees and increasing sales with herbs and dried flowers and toured several area produce markets.

GOOD DEALS from Good Dealers

Now ground breaking doesn't have to be plow breaking

Rocks and trash can turn an acre of plowing into an acre of headaches. That's why you should put a John Deere 2810 or 2000 Semi-Integral Moldboard Plow behind your tractor.

For fields full of rocks and heavy trash, your plow is the John Deere 2810. This on-land or in-furrow plow gives you a full 34 inches of underframe clearance. Standards on the 2810 are double-pivot spring-reset for rocky or normal conditions, and safety-trip for normal field conditions.

If you work land with fewer rocks and less trash, go with the in-furrow John Deere 2800. Standards are single-pivot spring-reset for rocky or normal conditions and safety-trip for normal field conditions. The 2800 delivers outstanding economy with plenty of John Deere muscle.

Ask your local Good Deal dealer for more information about these rock-solid plows.

TLC For Freshman

UNIVERSITY PARK — Parents, take note. Colleges and universities across the country are responding to freshmen complaints about feeling overwhelmed, lonely and even unsure about why they're in college in the first place.

Concerned about keeping students happy and productive from day one of their college experience, a number of institutions are offering special freshman seminars that help students feel more at home on campus. The theory behind the seminars is that students who are satisfied with university life are more likely to stay in school, study harder and get better grades.

Is it working? Officials at University of South Carolina, Bowling Green University, Penn State University and other campuses around the country say yes.

"When it comes to these seminars, both students and institutions profit," says Lee Upcraft, assistant vice president for counseling services at Penn State and the editor of a forthcoming book on the freshman experience. "Universities keep students enrolled and students come out of the freshman seminars with the tools they need to build a solid academic career. These classes give students their best shot at success.

"We now have evidence that freshman seminars improve the academic performance of students and increase their knowledge and use of student services," Upcraft says, adding that the seminars improve retention rates because freshmen are introduced in these classes to "significant others" -- counselors, professors and fellow students who will influence the individual student's decision to stay in school.

As an example, Upcraft points to a freshman seminar offered as an experimental course in the Penn State College of Agriculture. The course was designed by Barbara Wade, assistant professor of agricultural and extension education, as one way of sending new students home for Christmas with a firm commitment to coming back to Penn State.

Although the content of freshman seminars varies from university to university, every seminar covers what Wade calls "basic survival techniques." "Students have to know how to function within the system, how to register for courses and what the deadlines are to drop and add classes. They especially need advice on what courses to take."

Although all university students are assigned advisors, Wade points out that advising time can be used more fruitfully if students speak to their advisors with a full awareness of their options. "Students who take freshman seminars are better prepared to make the right choices."

They are also more knowledgable of the services available on campus, and more likely to use them than students who haven't taken the seminars. "The reason some freshmen flounder," Wade says, "is that they don't even know help is out there." For that reason, seminars often involve field trips to the career planning office, the counseling office or the writing lab. Or in the case of Wade's course, guest lecturers from campus service organizations visit the class.

"Students are more likely to use a service if they've already met professionals from that program," says Wade. She reports that since a representative from the university's academic assistance program spoke to her class, all students registered in her seminar have taken advantage of the program's tutoring service at least once.

She also reports that her students are taking more initiative. Eager to learn more about opportunities to study in foreign countries, students arranged for a guest lecturer from the Education Abroad program to speak to their class. Since then, a number of students have begun plans to spend their junior year studying in a foreign country.

Most important to Wade is that her students are using the library, and not just as a quiet place to read a magazine or newspaper. After spending two class sessions in the library, Wade's students are using interlibrary loan and computer search techniques to aid them in their studies.

"The library is the heart of every university," she says, "and students enrolled in freshman seminars learn that."

Teachers of freshman seminars re committed to teaching basic reading, writing and study skills. Wade, who is a certified English teacher, says parents who wonder why Johnny or Suzie can't read will be heartened by evidence that the basic skills learned in freshman seminars contribute to higher grade point averages.

They will also be relieved to know that in these seminars students are urged to examine their choice to pursue a baccalaureate degree from the first semester they start their program. Because Wade encourages her students to think about the social, political and philosophical goals of a bachelor's degree, she says her students are more likely to appreciate their education and take their investment seriously.

Many institutions are beginning to offer freshman seminars as experimental courses and, finding them successful ventures, have gone on to approve the seminars as part of the regular curriculum. Wade hopes that the College of Agriculture at Penn State will follow a similar path.

"It's been said that as early as the fifth week of school the majority of freshmen have made a fixed decision about whether or not to complete their degrees," she says. Curious to find out how effective her seminar was, Wade passed out a survey in the fifth week of class that asked students whether they still intended to finish their degrees.

"We're doing something right," Wade says. The answer, coming from all 20 students enrolled in her freshman seminar, was an overwhelming "yes."

Tree Planting Tips

For successful spring planting, start off with a properly dug, balled and burlapped, well-formed, damage-free tree. Trees with crooked trunks, broken branches, skinned bark, or an inadequately-sized root ball will prove troublesome and should be avoided.

Select a planting site that is well drained and allows enough room for the tree to grow to maturity without interfering with buildings, walkways, or other structures. Prepare the planting hole by making it at least 12 inches wider than the root ball and several inches deeper so that humus or loose soil can be placed in the bottom.

Set the tree in the hole at the same depth at which it was growing in the nursery. Planting too deeply will cause roots to die. Remove plastic wrapping and ties or loosen burlap wrapping around the soil ball.

Water the newly planted trees immediately after planting and periodically for two seasons to maintain a moist but not waterlogged soil. Do not fertilize at the time of planting, but wait until about one year after planting.

Support large trees, with rubber-protected buy wires or plastic tree ties attached to two sturdy supporting poles. Finally, mulch the soil surface at the base of the tree with wood chips or a similar organic material to maintain soil moisture and control weeds.

Consider your Hunterdon County Soil Conservation District for quality transplants this spring. Bundles of transplants with good strong root systems are available at reasonable prices. The annual fund-raising sale includes white pine, Douglas fir, Norway spruce, blue spruce, Canadian hemlock, green ash, Norway maple, and white dogwood. Call Jane Griffin at (201) 788-1397.

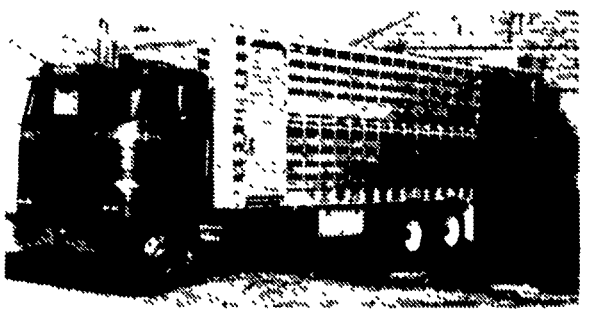
REDESIGNED 1989 TIMPTE GRAIN HOPPER

Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

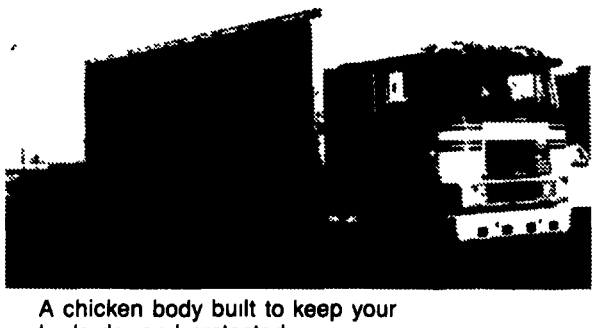
M.H. EBY, INC.
Box 127, Blue Ball, PA 17506 (717) 354-4971

An Eby grain body is surprisingly affordable and built for the long haul.

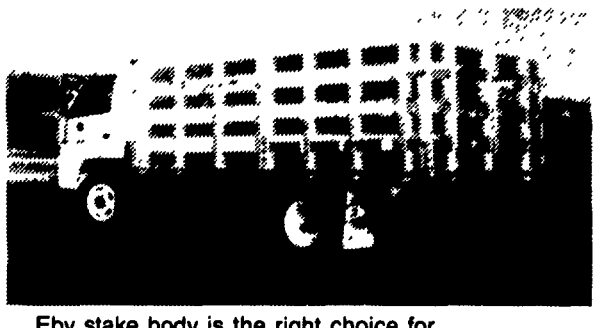


Reliable Eby livestock bodies are now aerodynamically designed.

Eby's bolt-on extends the usefulness of your pickup for minimal investment.



A chicken body built to keep your birds dry and protected.



Eby stake body is the right choice for farm or commercial use.

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Back in 1938, when Menno Eby Sr. began making wagons and cattle trucks, he was determined to give farmers strong, wooden truck bodies at a competitive price.

Some things change. Others stay the same.

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

York County To Host National Plowing Contest

YORK — During late August of this year Manchester, Mount Wolf, and surrounding East Manchester Township will come alive with activity. The South Central Penn Historic Lifestyle and Power Society, which annually holds Olde Tyme Days, will be hosting the 1989 National Plowing contest, the Pennsylvania State Plowing contest, and the York County Plowing contest all at Olde Tyme Days '89 on August 24 thru 27.

During the four days of the event, a variety of activities will unfold as Olde Tyme Days brings its usual fare of homemade food, performing arts, mule-drawn hayrides, petting zoo, steam traction engines, antique tractors and cars, gas engines and domestic chore machines. Also participating are a variety of craftsmen at work and several historical groups. This is in addition to the plowing competition, which runs concurrently at the Blain Rentzel farm as well as two others, and something of interest to everybody will be available.

Joining us will be many farm machinery companies and other agricultural related exhibits to see. Some of the special activities expected include: on Thursday, August 24 the York County Plowing competition starting at 9:30 a.m. followed by the Pennsylvania State Contest at about 11:30 a.m. and the State Antique Class around 2:30 p.m. That evening at 7:00 will host the National Plowing Contest Banquet. Friday, August 25 will see the start of the National Contest with competitors from all across the U.S.A. The small plow division will start at 10:00 a.m., followed by the big boys of the large plow division at 1:00 p.m. and some competitive horse plowing around 3:00 p.m. Entertainment on the stage will cap the day around 9:00 p.m. Saturday will find a very full day as more than 40 contestants battle it out in the National Antique Class plowing contest, which should wrap up in time for the National Awards ceremony at 2:00 p.m. at which the winners will be recognized.

Following the awards ceremony some exhibition horse hitches are planned as is an Early Era Fashion show and many other ongoing activities ending with special activities and Country Music in the evening.

To help defray costs, a $2 admission donation will be requested as all the hosting organizations are non-profit groups. Any Pennsylvania youth group interested in participating, should contact the Olde Tyme Days committee. Additionally, others interested in participating or supporting the show are invited to inquire, this include craftspersons, flea marketeers, agricultural exhibitors, historical groups, and interested individuals.

For more information please write the following address: 1989 National Plowing Contest committee, Olde Tyme Days '89, Box 668, Mount Wolf, PA 17347. Or you may call secretary Traci Dolan at York County Farm and Industrial Equipment at 717/764-6412 or 717/764-5115.

Landowners' Management Of Natural Resources Is Conference Topic

NEWARK, DE — Farmers, woodlot owners and rural communities can develop new income opportunities through proper management of natural resources. Information that can help landowners assess the potential for developing economic activities using their natural resources will be presented at a regional conference at Oglebay Park in Wheeling, W.Va., April 9-12, 1989.

The four-day conference is designed to train professionals, including foresters, rural economic development specialists, wildlife biologists and agriculturists, to work with landowners in their states on managing natural resources. The conference, "Income Opportunities for the Private Landowner Through Management of Natural Resources and Recreational Access," should also be of interest to Extension personnel, farm bureau staff, agency representatives, researchers, community leaders, forest industry personnel and business leaders.

Early registration is encouraged because the conference is limited to 300 participants.

Income-producing opportunities that will be discussed include hunting reserves, hunting leases, recreation clubs, tree farms, campgrounds and bed-and-breakfast enterprises.

Participants will also hear presentations on resource and management requirements, market demand, legal liability and responsibilities, insurance risks and customer relations. These are areas where problems can arise for landowners who are starting natural resources management programs.

Conference sponsors include West Virginia University, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the West Virginia Farm Bureau as well as a number of other agencies, organizations and Eastern land-grant universities.

For more information about the April conference, contact University of Delaware Extension renewable resource agent Dean Belt, Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, South College Avenue, Newark, DE 19717; 302/451-8934.

Brochures Offered On Herbicide Use For Conservation Compliance Acres

INDIANAPOLIS, IN — A brochure outlining preemergent herbicide tillage programs that meet federal conservation compliance guidelines is now available to soybean producers from Elanco Products Company.

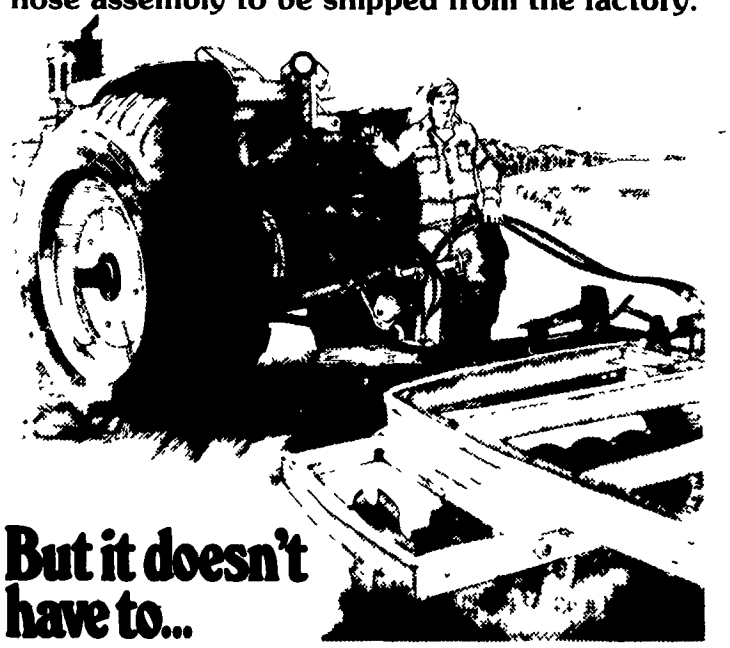
"Conservation Compliance: Keeping Season-Long Weed Control" reviews tillage incorporation options which allow growers to use a preplant herbicide — such as Treflan or Sonalan — on some highly erodible land and still comply with the conservation compliance program.

It covers the influence of field operations on surface residue cover and gives tips on estimating the amount of residue cover left after tillage trips.

Free copies of "Conservation Compliance: Keeping Season-Long Weed Control" can be obtained from chemical dealers or from Elanco Products Company, Lilly Corporate Center, Dept. EM 177, Indianapolis, IN 46285.

A BROKEN HYDRAULIC HOSE CAN COST YOU HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS...

... in lost or damaged crops. When there's work to be done in the fields it's important to keep your farm machinery on the job. When there's a breakdown you can't afford to wait for a new hose assembly to be shipped from the factory.



But it doesn't have to...

WE MAKE HOSE ASSEMBLIES WHILE YOU WAIT ... assemblies which are exactly like the original and better! To put your equipment back to work in the fields fast. You don't lose valuable time, don't lose crops.

The 85 Series: Five Models, Dozens Of Possibilities

YOU WON'T BEAT THIS ONE FOR LOADER WORK With The
NEW SHUTTLE REVERSE TRANSMISSION

If you've ever been frustrated when looking for a tractor that suits your needs exactly, the CASE IH 85 Series may be just what you need.

For starters, this line covers a wide range of horsepower offerings. The models include the 385 to 35 PTO hp (26.1 kW), the 485 to 42 PTO hp, the 585 at 52 PTO hp, the 685 at 62 PTO hp and the 885 at 72 PTO hp.

The versatility continues at the front axle, where up to six different designs are available. Every model can be equipped with Mechanical Front Drive (MFD), giving you added traction and maneuverability. Depending on the model, you can choose from these axles: MFD, utility, heavy-duty cast, low profile, swept-back or row-crop.

Case IH offers a full line of loaders for the 85 Series, too. Combine a loader with MFD on one of these tractors, and you'll make short work of big chores.

Equip the 585, 685 or 885 with an available all-season cab, and you'll have a great place to work. With almost 30 sq. ft. (2.79 m²) of tinted glass, you'll see everything clearly. Air conditioning and heater are standard, and the cab is seated on exclusive Isomounts® for quiet, vibration-free performance.

Transmissions include a standard 8F/9R synchromesh, an optional 8F/8R power shuttle that allows rolling forward/reverse shifts, and an optional 16F/8R two-speed powershift with convenient toggle-switch control (standard on 885).

The 485, 585 and 685 are available as Orchard/Vineyard Specials.

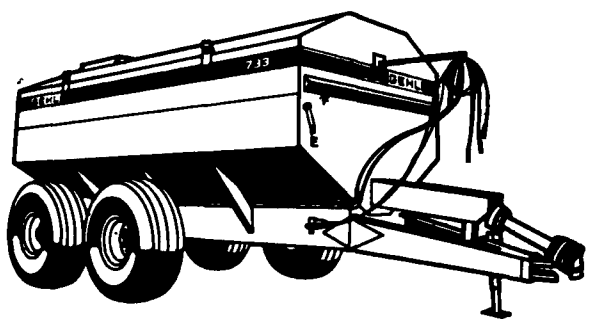
GEHL

MANURE SPREADERS SPRING CLEARANCE SALE



Spread liquids fast

A Gehl liquid tanker makes fast work of your toughest spreading jobs... delivering the spreading accuracy you need to get the most value from your liquid manure. A specially designed internal auger agitates manure and delivers it to the discharge valve for constant spreading or injecting. A positive-seal gate eliminates spillage. And a fill indicator lets you monitor the manure level in the tank to prevent overflow during loading.

GEHL MODEL 733 LIQUID TANKER SPREADER
3300 Gal. Capacity
Tandem Axles With Tires
SALE PRICE $8,535

The one spreader for the two spreader farm

Spread liquids, semi-solids, solids, pen-packed, even frozen manure. A Gehl Scavenger® II manure spreader does the work of two spreaders for the price of one. It's built for efficiency, with a heavy-duty square-tube auger that works harder than conventional round augers. The auger powers up and down hydraulically to prevent bridging and cut through winter freeze-ups. Variflo front, right-hand discharge gives you complete application control.

GEHL MODEL 309 SCAVENGER MANURE SPREADER
192 Bu. Capacity Includes 1000x20 Tires

GEHL MODEL 322 SCAVENGER SPREADER
468 Bu., Tandem Axle With Tires
SALE PRICE $10,995

Unbeatable... priced right

If you handle mostly solid manure, a Gehl box spreader has the performance features you want at a price you'll appreciate. Features include special Gehl-Tuff flooring that prevents the apron from freezing to the floor and lets manure slide out with little resistance; 12-gauge, corrosion-resistant GEHL STEEL sides for strength and endurance; wide-spread beater paddles for wide, even spreads; constant velocity pto; and a standard two-speed worm drive transmission. Add a 10-year warranty on the floor and sides and you have an unbeatable package available only from your Gehl dealer.

GEHL MODEL 175 BOX TYPE MANURE SPREADER
175 Bu. Capacity

GEHL MODEL 325 BOX TYPE MANURE SPREADER

The Mixer/Blender/Feeder that handles your TMR ingredients including long stem hay. Pictured is the RA2250.

Reel Auggie Mixing Chamber

The reel turns slowly and gently lifts material into the two blending augers. The lower auger is notched and moves the material forward. The upper auger, which moves the material rearward, features replaceable knives which assist the blending of long baled hay or other tough roughage materials.

Advantages of the Reel Auggie Design

*Reduced mixing time with lower horsepower requirements.
*Power chute optional in tow and truck mount applications.

* LAIDIG 43 - Ideal unloader for high moisture ground ear corn or high moisture shelled corn.

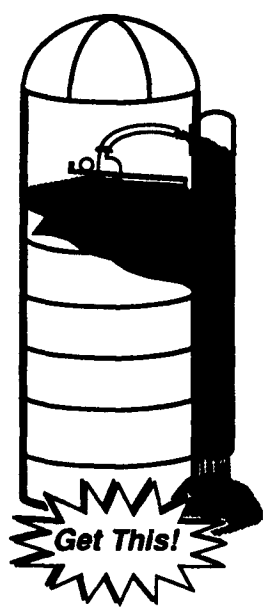
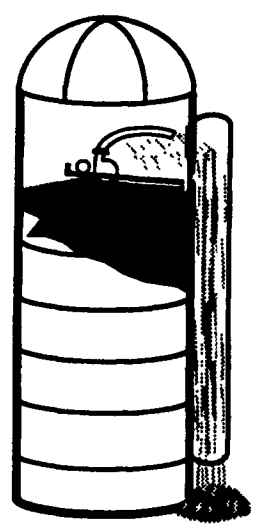
Get the Power You Pay For With Van Dale DURAGLIDE™





The newest innovation in silo unloading—from Van Dale, of course—is the DURAGLIDE Impeller System, which dramatically increases throwing power while reducing power requirements.

The DURAGLIDE paddle and wrapper inserts are slicker than glass and more durable than stainless steel.

Results in silage out the door every time—no annoying trips up the silo!

Performance Tested Bull Sale Scheduled

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center wishes to announce that plans are being finalized for Pennsylvania's 16th performance tested bull sale. The sale is scheduled for Friday, March 31, 1989 at noon in Penn State's Ag Arena.

Fifty-four of Pennsylvania's most progressive purebred breeders have consigned 75 of the best available purebred bulls of various breeds to the testing program here at the Meat Animal Evaluation Center. After completion of the 112-day testing period, the bulls are subjected to further evaluation such as: a comprehensive breeding soundness exam, including individual semen checks, ultrasonic measurement of fat thickness and estimated loin eye area and a health evaluation including blood and T.B. testing to enable these bulls to go anywhere in the country. The bulls also must meet minimum requirements for structural correctness and breed character. Each bull will have individual feed efficiencies calculated.

After all of the indexes are calculated and the evaluations analyzed, about the top 75 percent of the bulls were selected to be offered in the sale.

On test there are 27 Polled Herefords, 21 Angus, 17 Simmentals, five Charolais, two Salers, one Red Angus, one Chianina, and one Limousin.

The top-gaining bull over all breeds is the Angus bull consigned by Penn State University. This Pine Drive Big Sky son has maintained a tremendous 4.71 pounds per day gain through 84 days with a ratio of 130.

The second-fastest gaining Angus bull is the Windac Heritage son consigned by Linkland Farms. This growthy bull has gained 4.23 pounds per day on test and has a 3.60 pounds per day lifetime weight per day of age.

The second-fastest gaining bull over all breeds is the Polled Hereford bull consigned by Stony Creek Farm. This JRP183 Wallstreet T56 son has maintained 4.40 pounds per day gain on test. The second-fastest gaining Polled Hereford bull is the Klondike Banner 469L son consigned by Egleston's Polled Herefords. This thickly made bull has gained 4.37 pounds per day on test, and he also recorded the top lifetime weight per day of age among the Polled Hereford with a 3.58 pounds per day lifetime gain.

The two Salers bulls on test this year are both from Lyn Lee Farms and are performing quite well. The ¾ -blood Keys Fortune 4125 son has gained 3.82 pounds per day on test while the black LLF Nephew 40T son has gained 3.54 pounds per day through 84 days.

The top-gaining Simmental, which has gained 4.27 pounds per day on test, is a Signal son consigned by Oak Hills farm. The second-fastest gaining Simmental is the bull consigned by Harvest Plantation. This Papillion son has gained 4.21 pounds per day on test.

The two top-gaining Charolais are both consigned by Bratton Charolais Farm. These bulls are both maintaining gains in excess of four pounds per day and have gain ratios of 123.

The moderately framed, structurally correct Limousin bull has maintained a 3.60 pounds per day gain on test.

The Red Angus bull is a Leachman Stamina son and has gained 3.25 pounds per day on test with a lifetime weight per day of age of 3.17 pounds per day.

The lone Chianina bull is a son of BB John Henry and is gaining 2.75 pounds per day on test, and he has a 3.27 pound lifetime weight per day of age.

Keener Brothers Make Rocky Knoll Swine Farm Successful

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — In a pocket of farmland just outside the city limits, a 1,000-sow, farrow-to-finish operation flourishes.

Daryl and Doug Keener move about 350 market hogs each week from their Rocky Knoll Swine farm. Doug handles genetics, breeding, and mechanical repairs while Daryl is in charge of the farrowing sows and the pigs growth. Helping them is a full-time herdsman, Donald Brubaker, and Darrel Mills, a part-time worker.

The brothers produce 133 market hogs per crate and raise their own replacement gilts, which contain Yorkshire and Landrace blood. Their sows have a four-year conception-rate average of 93.5 percent.

Their efforts were recognized recently by the National Swime Improvement Federation, which named them the nation's top state commercial producer.

The Keeners' interest in hog production began with 30-year-old Daryl who sold feeder pigs for extra money while he was in high school. He kept his herd on his father Harlan's dairy farm.

Once Daryl graduated from high school, he knew he wanted to farm, but he didn't want to follow in his father's footsteps. "I liked working with animals, and with dairy farming there's a lot of work with fields and machinery," he explained. "I like working with animals more."

The Keeners' uncle had a hog operation that appealed to them. In particular, "I liked that it doesn't tie you down as much as a dairy farm," Daryl said.

Daryl, left, and Doug Keener stand outside their farrow-to-finish facility where they have 1,000 sows and finish about 350 market hogs per week. The pair recently were named the nation's top commercial producer by the National Swine Improvement Federation.

The drawing card for Doug was the manner in which the hogs were raised: inside. "I had never seen pigs raised inside before and I liked the new modern ways," he related. "I liked the concept."

In 1979 a 88x256-foot farrowing house was built that contained 600 sows. The feeder pigs were contracted out to be finished. Five years later the building was remodeled into a farrow-to-finish facility that houses 1,000 sows.

"We expanded into finishing because there's more money in it, and it was getting harder to find contract floors," Doug explained.

"The profit margins were slim and if we raised the hogs all the way through, the profit margin got bigger," Daryl added.

The hog building, which was designed with the help of Pennfield, is divided into five sections: gestation/breeding, farrowing, pre-nursery, nursery, and grower/finisher. In addition, it has a side building that contains office space, washing machine and dryer, shower facilities, refrigerator, and utilities.

The farrowing room has 128 crates and about 48 or 49 sows farrow weekly. The piglets stay for about 17 to 23 days, with the oldest litters being moved out first.

The pre-nursery is composed of four sections with 16 pens per section. Two litters, or about 23 to 25 pigs, occupy each pen. The hogs stay here for four weeks before moving on to the nursery. After a section is emptied out, it is thoroughly cleaned and disinfected with high-pressure hot water before the next litters are moved in. "This keeps bacteria down and provides a good start for the next litters," Daryl said. "We try to keep it as clean as possible."

The next four weeks are spent in the nursery, which is set up like the pre-nursery room with more space. Here again, once the pigs move on, their quarters are disinfected.

The grower/finisher roon, which makes up three-fourths of Sows at Rocky Knoll Swine farm produce about 133 market hogs per crate. The farrowing room, which contains 128 crates, has an expanded metal flooring and a manure scraper underneath that cleans the room twice each day. Piglets stay under a 250-watt heat lamp, which is surrounded by a hover that helps keep the heat on the young animals.

USSR Accepts Simental Semen From U.S. Breeders

BOZEMAN, MT — A historic presentation of semen to Russia was recently made by two American Simmental cattle breeders.

The gift was made directly to Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev by David Rockefeller at a recent meeting in Moscow. Rockefeller and his wife, Peggy, own Hudson Pines Farms, a Simmental operation located at Tarrytown, N.Y.

The semen was produced by two Simmental bulls. "TND Chieftain", owned jointly by Hudson Pines and Breck Ellison Farms of Lenoir City, Tennessee and "HPF Keep It Clean," also owned by Hudson Pines. This is not the first international venture for Hudson Pines Farms and Breck Ellison Farms as semen from TND Chieftain has been exported to Australia, New Zealand, Brazil and Columbia, and semen from Keep It Clean has been exported to Australian, New Zealand, Panama, Paraguay, Venezuela and Brazil.

"We hope the semen will be used on as many as 10 farms in the Soviet Union," said Breck Ellison. "In the future, we hope to have the opportunity to visit these farms to see their cattle and the resulting progeny."

"Better relationships with the Soviet people and their leaders are important across all levels of our society," Ellison declared. "We are extremely pleased to be the first beef breed anywhere in the world to introduce semen into the U.S.S.R. American agriculture has much to offer to countries around the world."

Reports published by the World Simmental Federation indicate that the Soviet Union has approximately 17 million Simmental cattle, more than any other country in the world. The flow of genetics and breeding information between the U.S.S.R. and the rest of the world's cattle producing countries has not been commonplace. American beef producers are hopeful that this gesture may be the start of an on-going process of exchange between the two countries.

the building and occupies about an acre of land, is one big, open room. It contains 160 separate pens, half of which are grower pens, the other half being finisher pens. The Keeners place about 35 hogs per pen, which means about 5½ square feet per pig in the grower pens and 7½ square feet per pig in the finisher pens. From here, as the pigs reach market weight, most are loaded into a disinfected Pennfield truck and taken straight to the Hatfield packing plant. About 15 hogs per week, cull sows and boars and overweight hogs, are sent to the stockyards.

The brothers are proud to say that in the past five years, there has been no need for a veterinarian to treat their hogs. The only vet who has called on the farm is the service vet provided by Babcock Genetics, who supplies the boars for the operation.

"We have had touches of parvo and greasy pig," Daryl hastened to add. "But they were very mild."

The farm's herd-health program includes a vaccination schedule, biosecurity, and record keeping. Pigs are vaccinated in the nursery for erysipelas; replacement gilts are vaccinated at 24 weeks for rhinitis, erysipelas, parvo virus, and leptospirosis, and again four weeks prior to farrowing for rhinitis; all females are vaccinated 10 days before farrowing for rhinitis and in the farrowing room for erysipelas, parvo virus, and leptospirosis.

"We do this to keep their immune system up," Daryl explained. "And if we don't vaccinate the fat hogs in the nursery, they could pick up the diseases at any time as they move through the building."

The Keeners would rather spend money on vaccinations than pay out more later in trying to eliminate a disease from their herd.

The hogs are fed drugs only during the two weeks after weaning when stress has weakened their immune systems. The Keeners, who buy all their feed from Pennfield, do not administer drugs to their hogs at any other time.

The operation has a tight biosecurity program. Showers are taken before entering the building, and the men go outside the barn as little as possible. When they do, they use a foot bath upon re-entering. In addition, they have barn clothes that stay at the barn and are washed there. Feed is blown into bins from outside the building, and only one company hauls the market hogs, disinfecting between loads. The only new animals admitted to the building are boars provided by Babcock.

Intensive record keeping helps the Keeners keep track of their herd's health. Records are kept on computer, a terminal for which is located in the hog barn and in the Keeners' home farm. The computer system is tied in with computers at Pennfield, who provided the software.

The Keener brothers, who farm in partnership with their mother, Shirley, and their father, Harlan, are concerned about their environment and are in the Chesapeake Bay program. Harlan, who farms more than 200 acres, has been employing conservation practices for about four or five years now. The conservation- and manure-management plans drawn up for the farm include an above-ground 1,333,000-gallon manure tank and three manure lagoons with a total capacity for up to 4.5 million pounds of manure.

"We give the excess manure to our neighbors for the hauling," Harlan explained. "Last year we were 300 truckloads (about 3,500 gallons per load) short of the demand."

The Keeners also have a methane digester connected to the hog building that provides energy for the barns and house.

The Keeners' concern for their surroundings bespeaks a related concern for their community. It is this desire to work with their neighbors while operating their hog business that will help ensure their future in the agricultural industry.

Number 1 Feeder Buys Video Auction Firm

AMARILLO, TX — Cactus Feeders Inc., the nation's No. 1 feeder, through one of its subsidiaries, has purchased a 75-percent share of one of the country's leading livestock video auction companies.

Dande Production Inc., the Cactus subsidiary, will manage Satellite Cattle Exchange, Ltd., formerly known as Satellite Cattle Exchange, "at arms length to Cactus," according to Paul Engler, Cactus president and chief officer.

The satellite auction company sold an estimated 100,000 head in its first year of operation, Engler said. Tripling that number this year to 300,000 is a target for the company, he said.

Engler said that one of the many potential benefits satellite-based marketing can provide is coverage of cattle in all areas of the country. Currently, the firm lists 90 agents in 11 states that stretch from Arizona to Alabama and from South Dakota to Texas. Engler said the firm plans to be aggressive in taking advantage of the broad network capability.

Plans, Engler said, include expanding network coverage to include "the Nebraska Sand Hills, North and South Dakota, the Kansas Flint Hills, eastern Oklahoma and California — particularly during the spring cattle runs."

Video marketing holds a lot of potential Engler said, adding that he does not want to restrict use of the satellite technology just to livestock.

"Cactus does not intend to make the mistake that the railroads in the United States made when they failed to recognize that they were in the transportation business and not just in the railroad business," he said.

When asked if satellite marketing of beef might be pursued, Engler said, "Well, we haven't thought of that, but maybe it is something we should consider." Reprinted from the February 16 issue of "Drovers Journal."

Trichomoniasis Vaccine Granted Conditional License

PHOENIX, AZ. — Bowing to requests of bovine veterinarians, the USDA expedited its review and has granted a conditional license for a vaccine shown to be 90 percent effective against trichomoniasis in cattle.

"Trich" specialists say the license was granted to Fort Dodge/Franklin Laboratories because no other vaccine exists and manufacture of an antibiotic ended in December.

Stockmen and veterinarians are increasingly concerned about trich, which has been diagnosed in a fast-growing number of states. Cases have been reported in all but two states west of the Mississippi. Veterinarians say trich likely exists in most other states.

Company officials said the Fort Dodge/Franklin product, a killed Trichomonas vaccine, will be available by mid-March in 50-dose vials. The conditional license means product sales in each state will require the state veterinarian's approval. Company officials said most approvals are already in.

Trich is venereally transmitted and causes infertility, early abortions or uterine infections resulting in varying degrees of reproductive inefficiency. Losses due to the disease are estimated at more than $500 million annaully. In a 100-cow herd, losses can total between $16,000 and $20,000.

Trich often goes undetected until a producer sees cows return to heat at the end of the breeding period or a difference in calf age and size at weaning.

The vaccine should be used before the breeding season and requires two injections two to four weeks apart. The second injection should be given two weeks before the breeding season, so the animal can build immunity before breeding.

New Liquid Manure Pump

OXFORD (Chester) — Houle Farm Equipment has announced the release to production of its newly designed liquid manure pump. This pump has the unique ability to operate in pits of various depths as well as lagoons with steep slopes.

The double-hinged frame with two hydraulic cylinders allows the pump to operate from a horizontal position to as steep as 60 degree angle. This allows a farmer with pits of different depths to purchase only one pump instead of a pump for each different depth.

Design changes on the intake and impeller make this pump extremely aggressive. There is a force feeding propeller in front of the intake that allows this pump to operate in heavy bedded and drier manure than was previously considered possible.

More information may be obtained from the local representative by contacting US Agri Systems, Inc., 3053 Barren Rd., Oxford, PA 19363.

White-New Idea Presents New Line Of All-Purpose Tractors

COLDWATER, OH — White Farm Equipment introduced its new line of all purpose tractors February 4th at the company's National Dealer Meeting in Chicago. This new American made tractor line, aptly named the "American Series," is available in a choice of four colors. Standard is the White Farm silver. Three optional historic color choices include: Oliver green, Minneapolis-Moline gold and Cockshutt red.

According to Ron Hottes, president of the White-New Idea, the idea to offer the heritage color option came from surveys conducted at numerous farm shows throughout North America in 1988. A special one-of-a-kind show tractor, "The Spirit of Oliver" was displayed at these farm shows. This unique tractor drew thousands to the White Farm display. More than 5,000 of these visitors completed a detailed survey form. The results and analysis indicated a strong interest in color options for tractors.

Many of the surveys were even more specific by requesting colors that reflect White Farm's rich past. Each of the new colors offered in the "American Series" match the colors of the three major tractor lines that were the forefathers of White Farm Equipment: Oliver, Minneapolis-Moline and Cockshutt.

Rod Cooper, vice president of sales has been carefully listeing to dealers' requests for an all-purpose tractor. "Our dealers have been asking for an American built tractor in the 60 to 80 horsepower range. Combined with the historic color options, we have responded to our dealers' requests and their customer needs."

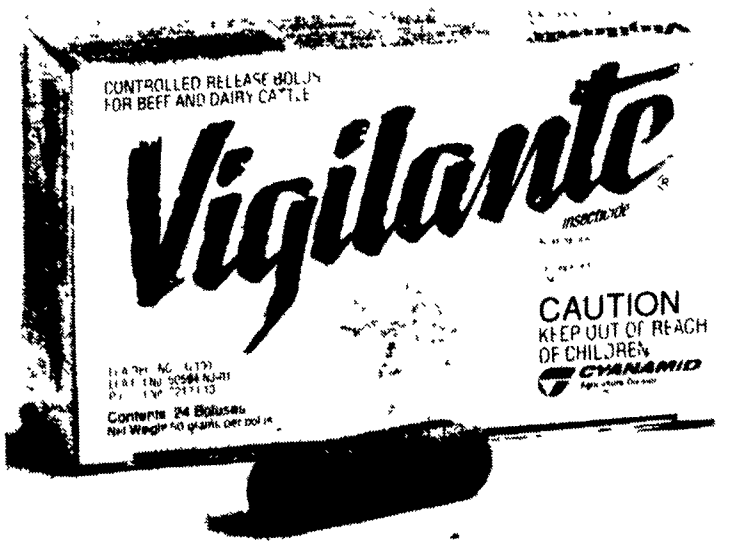
"We have made a commitment to become a successful market driven company. The American Series is just one of the steps we are taking to be more responsive to the marketplace," stated Bill Cheever, vice president of marketing.

The American Series is designed as an all-purpose tractor that can perform tough field work, and has excellent maneuverability for farm chores. It is a tractor line with an optional three-speed powershift that gives true crop performance in the field. Powered by a Cummins "B Series" four-cylinder engine, the American Series includes 60 and 80 horsepower models in both two- and four-wheel drive. The rugged, cast-iron main frame, a White Farm traditional feature, has weight incorporated in the right places for strength, and weight distributed to enhance the all-purpose operation.

Optional equipment can be selected to equip the "American Series" for a variety of functions, truly making this tractor an all-purpose performer.

A new line of all-purpose tractors was recently introduced by White-New Idea. They are offered in four colors: silver, green, gold, and red. Each color represents the colors of the three major tractor lines that were the forefathers of White Farm Equipment: Oliver, Minneapolis-Moline, and Cockshutt.

BUSINESS NEWS...



Cyanamid now will be marketing Eazi-Breed, a pharmaceutical product that increases livestock reproduction efficiency. The product slowly releases progesterone to regulate the estrus cycle, permitting greater usage of artificial insemination and embryo transfer.

Cyanamid Expands Animal Health Product Line

WAYNE, N.J.— American Cyanamid Company has obtained the North American rights to develop and market Eazi-Breed CIDR (controlled internal drug release), a pharmaceutical product that increases livestock reproduction efficiency.

The Eazi-Breed CIDR is a plastic device consisting of silicone elastomer impregnated with progesterone. The slow release of progesterone serves to regulate the estrus cycle. The device will permit greater usage of artificial insemination and embryo transfer and improve reproductive efficiency and genetic progress.

When implanted in animals, the device controls the breeding cycle through the timed release of progesterone. Ovulation ensues within 72 hours after removal.

"Cyanamid is deeply commited to this product and the animal health industry as a whole," said Kenneth Schuttler, general manager of the firm's Animal Nutrition and Health Department, Agricultural Division. "The marketing of CIDRs in North America is just one component of an ongoing strategy to develop important livestock proprietary products."

Cyanamid is currently focusing its efforts on use of CIDRs in cattle, sheep and goats. Research trials are under way in the United States for FDA approval.

CIDRs were jointly developed by Carter Holt Harvey Limited and the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries - Ruakura in Hamilton, New Zealand. The rights to the product are owned by Carter Holt Harvey Limited, a major forestry, fishing and manufacturing company in New Zealand. CIDRs have been marketed in New Zealand and Australia for two years and are manufactured at the firm's plastics division in Hamilton.

Cyanamid is a research-based biotechnology and chemical company which develops agricultural, medical, chemical and consumer products and manufactures and markets them throughout the world.

Lynks Markets New Alfalfa Seed

MARSHALLTOWN, IA — Called Allegiance™, this new alfalfa being marketed by Lynks Seeds, was developed specifically for the soils and climates of the central cornbelt.

In three years of yield data covering 26 harvests at five locations from Illinois to Maryland, Allegiance™ yielded an average of 4.58 tons dry matter per acre and that includes six harvests during super-dry 1988.

In Piper City, Ill., four cuttings in 1987 yielded a hefty 7.28 tons (DM) per acre; in 1988 at Piper City severe drouth reduced the yield to 1.7 tons (DM) per acre from a single cutting. In Meade, Neb., three cuttings in 1988 yielded 3.35 tons (DM) per acre.

Allegiance™ is an extremely vigorous alfalfa with fast regrowth and good winter hardiness. It is the 'healthiest' of any alfalfa in the Lynks line-up with excellent resistance to fusarium wilt, bacterial wilt, anthracnose and phytophthora root rot ... and very good resistance to verticillium wilt.

Lynks marketing officials position Allegiance™ as "the new alfalfa that all other alfalfas will be compared to."

Gehl Introduces New Front-Mounted Forage Harvester

WEST BEND, WI — Gehl Company now offers the new CB1040, a front-mounted forage harvester for use with bidirectional tractors with a three-point hitch.

"The 1040 is an attractive and cost-effective addition to bidirectional tractors because it provides farmers with many of the features of a self-propelled forage harvester for a lot less money," says Terry LeFever, Gehl's forage harvesting equipment product manager.

With the tractor seat rotated, and the forage box trailing behind, the operator is seated directly above the harvesting action for superior visibility and control. The 1040 performs well in muddy fields because of its light weight, and because of the bidirectional tractor's articulated steering and 4-wheel drive capability.

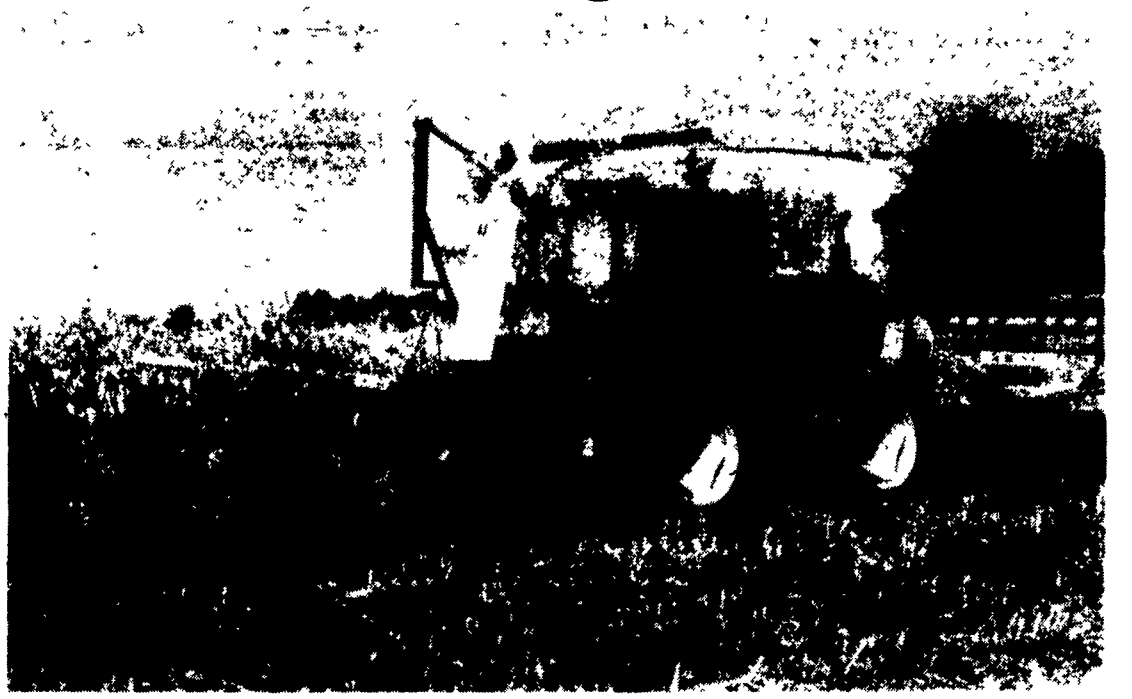
The three-paddle 36-inch diameter, 1,000-RPM blower is direct-driven and close-coupled to the cylinder, as in Gehl's 860 forage harvester. This feature allows straight-through feed flow from crophead to forage box.

The 1040 also includes an electric clutch which allows the use of a speed monitor to prevent spout plugging, and torque sensors to eliminate downtime from shear bolt failure.

Spout rotation, cap control, forward and reverse selection, as well as the electric clutch positions, are all electrically controlled from a box mounted to the cab's steering pedestal.

A 7-foot hay pickup and 2- and 3-row cornhead attachments are available to maximize the flexibility of Gehl's unique front-mounted harvester. An optional water tank is available with the hay attachment.

For more information contact Richard Burckardt, Gehl Co., 143 Water Street, West Bend, WI 53095; 414/334-9461.



The Gehl front-mounted forage harvester is designed to be used with bidirectional tractors with a three-point hitch. The harvester has a three-paddle, 1,000-rpm blower that is direct driven and close coupled to the cylinder.

Deere Dealers Gather For New Product Introduction

PALM SPRINGS, CA — Brimming with optimism after pacesetting farm equipment sales in 1988, about 6,200 people from John Deere dealerships around the world have been coming here through most of January for the largest introduction of agricultural products in Deere & Company's 152-year history.

Deere showed them a completely new line of combines, six row-crop tractors from 105 to 200 horsepower, hay balers, disks, and more. Dealers responded with cheers.

Until recently, they had little to cheer about. Industry-wide, tractor sales plummeted 76 percent between 1979 and 1987, and combines 78 percent. But toward the end of 1987, things began to turn, and last year John Deere farm equipment dealers turned in their best performance since 1981.

"Land values stabilized after a long slide downward, and then began to strengthen," explained Neil O. Christenson, vice president (marketing) of Deere's farm equipment division. "Farm debt was reduced by more than $50 billion dollars from its peak, and that freed up about $6 billion obligated to debt service. Government drought assistance helped farmers a lot. And the 1985 farm legislation is now helping to produce improvement in export markets for U.S. farm commodities, also."

Christenson said that as a result of these positive factors, U.S. farm net cash income is expected to reach a record level of nearly $60 billion in 1988, and farmers' confidence has been increasing steadily.

Deere's manufacturing operations have moved upward with the growing recovery. The company earned a record $315 million on total net sales of $5.365 billion in 1988 -- up 30 percent over 1987. Sales of farm equipment, which include lawn and grounds care products, totaled $4.2 billion.

Christenson said it is expected that U.S. crop acreage will increase by more than 30 million acres in 1989 -- about 10 percent more planted acreage than last year.

These factors, plus the pent-up demand for equipment that has been building during the downturn, have given Deere and its dealers an upbeat outlook for 1989. Deere set its initial 1989 production schedules 11 percent higher overall than actual 1988 output, and agricultural equipment schedules are substantially higher than that.

All through the lean years, Deere kept investing heavily in product research and development -- more than $200 million a year, equivalent to more than 5 percent of net sales.

The products introduced at Palm Springs are part of the payoff of that effort.

As one John Deere dealer said, "The markets are back. These products couldn't come at a better time."

Fourth Annual Wix/FFA Fundraiser Underway

GASTONIA, NC — Wix Corporation's Fourth Annual "Farm Filter Fundraiser" for the National FFA Organization (Future Farmers of America) is now underway and heading for its best year ever, according to the company.

This unique program has raised tens of thousands of dollars for FFA chapters.

FFA Chapters across the country are collecting Wix boxtops from Wix air, fuel, oil, coolant and transmission products for farm vehicles and redeeming them for cash. The dollars earned from the redeemed boxtops will help fund chapter activities like trips, jackets and charitable contributions throughout the year. It's easy to do and doesn't require any selling.

During the fundraising period of March 1 to May 31, 1989, Wix, a Gold Sponsor of FFA, will donate $.20 to any registered FFA chapter for each Wix farm filter boxtop collected. And as an added incentive, the chapter that submits the most boxtops per member in each of four regions will receive a bonus check for $250.

"Everyone gets involved in this fundraiser," explained Wix Director of Marketing William A. Smith. "Farmers can help by stocking up on Wix filters for farm equipment during the promotion and saving the boxtops for their local FFA chapter. Automotive parts stores which carry Wix filters support the FFA chapter drives with signs, advertising, and direct mail campaigns. And FFA members can earn money for their chapters.

"Sponsoring this annual fundraiser is our way to 'Invest in the Future of Farming', the program's campaign theme," Smith concluded.

There's still time for FFA chapters to get involved. For more information and a full promotional kit on the Fourth Annual Wix/FFA Farm Filter Fundraiser, Chapters should contact the Marketing Department, Wix Corporation, a division of Dana Corporation, P.O. Box 1967, Gastonia, NC 28053; 704/864-6711.

Wix, a division of Dana Corporation, is one of the largest filter manufacturers in the world with broad coverage in the farm, trucking, off-road, automotive aftermarket and marine industries. Its products are available nationwide at automotive jobbers and are shipped daily from four regional distribution centers.

MOOOvin' With The Delaware Valley College

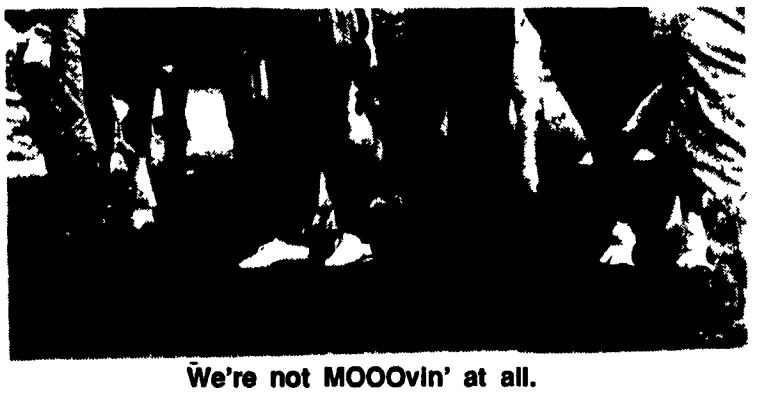
We went MOOOvin' across Route 202 at New Britain Road, no less.

I'll kinda miss the old place but time keeps MOOOvin' on.

Who, me? Scared of MOOOvin'? Never!

You better hang on young lady. I'm scared of MOOOvin' trucks.

The students and faculty in the dairy science department at Delaware Valley College, Doylestown, invited the press to watch them lead their dairy herd across busy Route 202. The move was made to new barns just completed behind the main campus across the railroad track. Managing Editor Everett Newswanger joined the fun. Here is what the cows may have thought as they MOOOved through this historic event.



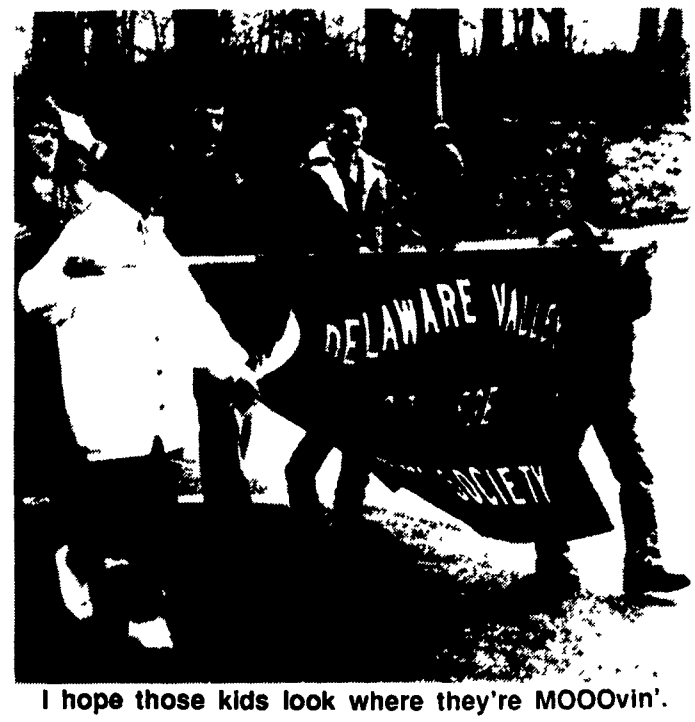
We're not MOOOvin' at all.

Come on, let's get MOOOvin'. The heck with the news people.

And Associate Dean Plummer says we're not MOOOvin' at all until we meet the press.

Dairy Science MOOOvers And The MOOOvees.

We're MOOOvin' out from the old place. Finally.

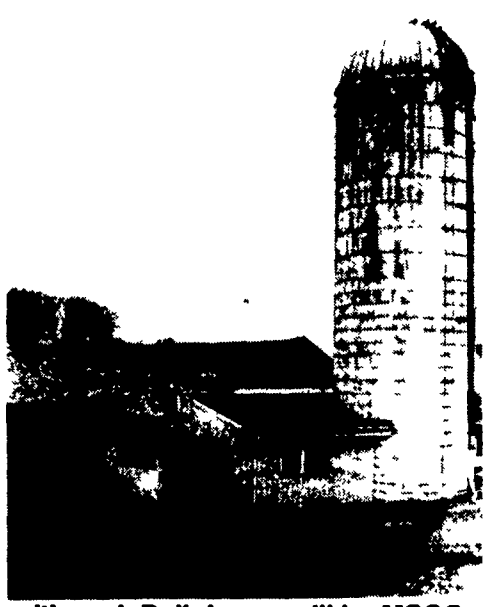


I hope those kids look where they're MOOOvin'.

You better get your hand up Mister. We don't want that car MOOOvin' in on us.

Even Trustee Richard H. Woodring, dairy class of '34, gets into MOOOvin'.

Wow! Get a look at what we're MOOOvin' to. It looks expensive.



It's sad. Bull dozers will be MOOOvin' on the old barn next week; to make way for development, you know.

With the help of Doug and Cherly, of course, I think I'll try MOOOvin' in to my new stall.

U.S. Pork Producers Win First Round Against Canadian Pork Imports

DES MOINES, IA — The National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) has won the first round in its attempt to obtain a countervailing duty on subsidized Canadian fresh, chilled and frozen pork products entering the United States.

The U.S. International Trade Commission (ITC), in a preliminary ruling February 16, determined there was sufficient evidence that the subsidized product was or has the potential of causing injury to U.S. pork producers and packers to warrant a more complete investigation.

The matter now goes to the Commerce Department which is expected to make a preliminary ruling by March 31 as to whether the payments made by the federal and provincial governments to Canadian pork producers constitutes a subsidy under the countervailing duty provisions of the trade agreement between the two nations. If the Commerce Department rules in favor of NPPC in March, the department is expected to make a final determination on the amount of a duty on Canadian fresh, chilled and frozen pork products by mid-May.

The U.S. International Trade Commission is expected to make its final injury determination by the end of June. A duty could go in effect in July if the two agencies give final determinations in favor of U.S. producers.

U.S. pork producers, through the National Pork Producers Council, obtained a countervailing duty on subsidized live Canadian hogs entering the United States in July, 1985. However, an attempt to extend the duty to Canadian pork products was not successful at that time. U.S. pork producers expressed fears that Canadians would attempt to bypass the duty on live hogs by simply processing them into pork products and sending them into the U.S. duty-free.

According to the National Pork Producers Council, that is what has occurred. Canadians have increased their imports of pork products into the U.S. by more than 52 percent since 1984. By the end of 1988, Canadian pork imports to the United States totaled approximately 519 million pounds.

Glenn Grimes, University of Missouri agriculture economist, told the ITC at a hearing last month that Canadian pork imports cut U.S. producer revenues by as much as $3.37 per hundredweight in 1988. Overall, the imports caused a revenue loss of as much as $697 million to U.S. producers during 1988, according to Grimes. Gross revenue losses to meat packers are even higher.

State pork producer associations and the National Pork Council Women joined with the National Pork Producers Council in filing the petition for a countervailing duty on subsidized Canadian pork products. A number of U.S. meat packing companies are co-petitioners, including Con-Agra, Inc.; Dakota Pork Industries, Inc.; Farmland Foods; Farmstead Foods; IBP, Inc.; Illinois Pork Corporation; Thorn Apple Valley and Wilson Foods, Inc.

Cover Crops Save Soil

LEESPORT (Berks) — "Cover crops provide a vegetative cover to protect the soil against erosion during winter when the soil may be bare and unprotected," says John Fior of the USDA Soil Conservation Service. Cover crops are seeded in the existing crop just before or soon after harvest.

"Winter rye is one of the most widely grown cover crops in southeastern Pennsylvania," says Fior. It can be sown in standing corn with a forage harvester or helicopter or conventionally sown after the corn is harvested. Rye is usually sown in late summer and fall from July through October. It should become established before the ground freezes. Rye does not require as much seedbed preparation as wheat and other cereal grains. It does much better on droughty, less fertile soils than wheat and barley. It germinates rapidly and makes strong vigorous root and top growth in a short period of time under a wide range of growing conditions. Competing weeds are less likely to be a problem. Rye is more resistant to low winter temperatures then wheat and barley. It will grow during temporary thaws throughout the winter.

"Rye provides a living green mulch cover over winter that produces an excellent residue for planting no-till corn when it is sprayed with herbicide," says Fior. Rye extracts excess soil water during fall and spring and utilizes nitrates from the preceding crop. Excess nitrate losses from leaching are prevented. Rye is often plowed under in the spring as green manure before planting the next crop. It decomposes rapidly and contributes substantial organic matter to the soil. Soil fertility and soil tilth are increased significantly. Reduced tillage will leave some of the residue on the surface for soil protection when the new crop is planted. Rye is often taken off as ryelage during early heading before blossoming when it is full of sap and fed to dairy cattle. Rye is sometimes combined off after heading for straw and grain, leaving a stubble mulch which will protect the soil until a new crop is planted in the fall.

Special recognition was given to several members in the form of the New Worker, Blue Ribbon, and Clover Awards. The New Worker Award was given by Martha Gregory, Co-Chairperson, to Richard (Rudy) Radowski. This honor is confered upon a member who has two or less years of experience on the job. According to Gregory, Radowski's work with Program Learning Tree, a city day camp, as well as his networking efforts and volunteer training earned him the New Worker Award.

The Blue Ribbon Award, also presented by Ms. Gregory, was won by Laurie Sicko-Sandow, who was lauded for her outstanding program development with seeing eye dogs. This distinction is given to an agent with three to seven years in 4-H programming. Laurie's seeing eye puppie, Tex, accepted the award with her.

First Place Communicator's Award Recipients gathered for this photo at the Penna. Assoc. of Ext. 4-H Agents Banquet. They are L to R: Zoann Parker, Rick Kauffman, Carol Schurman, Jared Tyson, Sylvania Negley, Bill Hosler; Ken Manno, award presenter and representative of Hammermill Paper Co.; and Nancy Kadwill.

Receiving the Clover Award was a Volunteer Leader from Lycoming County. This presentation is made to a non-member of the association who has made an outstanding contribution to 4-H. Lee DeMorat, recipient of the Clover Award, was praised by Barbara Hutchison for his efforts in recycling, his woodworking seminars, and his service as Vice President of the Executive Board and Trustee on the Development Fund.

A national designation known as the Distinguished Service Award was conferred upon Darlene Resh and Dr. U.B. Bakker. He developed the first 4-H programs in the U.S. in orienteering and archery. He is a recreation specialist and environmental interpretor who has greatly improved camp programming in the state.

Agriculture's Future Discussed At Brubaker Agronomic Banquet

LANCASTER — The future of agriculture relies on the cooperation of farmers, agribusinesses, and the surrounding communities.

So agreed the participants in Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service's 10th annual dinner meeting held at the Willow Valley Conference Center.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff and Michael Heller of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation discussed the changes occurring in agriculture. Michael W. Brubaker, owner of Brubaker Agronomic, also shared his view of the changes taking place.

"If we want to defend agriculture (from negative publicity), we must once again become society's strongest (viewpoint) as we were at the turn of the century," Brubaker stated.

Wolff discussed low-input farming and its ability to lower input costs for farmers. It is a system that also illustrates that farming need not use tremendous quantities of herbicides and pesticides.

Heller addressed nutrient management efforts in the Chesapeake Bay Program. The director of the program's 280-acre Clagett Farm in Upper Marlboro, Md., Heller suggested that farmers and wastewater treatment plant operators work together to clean up the Bay rather than direct blame toward each other.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

with

1 This spring before planting, kill quackgrass tops and roots with Ranger

Better control without carryover is making Ranger® the quackgrass herbicide in the Northeast.

More and more Northeastern farmers are using Ranger® rather than high rates of atrazine for quackgrass control.

Ranger is so popular because it delivers better control than atrazine. Ranger kills emerged quackgrass all the way down to the roots. And, of course Ranger has no soil buildup so it will not carryover.

Best of all, you'll find Ranger is priced close to the cost of high quackgrass rates of atrazine.

This season, don't take a chance on atrazine carryover problems hurting your crop rotation. Rescue your rotation with the better quackgrass herbicide—Ranger. Ask your dealer.

Tests Show Extra Calcium Helps Plants Hold More Fruit

HOUSTON, TX. — Test conducted with a calcium-based fertilizer on more than 100,000 acres of various crops last season resulted in increased fruit set, according to the president of a Houston plant food and micronutrient company.

The product, N-Hib Calcium, produced by Stoller, Inc., was applied with a nitrogen or urea solution on cotton, potatoes, peanuts, grain sorghum, corn, wheat, grapes, tree fruit and vegetables. The tests resulted in increased fruit set and increased yield. Some tests resulted in increased resistance to diseases such as hollow heart in potatoes and blossom end rot in vegetables.

"One key to higher yields is the more efficient use of nitrogen," said Stoller, President Jerry Stoller. "These tests clearly demonstrate that N-Hib Calcium mixed with nitrogen or urea solution will help the crop use more nitrogen if it has adequate amounts of other nutrients."

"Although most crops do not have a calcium deficiency, apparently they do not have a sufficient amount of calcium for optimum yields," Stoller said.

Stoller refers to N-HIB calcium as the "second messenger" because he believes it interferes with a plant's tendency to drop fruit when it encounters stressful "messages" from the environment (i.e., drought, disease, etc.) According to Stoller, extra calcium enables plants to hold on to higher fruit set that plants normally drop.

Stoller, Inc. will market and continue to field test N-Hib Calcium during the 1989 growing season. Stoller, Inc. has international distribution of agricultural products including plant food, micronutrients, fungicides, miticides and fertilizers.

A Healthy Smile Shows Style

How is your smile? According to dental experts the frame for our smiles, the teeth, are in better condition than ever. February is Children's Dental Health Month. To keep that smile healthy, Judy Dodd, a registered dietitian with Dairy & Nutrition Council offers these tips:

* The American Dental Association suggests that children have their first dental examination before age two or at least before all 20 of the primary teeth appear.
* Routine brushing is important at all ages and flossing should be added on the advice of a dental professional.
* If your young child needs a bottle at bedtime, fill it with plain water. Other liquids left in the mouth overnight can begin the process of tooth decay.
* Encourage children to brush or at least rinse the mouth after eating meals and snacks. Tooth decay, dental caries, can develop when any food or beverage has contact with tooth enamel for about 20 minutes.
* Include foods that contain the nutrients necessary for healthy gums and teeth. Tooth-building nutrients include calcium, phosphorus and protein. Vitamins A and C contribute to healthy gums.
* Plan snacks that contribute to nutrition and are tooth-healthy. Cheese, fresh fruits and vegetables, milk, whole-grain crackers and bread items, and peanut butter (without added sugar) are some examples.

Take time now to protect the smile that must last for a lifetime!

Commercial Fruit Growers Seminar Set

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland) — Penn State Extension is sponsoring a day-long educational seminar for western Pennsylvania commercial fruit growers on Wednesday, March 15 at Mountain View Inn, Rt. 30, east of Greensburg. The latest production techniques for both tree fruit and berry production will be addressed by specialists from Penn State's College of Agriculture. The morning session will be a general session for all growers with topics on computer programs for fruit growers, trickle irrigation for fruit crops, weed control, and protecting honeybees from pesticide applications. During the afternoon there will be separate sessions running at the same time - one for tree fruit growers and the other for berry growers. Penn State specialists will discuss diseases and insects of tree fruit, weed control and the effects of the drought of 1988 on fruit trees. Small fruit growers will hear about marketing alternatives, post harvest handling of berries, weed and disease control. The educational seminars are worth four credits toward updating Pennsylvania private pesticide applicator licenses.

In addition to the educational sessions there will be a trade show featuring agricultural suppliers who serve fruit growers in this part of Pennsylvania.

So if you are involved in commercial fruit growing or seriously considering it, plan to attend the Western Pennsylvania Commercial Fruit Growers Seminar at Mountain View Inn, Greensburg, on Wednesday, March 15, starting at 8:30 a.m. Registration fee is $12 per person. To register or for more information contact the Westmoreland County Extension office at 837-1401.

Safety Training Program Available To Ag-Chem Dealers

EPHRATA (Lancaster) — A new comprehensive training program designed to provide a higher level of safety and environmental responsibility in the handling and use of agriculture chemicals is now available to agricultural dealerships in Pennsylvania. The program, called D.E.T.A.I.L. (Dealer Environmental Training and Information Library), is available through PennAg Industries Association, according to the association's executive vice president, Dr. David R. Brubaker.

"D.E.T.A.I.L. is designed to fill the education and training needs of ag chem dealers, helping them become more knowledgeable, responsible and innovative," Brubaker says. "This program will lead to the safer handling of pesticides as well as a better informed and efficient agriculture."

Program materials are presented and distributed in a series of modules. Each module consists of a training (VHS format only) and support manuals, workbooks and tests.

The introductory phase of D.E.T.A.I.L., now available, includes four training programs packed as a complete set. The topics cover groundwater issues, dealership site assessment, safe chemical handling and contingency planning for emergencies.

"The agricultural industry today requires a high level of safety consciousness and environmental responsibility," Brubaker says.

Developed and produced by Monsanto, the D.E.T.A.I.L. program will expand in 1989 to include additional, new training modules. Some of the topics being considered for future modules include agricultural chemicals and the community, agricultural chemical registration and non-profit sources of groundwater contamination.

Solving Weed Problems That Result From No-Till Planting

BETHLEHEM (Lehigh) — "Weed control is one of the most important components of crop production," John O. Yocum, senior research associate for Penn State, told attendees at the Penn-Jersey Tillage Conference held last week.

Using no-till as a planting system brings some weed problems that farmers don't encounter with conventional tillage. "In some cases, herbicides are only labeled for tilled fields, and there is numerous data to indicate that tillage in itself controls weeds," Yocum said.

Yocum listed several weed problems common to no-till planting and discussed ways to eliminate the weeds.

•Forage weeds: nutsedge and annual grasses. At one time weeds were avoided by planting forages in the fall, but now winter months bring weed problems of their own. The solution for grasses is to spray on Poast, which gives good control.

"Nutsedge is a poor competitor," Yocum stated. "If you clip it, you'll slow it up, which will let the alfalfa grow higher. (Nutsedge) won't recover from that." Yocum recommends clipping high, about 46 inches off the ground.

•Small grain weeds: winter annuals such as fleabane daisy and chickweed. The winter annual weeds won't die off from the frost and so must be taken care of right after seeding. Yocum suggests using Gramoxone Super, Roundup, or Harmony applied after planting.

•Soybeans: horseweed or marestail. This weed crops up when no-till is used in two consecutive years. To eliminate it, "farmers should add Gemini or Canopy to Gramoxone Super or use their old program and substitute Roundup for Paraquat," Yocum said.

•Corn: annual brassic weeds, trizine resistant-weeds, Johnson grass, shattercane, perennials. "When you moldboard plow, half the weed seeds get buried too deep to germinate that year," Yocum related. "In no-till you may have to raise the herbicide rates if the previous year was weedy." To combat annual brassic weeds, Yocum recommended applying higher rates of Lasso MT, Dual, or Bladex; use some tillage; or use Accent or Beacon, which may be labeled next year.

Trizine-resistant weeds also should receive higher rates of Dual and Lasso MT or an early application (before five or six weeks of corn growth) of Banvel. Other solutions Yocum offered were to rotate crops, use a little tillage, use Prowl if it should get a new label, or try one of the new herbicides when they become available.

The solutions for Johnson grass and shattercane include rotation or using Accent or Beacon when they become available.

Perennials such as trees and brambles can be eliminated with plowing or crop rotation with small grains, and the use of herbicides in the fall. Two quarts of Banvel or 2, 4-D or 1 gallon of Roundup will work.

BIG BALE CHOPPERS
from KIDD give regular bale economy from big round bales.

For animal feed, bedding or mulching the Kidd Big Bale Chopper provides either or both sides delivery controlled from the tractor seat. It saves on hay, straw and labour. And with air box adaptor, it blows material through a 7 inch dia. flexible hose, ideal for landscaping applications. For animal feed, it chops and shreds hay to provide better digestion and increased growth rates and, for bedding, it means less waste. For mulching it can be used around strawberry plants or apple trees with considerable saving on straw and labour.

Kidd – on the right track for efficient farming.

IT'S MORE THAN ONE TRACTOR.

Here's one tractor that does more work than a half dozen tractors combined. Put it to work on any kind of farm chore. Plowing. Cultivating. Loading. Mowing. Backhoeing. Hauling. And, like we said, more.

The L3350 has a strong 4-cylinder diesel engine, rated at 32 PTO horsepower. It also has direct injection for good fuel economy and quick starts. Longer intervals between oil changes, too.

A couple of other features make this Kubota tractor a real workhorse. An 8 x 8 partially synchronized transmission for easy shifting. Position and draft control for more accurate implement placement.

So come in and take a look at the Kubota L3350. You'll think you're seeing double.

REHRERSBURG (Lebanon) — Members of the Berks County Cattlemen's Association gathered at Trainer's Diner, Rehrersburg, for the first annual membership banquet. The event was held in conjunction with the Southeast Pennsylvania Beef Feeder Meeting.

The association meeting was called to order by newly elected president, Sheila Miller of Deitschland Farm Polled Herefords, Womelsdorf. She introduced the officers and board of directors: Hugh Brown, Buttonwood Farm, Kempton, vice president; Mike Firestine, MAP Farm, Womelsdorf, secretary; Dennis Manbeck, Manbeck Dairy Farms Inc., R1 Robesonia, treasurer; Geri Gammel, Womelsdorf, newly elected director; Paul Holcombe, Meadow Bend Farm, Mohrsville, director; and Ken Rarick, K&K Cattle Co., Fleetwood, director and immediate past president.

This year, for the first time, the Berks Cattlemen's Association sponsored four 4-H Beef Club members at the beef feeder meeting. These young beef producers exhibited the champion and reserve champion steers and heifers at the 1988 Berks County 4-H Roundup. They were: Amy Eshelman, Sinking Spring; Alice Strause, Hamburg; and Tammy and Traci Gelsinger, Wernersville.

The business meeting included action on the following agenda items: adoption of bylaws; dues structure changes; and review of 1988 activities which included a summer field trip to York County beef operations, participation in the Scenic River Festival and Reading Fair in beef promotion efforts, and the Dutch Country Calf Sale.

"We had an active year," said Miller. "Those who participated in the summer field trip and the annual rail contests found these events to be informative and educational, along with being fun." She encouraged those in attendance to consider participating in this year's scheduled events. The 1989 field trip is being planned and will focus on beef operations in southeastern Pennsylvania and possibly a trip to Moyer Packing. The Dutch Country Calf Sale will be held on October 21 at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

The Berks Cattlemen unanimously voted in support of a proposal to improve and expand the existing Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center, located off the Penn State Campus, State College. The Association will be joining other concerned livestock organizations in bringing this much-needed project to the attention of the Department of Agriculture.

"The Berks Cattlemen will go on record favoring this long overdue expansion. For those of us who put stock in indexing our cattle, this facility is important," Miller observed. "Each year a significant number of nominated animals must be turned away due to lack of space. Putting some state funds into improving this facility will benefit Pennsylvania's livestock producers and its consumers as we move toward leaner, more genetically predictable quality meat through tested breeding animals."

Membership in the Berks County Cattlemen's Association is open to any beef producer or beef-related agri-business. Membership dues are $20 annually (which includes membership to the Pa. Cattlemen's Association and a subscription to Beef Week magazine); Junior membership dues are $5, annually. For more information, contact Sheila Miller, 215-589-5617; or Mike Firestine, 717-866-4181.

University Of Delaware Samples Sorghum Varieties

NEWARK, DE — Results of the University of Delaware's 1988 sorghum variety trials have been compiled in a manual. A joint venture of the Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension, the trials evaluated 36 grain sorghum varieties under full-season and double-crop farming systems.

The manual, written by Extension field crops assistant Bob Uniatowski and Extension agronomy specialist Dr. Richard W. Taylor, includes multiple-year averages for entries tested in the last two and three test years as well as the results of the 1988 trials.

Copies of the manual, "Delaware Grain Sorghum Variety Performance Trials 1988," may be picked up free of charge at the following county Extension offices: New Castle County, 032 Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark; Kent County, 4601 S. DuPont Highway, Dover; Sussex County, University of Delaware Research and Education Center, Route 9, Georgetown.

For Yield... W-L alfalfa stacks up.

FOURTH YEAR

WL Competitors

W-L Alfalfa varities are strong producers throughout the life of your stand. You can't afford to settle for less.

If your alfalfa doesn't make it to the fourth year, you've reduced the overall profitability of your crop.

In test after test by public and private researchers, W-L alfalfa yields stack up for profits. For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfa varities have been bred for long stand persistence, quick recovery after cutting, multiple pest resistance and extra leafy, fine-stemmed forage. With proper crop management, you'll have strong fourth-year yields that stack up for a profitable crop.

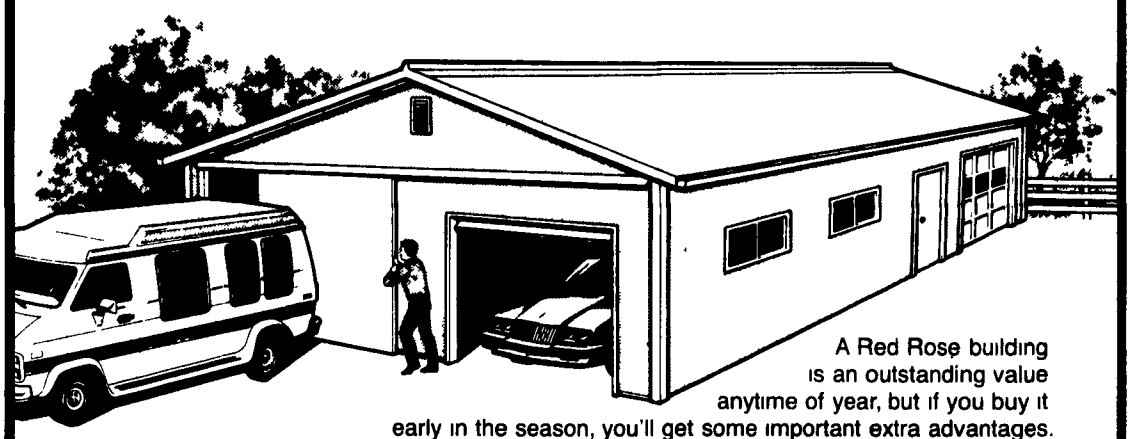
IS THIS A GOOD MONTH TO BUY A RED ROSE BUILDING?



A Red Rose building is an outstanding value anytime of year, but if you buy it early in the season, you'll get some important extra advantages.

It's no secret that construction activity usually eases during the winter, so there's more time for planning and working out the special details of your new building. Time well spent because it can help you get a better return on your investment.

It's also a smart time to buy because you can avoid price increases that often occur when the spring building season gets under way. So, if you're thinking about a new building, get an early start. We'll be happy to tell you more about the advantages of buying a Red Rose building now, while construction schedules are flexible and prices are low.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

-One year ago this week Lancaster County and the entire eastern half of the U.S. were digging out-again-from heavy snowfall. Electric service had been restored. It was again possible to communicate by telephone and a trip to town was again possible. In many cases, inadvisable, but possible.

The 1957-58 winter snowfall total to date has been a paltry but appreciated 7.2 inches.

In fact, most Lancaster County farmers are wishing they had some of that 60-inch snowfall on their fields, because since May, 1958, precipitation for the county is 5.5 inches below normal for the nine month period.

-Society #23 net recently with Mrs. John Herr, Jr., 139 Kready Ave., Millersville. Mrs. Edgar Funk presided, with Mrs. Lois Hostetter in charge of devotions.

The society voted to "adopt" a Korean child, sending funds for his or her support and receiving information about the child. If possible, they will correspond.

Society women's Society No. 20 met Thursday with Mrs. William Gross, Kirkwood, as hostess and Mrs. Herbert Mowery, co-hostess.

Mrs. Glenn Ressel presided with Mrs. Jack Ferguson in charge of devotions.

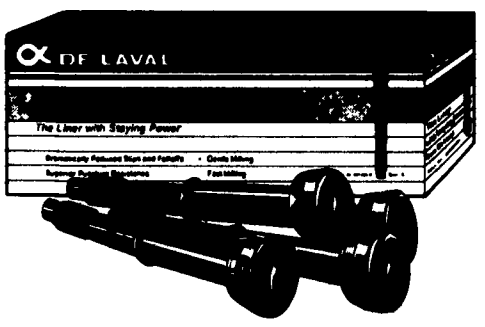
FINALLY, A LINER WITH STAYING POWER.



If you think frequent liner slips and falloffs are unavoidable, you're living in the past. Now there's a new liner that stays on the job when others fail: ClingSoft™ 6100.

- Narrow bore is gentle on teats
- Provides complete, fast milking
- Beefed-up ribbed area near liner and virtually eliminates claw nipple punctures
- Unchlorinated rubber surface prevents premature aging, makes liner easier to keep clean.

Put the liner with staying power to work for you.
ClingSoft 6100.

Tests show this liner can dramatically reduce slips and falloffs. Dale Langenkamp of New Weston, Ohio saw a 77.8& reduction in slips and a 100% reduction in falloffs compared to a Milk Rite® liner. Think of the valuable time that could save you, let alone the reduction in teat end impacts and chances for milk contamination. But that's just for starters.

Feeding Dairy Beef Discussed At Beef Feeder Day

REHRERSBURG (Lebanon) — Feeding dairy beef and using feeding byproducts as protein sources were topics of interest as cattle producers from Berks and surrounding counties gathered at Trainer's Diner for the Southeast Pennsylvania Beef Feeder meeting.

Providing the meat of the beef information were two Penn State extension specialists, Dr. John Comerford and Dr. Harold Harpster. They were joined by two packing company representatives, David Sorosky of Taylor and Bob Loeb of Moyer. Both discussed company programs, including Holstein beef. Dave Ivan, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, provided an update on how the Beef Checkoff is helping to increase consumer awareness of beef as a nutritious part of today's health-conscious diet.

Dr. Harpster said when the price of corn decreases and interest rates are low, more farmers become interested in feeding Holstein calves for the beef market. But, he noted several factors that should be considered before deciding to fatten Holstein steers: a higher protein level is needed when feeding lighter calves (less than 400 pounds); a farmer needs to have the ability to work with lighter calves, or have someone else background them until the calves reach the normal 400 to 500 pound range of feeder calves; Holstein steers are 10 percent less efficient than beef steers and have higher maintenance requirements; Holsteins do not tolerate a harsh environment as well as their beef counterparts and will require more shelter for over-winter feeding.

Harpster emphasized the need to balance forage with grain when feeding Holstein steers in order to have them grade in a shorter time and with a smaller frame size that packers prefer. "If you put them on a high grain ration from birth to roughly 300 pounds, then add forage from 300 to 800 pounds, and go back to a high grain ration for the duration, you can have a Holstein steer finish low choice at about 1,150 pounds. If you skip the last high grain phase, the Holsteion steer generally won't reach the low choice grade until about 1,250 pounds. That's getting bigger than what most packers would like to have." The Penn State specialist said the decision to go with a high grain ration must be weighed against the cost of the grain, the farmer's present feeding system and the realization that high grain rations impact on rumen health.

An advantage to feeding Holstein steers over beef steers, according to Dr. Comerford, is the fact that Holstein steers do not have the degree of setbacks when introduced to the feedlot at 500 pounds. "I attribute this to the fact that there is no diet change. They've been on a high grain diet all along. In our study, we saw a higher incidence of sick days in the crossbred beef."

For those farmers interested in feeding alternative protein sources through low-cost byproducts, Dr. Harpster cautioned them to know that what they were getting might not be such a bargain. Byproduct protein sources can be obtained from crop residues, food processing, forest byproducts and animal wastes, said Harpster, who noted cattle have the natural ability to convert these products into usable nutrients. Harpster added most farmers only become interested in feeding byproducts when corn and soybean meal prices go above $3.

"You need to ask: Are there any toxins in the byproducts; will I be able to get an adequate, consistent quality supply; will my cattle like to eat it; what is the nutrient value; can I store it without spoiling; how much moisture am I buying; what are my transportation costs?" said Harpster.

Concluding the meeting, Comerford reported that recent studies have not shown a final quality grade difference when a steer is finished with at least one percent grain while on different types of pasture, such as pure fescue versus a mixed grass legume pasture. He also noted there have been no studies that link grass/silage feeding programs and a change in beef flavor. He noted there are more differences between individuals in a breed and between breeds, than between cattle fed corn or forage.

Plans Take Off For Maryland Sheep, Wool Festival

KEYMAR, MD — Just like Dolly in "Hello Dolly," the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival is still growing and going strong, says Chairman Mary E.F. Streaker, in announcing expanded activities for the 16th annual Festival to be held May 6 and 7 at Howard County Fairgrounds, West Friendship, Md. Grounds are located off I-70 at exit 80, just west of Baltimore. Take Exit 80, go south on Rte. 32, then turn right on Rte. 144 to grounds.

The heart of the event, shows featuring sheed bred for their superior wool, will expand to include purebred natural colored Romney and both white and natural colored Lincoln sheep. The Lincoln shows have been designated National Shows and will attract exhibitors from many states and Canada. Other shows are Border Leicester, Columbia, Corriedale, Romney, white wool and natural colored. Following these shows Lincolns only will be offered at auction Sunday afternoon. The expansion necessities engaging an additional judge, Streaker states, since approximately 600 animals are entered.

The Festival, largest of its kind in the United States, brings together producers of sheep and products derived from them, crafts persons who fashion finished goods and the general public in a celebration of the entire sheep and wool industry. Sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders Assoc., Inc., a non-profit organization, the Festival is staged by volunteers, with some funding by American Sheep Producers Council and the Maryland Agricultural Fair Board. Producers pay entry fees for their animals and crafts persons rent exhibit space.

Admission and parking are free.

A new category, fleeces by breeds, has been added to the fleece show competition. Previously fleeces were entered in either white or natural colored competition only by fiber diameter, such as fine, medium, long or coarse. Several hundred fleeces, both for competition and direct sale are expected, assuring the buyer a wide choice of raw material. Also available for purchase will be spinning wheels, looms, dyes, yarns, instruction books and tools needed by students and teachers alike.

The Grand Lamb Cook-off contest this year will have two divisions, professional and non-professional, with both scheduled for Sunday, May 7. Both days lamb samples will be available to tempt palates.

The popular Sheep to Shawl contest is scheduled for Saturday in the main exhibition building. Here teams of five persons each, plus a sheep for each group, compete to see which group can produce the nicest garment in 3 hours or less. Each team consists of a shearer, weaver and three spinners. The sheep is shorn, wool given to the spinners who turn it into yarn. Then the weaver makes the garment. Shawls will be auctioned that afternoon.

Both days spectators will see Collie dogs demonstrate their abilities to herd and round up sheep. Shearing demonstrations will be on-going and there will be shearing competitions as well.

One of the most popular displays, not seen at regular fairs, is the showcasing of many different breeds of sheep, usually at least 30, from many areas of the world. They will range from hair and fur-type sheep to the long wools, as well as meat type and exotics. Owners will be available to discuss them.

Seminars are sprinkled among the events to offer information and education on subjects ranging from sheep health to techniques to turn the wool into useful items through felting, spinning and other wool-working arts.

Feeder lambs will be judged and sold Saturday. The champion and reserve champion lambs from the Wednesday carcass contest will become featured entrees for MSBA meals. Previously they were raffled.

Saturday a new Maryland Lamb and Wool Queen and princesses will be chosen for a year's reign over sheep-related events during the year. Other contests include junior spinning, shepherd's lead, skein and garment, fine arts, poster, photography, 4-H and FFA judging.

Not only will more than 150 crafts persons be selling and demonstrating, there will be many equipment and supply dealers to help the hobbyist or farmer with advice and products to further their agricultural pursuits.

Entertainment will include a fashion show, folk and square dancers and musicians.

Grounds open to the public both days at 9 a.m. Craft buildings close at 7 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday. For further information call 301/845-8744 or 301/321-1344.

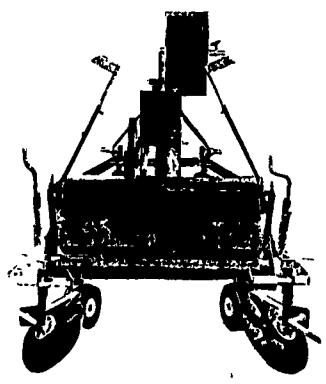
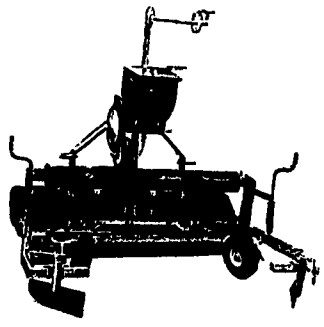
BIG YIELDER MODEL 2500 RAISED BED PLASTIC MULCH LAYER



Not all mulch layers look and work the same, it's how the mulch is layed that really counts.

Featuring
- Independent, spring loaded cover arms with 6 way disk hillers. No wrench needed for adjustment. Convenient cranks for more or less coverage.
- Independent presswheels that "float" with angle adjustment, no wrench needed.
- Fast reloading! Full open back of machine (no bars to step over). Machine will carry two 48" x 4000' rolls of plastic mulch.
- Plastic mulch goes under "floating" roller (in back of machine) thus giving a tightly stretched mulch and pressed bed.
- Beds are 4" to 6" high (depending on adjustment). Machine has adjustable row markers.
- Insecticide applicator (optional) by "GANDY", is driven off roll of film plastic. Thus, application rates are uniform regardless of speed mulch layer is driven.
- Drip irrigation attachment (optional) is adjustable side to side and up and down, will handle large or small drip line spools.

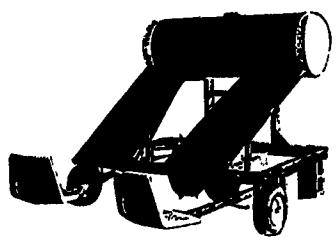
ECONOMICAL MODEL 560 FLAT BED PLASTIC MULCH LAYER



When it comes to mulch laying, take a close up look at the Model 560. Mulch laying is prior to planting your baby plants, and is more than just rolling out your plastic mulch. Uniform beds and tightly layed plastic mulch is a must for a higher bottom line.

Featuring
- Very uniform beds, the Model 560 eliminates pot holes in seed bed. Heavy ¼" steel pan will press bed. Has furrow openers on bottom.
- Independent spring loaded cover arms with convenient cranks for more or less coverage. For maximum control of coverage, this machine has scrapers instead of disk covers.
- Fast reloading! Full open back of machine (no bars to step over).
- Plastic mulch goes under "floating" roller for maximum tightness. Independent press wheels also "float" with angle adjustment, no wrench needed.
- With minor adjustment, machine will lay 4' or 5' plastic. (Adaptor optional.) Carries two 4000' rolls of plastic mulch.
- Insecticide applicator (optional) by "GANDY" is driven off roll of film plastic. Thus, application rates are uniform regardless of speed mulch layer is driven.

WATER WHEEL PLANT SETTER



Featuring
Planter will plant through plastic mulch with constant depth control for the plants. Plants 1 or 2 rows on one bed. Simple operation, will water as you plant, has water flow control. Also, water off/on controlled by planters or tractor operator. Machine has four tray carrying racks, two are "self feeding" right to the planter seats.

Comes with category 2, 3-point hook up. Economically priced.

Full line of drip irrigation, plastic mulches, and supplies in stock.
We ship UPS same day orders are received.

Pennsylvania Farmers Request FmHA Debt Restructuring

HARRISBURG — More than 200 Pennsylvania farmers who are delinquent on their loan payments to the Farmers Home Administration have responded to FmHA notices offering to help, according to Pennsylvania's FmHA State Director, D. Elmer Hawbaker.

Notices, sent to FmHA farm borrowers who were 180 days or more delinquent, outlined numerous positive options designed to restructure debts and continue the farm operation. Options included reduced interest rates, temporary deferral of payments and, in some cases even a write down of a part of the debt.

"It appears that all farm borrowers who have made a decision to try to continue to farm have responded to the offer. We now have 60 days to analyze each individual situation and see if there is some way we can work out a reasonable financial agreement," Hawbaker said.

Although 418 notices were sent out in Pennsylvania, many of them went to farmers who had already sold out, were in bankruptcy, or whose account had been accelerated some time ago. Many of these borrowers are candidates for debt settlement or write-off. Fifty-seven farmers in these categories responded to the notices in Pennsylvania.

Nationally, nearly 35,000 delinquent farm borrowers responded to the notices.

THE CATTLE REPORT SURPRISES EVERYONE

By H. Louis Moore
Penn State
Ag Economics Professor

At the Cattle Feeders Day held at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster on January 31, I presented information on the outlook for prices and feed and cattle supplies in the year ahead.

Since corn carry-over supplies will be reduced from about 4.2 billion bushels this past September to about 1.7 billion next September 1, it appears that corn and feed prices will continue at high levels. This doesn't mean that feed prices will remain at the current level. If spring rains replenish subsoil moisture and 20 to 30 million acres of set-aside land comes back into production this spring, there is a potential for good crops. This will have a downward impact on grain prices, but prices will be sustained at fairly high levels until carry-over stocks are replenished. This likely will take two or three years.

The price outlook I presented in Lancaster County was considered fairly bullish. I indicated that prices of finished cattle would average $73 to $78 per hundredweight at Pennsylvania markets in 1989. In fact, it appeared that at times this spring, local markets would report cattle selling at $80 per hundredweight.

I based the outlook on my estimate that fed cattle slaughter numbers will drop about 5 percent in 1989. (There are some who follow the cattle situation who feel that beef output will drop about 7 percent). I did indicate that I was operating with incomplete information since the cattle inventory report would not be released until February 8th. I also indicated that I thought there would be a small decline in cattle numbers by the time the report was released.

The report released on February 8 showed that the cattle inventory had not declined from levels a year ago, but had remained relatively stable, indicating that herd liquidation has stopped and heifers have begun to be held for breeding purposes. It didn't seem like any big deal.

But when I returned to Lancaster for the Crops Day on St. Valentines Day, I found out how big of a deal it really was. Several producers who had been at the earlier program cornered me and said, "You sure were wrong on the cattle outlook this year. When that report was released the cash and futures markets for cattle literally fell apart. What happened?"

Basically, I still believe that the market outlook hasn't changed. The number of cattle on January 1, 1989, at 99.5 million head is down fractionally from last year and 2 percent below the numbers of cattle two years ago. It is the smallest cattle herd on U.S. farms since 1961. Beef cow numbers are up 2 percent from a year ago, and beef heifer numbers are up 5 percent. Although this wasn't a change that will impact on market supply for at least six months, it was a "psychological" blow to the market.

The market has been bullish for several months. It was due to have a psychological setback. The futures markets respond to emotional factors more than cash prices, and the report's results are considered an emotional factor.

Beef supplies still will be reduced about 5 percent in 1989. Pork output will be up about 1 percent, which is considered good news compared to the 9 percent increase of 1988. Broiler turkey output will increase about 4 percent. The total supply of meat available to consumers will be the second largest on record—excelled only by 1988.

The greatest revelation in the February 8 cattle inventory report was the indication that the 1988 calf crop was up 2 percent. It nearly makes one lose faith in all the media reports we got last summer at the height of the drought. Those reports indicated that cattlemen were sending their cows and calves to market in droves because there was not any pasture. If, in fact, the cattlemen loaded their cattle onto trucks, they must have sent them into the next county where the pasture was in better condition. It is certain that the cows didn't go to slaughter.

Penn State Circular Discusses Weed Control With Herbicides

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Each year weeds cost Pennsylvanians more than $125 million dollars in lost production, extra labor and money needed for weed control. To help crop growers lessen weed damage, Penn State professor of weed science Dr. Nathan Hartwig has written "Introduction to Weeds and Herbicides," a new extension circular available free from all Penn State County Cooperative Extension offices.

The circular explores how weeds survive and how herbicides can help control them. It explains how pests like quackgrass and pigweed spread and thrive and classifies herbicides by their chemical structures and the ways they work. "Introduction to Weeds and Herbicides" also discusses how and when specific herbicides can best be used and features safety tips, application advice and warnings about the injurious effects of herbicide misuse.

Weed seeds can be spread easily by water, wind, livestock, birds, machinery and even farmers. Once a seed is embedded in the soil a survival mechanism called dormancy prevents it from germinating until conditions are right. Some seeds can remain dormant for years. After germination and maturation, the weed becomes a prolific reproducer and the cycle begins again.

Herbicides stop weeds by killing them or interrupting normal growth. Some kill weeds on contact, burning and destroying plant tissues. Others kill by inhibiting photosynthesis or growth, or by stopping other metabolic processes.

"Introduction to Weeds and Herbicides" is designed to help farmers, turf management specialists, nursery specialists, foresters and other vegetation management specialists use herbicides efficiently without harming their crops or the environment.

COLLEGE PARK, MD — Alumni, faculty and students from the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland-College Park will kick off Maryland's celebration of National Agriculture Week, March 13-20, with their annual awards dinner on March 8.

"The Alumni/Faculty Awards Dinner gives faculty and students, both past and present, a special opportunity to get together and recognize their peers for contributions to the agriculture industry," notes Will Godwin, president of the College of Agriculture Alumni Association. Godwin expects more than 200 alumni and faculty to attend this year's gathering.

Continuing a tradition that dates back to 1967, awards will be presented for the following categories: *Excellence for Faculty/Teaching; *Outstanding Student; *Meritorious Service; *Excellence in Extension.

Award recipients are chosen by a committee of alumni from nominations submitted by department chairs, faculty and administrators at the College of Agriculture, the Cooperative Extension Service and the Agricultural Experiment Station.

The awards dinner — with its indoor picnic/tailgate party theme — will be held at the Holiday Inn at Route 1 and the Beltway in Beltsville. Dinner will be served at 7:00 p.m., following a cash bar beginning at 6:00 p.m.

Dairy Tips By Dr. John Clark

Purina Mills Dairy Consultant

PURINA MILLS, INC.

ANIMAL FAT — EXTRA ENERGY FOR HIGH PRODUCING COWS

Energy is one of the most limiting nutrients for milking cows especially during the first 90 days of lactation when dry matter intake is too low to support milk production without excessive weight loss. If more than 60-65% of rapidly fermentable grain is fed in the ration, rumen acidosis may occur, the cows goes off-feed and production of milk and butterfat is reduced.

Animal fat, properly blended in the grain or concentrate ration provides over twice the amount of energy as an equal weight of corn. Top producing cows can efficiently utilize 1½ pounds of animal fat if the ration is correctly balanced and fed properly. One and one half pounds of animal fat and 5½ pounds of roughage replaces about 7 pounds of corn.

Purina® MAXI-SIL™ Silage Additive

- MAXI-SIL™ promotes fast, low heat fermentation in your silo.

- MAXI-SIL™ retards mold growth in the bunk to reduce waste.

MAINTAINS PALATABILITY
- This benefit is especially important in summer heat when dry matter intake may go down.
